To our certain knowledge, kingfishers have occupied a hole in a sand-bank just at the turn of the road for four years. It would be odd if they were quite different birds each time. Every spring mallards raise a family in the same quiet bay. Probably at least one parent has been there before.

No Sure Proof

We are not able to prove that any one of these was a returning bird unless we can recognize a peculiarity about the plumage, a characteristic behaviour. But the individuals of some species should not be confused. No two song sparrows have exactly the same song. We know definitely when one man comes to take up territory, five successive summers just a few yards from our path. And it must be our robin back on the verandah beam; his voice is unmistakable.

There is no doubt whatever about the identity of the white-breasted nuthatches which repeatedly used a certain banker's bird house. One male was first banded in 1942, and nested in that vicinity for at least five years. Since the practice of banding has become important, we are aware of that many more nests come to their old homes.

It has in this way been proved that wrens often use their nest over and over, repairing and adding to it each spring. Starting as a comparatively small home, after the same individuals have brought up families in it for 25 years or so, it grows to be quite enormous. Sometimes when the original pair die, their descendants take over the old homestead. After 40 years occupancy, one bald eagle's nest was 18 feet deep, and its weight was estimated at nearly 2,000 pounds.

Briefs From Britain

(By The Canadian Press)

Camborne, Cornwall, England, (CP)—A magistrate here put two boys, ages 9 to 13, on a year's probation. They had broken into a store and drunk up all the lemonade, then climbed into trucks parked at the rear and driven them into each other, smashing radiators, fenders and headlights.

Grimsby, England, (CP)—A man in court pleaded guilty to being found intoxicated in a garden and was fined 10 shillings ($1.30). Afterwards he asked the constable where he was found. It was his own front garden.

London, (CP)—A thief who squeezed through a window fanlight to enter a provision store ate six big meat pieces, 12 tea cakes and 12 pounds of cheese. The store manager commented "no doubt found the fanlight a tight squeeze on the way out."

Eastbourne, England, (CP) — Clergyman here needs a motorcar for his parish duties. The bishop said he would have to get a garage first, and the council said he can't build a garage until he's a car. Now it's up to the bishop again.

Guildford, Surrey, England.—(CP) — Town officials received various complaints about the "ferocious" goose on a local pond. Now there's a sign warning: "Beware of the swan."

Birmingham, England, (CP)—A man who applied for a job as a fireman at a local factory got the right moment. He was asked to fight a small blaze in the plant and was hired as night fireman.

Hereford, England, (CP) — A shipment of electric cookers for a block of council houses in this Welsh county town was delayed, for the time being the occupants did their cooking on outdoor camp fires.

Croydon, England, (CP)—Elephants are useful buildersbeing an attraction for the children. Six elephants, taught a "march drill" by their trainer, regularly give demonstrations in road safety to groups of children.

Rasslers Tuck Ref. Away On Punching Splurge, And It Ends 'No Contest'

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor, Associated Press

"It was a bit ghastly", said Gerald.

Gerald, in case you don't know is Lord Athol Layton's "gentleman's gentleman".

And Lord Athol Layton, again in case you don't know is a bit of a Nobleman, a gentleman of the first water, and danged good wrestler, to boot.

As a matter of fact the whole bloody thing was "ghastly".

The whole bout ended in a grand or was, it, flurry of fisticuffs with no decision handed out by the referee.

As a matter of fact the referee one Burt Maxwell, was out of the picture long, he was now compos mentis (asleep that is) outside of the ring and one Nicholas Brown, a pal of parts, took it on himself to adopt the referee's role. Being a member of the Alpaca clan, Brown promptly raised Fred Atkins hand, yeah he was there too, in token of victory.

That started the hell-raising. In less time than it takes to say over the shock of seeing, Fay Enemoto and Atkins the grand was in the ring throwing punches.

Nine of 'em count 'em, Nine including one Jack Pearson, who was down here on an administrative job. It was the best man bout we've seen in many a moon with everybody taking his pick and dishing out hell. Jack Law showed itself irrespective of what noggin it was attached to.

Free-For-All

It was a grand free-for-all. No officials, no rules ,no nuthin'. As a matter of fact our man Gerald was in there humpin' and pitchin with his umbrella.

Everybody slugged everybody. The combust form of one Burt Maxwell was safely tucked away in the dressing room (with a shiner eye open), and there was no surgeon needed. In fact the referee Burt had his eyes closed all evening as it the was a good start.

Then the fun started. As was mentioned before the boys all climbed into the ring and the battle was on.

Even the semi-final Earl McCready refused to say more than a ponderous Wady, Yalun and declared the hasty motion pictures making rassler after twenty minutes of hectic brawling.

In the main event Maxime Los Sjoberg from Sweden took the measure of ruby-dusty Hatin Brown who still has ideas that he's a boxer. It didn't work last night.

Britannia Rules 5-2 Favorite To Take Plate

Toronto, May 26—(CP) — The Britannia Rowing Club was a 5-2 favorite on the "morning line" today to win the 82nd running of the King's Plate, richest amateur gain happen as the crowded field lurges from an improvised starting gate at swanky Woodbine Race Track.

A fast track and a crowd of about 30,000 are expected for the historic race with its prize of 50 guineas and about $60,000 for the winner. There is an extra equalizing the largest field on record—12 in 1933.

The weather forecast was sunny so a fast track is expected and those stables which kept in an entry hoping for an "off" strip might be scratched before post time, about 2:30 P.M. EDT.

Just two scratches would cut the field so it could be handled in the crowded starting gate. Two gates—one can handle 12 and the other eight—are being hooked together to handle the large field. If there are no scratches two would have to start outside the gate. The track is being watered to near the start to allow this.

Britannia, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, industrialist, is coupled with stablemate Eyelet Factor. But she rates the favorite by drawing the inside starting wing to look favorite and then winning one of the three divisions of the public trial last Saturday at six furlongs.

Libertine Second Choice.

The Taylor entry was quoted at 2-3. A close second at 3-1 was the Medway Stable's Libertine at 7-2. Libertine, owned by Jack Smallman of London, Ont., won another division of the plate trial.

Third favorite is the Mrs. J. Holbeck—Double Blue Stable entry of Mount Princess and Pendennis. They are 4-1 mainly because of Mount Princess' close second to Britannia in the fastest of the three plate trials, Mount Brance will be ridden by J. Nichols, one of three United States jockeys reported to ride in the plate.

Pendennis choice is the entry of R. J. Speers' Whittier Park Stock Farm of Winnipeg—Scapa Blow and Cyrene. Scapa Blow, a filly was ridden by Darrel Hartley of Calgary to a win in a plate trial last although their errors did not help out at all.

Hull Hits Homer

Hull of Avons hit the longest ball of the night, when he smacked out a tremendous homer in the fourth. Taylor's blow for three bases was the longest for Stewart-Warner. Hammett's three singles topped all others in that department.

Taylor was not crowd stiffened in the game which lasted one hour and fifty-five minutes being called at the end of the eighth on account of darkness.

The next scheduled game in the AA section is on Monday night when Cleaner Cambines play host to the Bakelite team.

Avon Jewellers Defeat Alemites By 12-8 Score

Although outhit by eight hits to six and playing very loose ball afield, the Avon jewellers managed through to a 12 to 8 victory over Stewart-Warner at Alemite Field last evening in the inaugural of the Commercial AA section.

Achieving three runs in the first two innings without the aid of a hit, Avons never let the lead. Their biggest burst came in the fourth inning when they scored five runs to give them a temporary seven run lead.

Errors and loose play seemed to dominate throughout the game both teams showed lack of practice. Committing five errors Avon were only outdone by one as Stewart-Warner committed six.

F. Day and Archie Bellis toiled on the mound for the winners with Day allowing three hits and Bellis five. Dracup chucked eight innings for Stewart-Warner with Ormond relieving him in the final stanza.

A total of 22 bases on balls were issued by the four moundsmen; Dracup 3, Ormond 2, Day 4, Bellis 2. This seemed to be the greatest liability of the Day-Bellis pair although their errors did not help out at all.

Soccer is away to a good start this year with some new teams participating in the Eastern Ontario loop the new entries are Oshawa, Malawa and O'Hallerans of Peterborough but Ottawa has dropped out leaving an eight team league.

The standard of play so far has been quite good and the league promises to be quite good this year. The big difference this year is considerably improved and so far have won two games as against one loss. As happened last year Kingston United and Peterborough United are the teams to beat. Both teams have entered the Dominion Football Association Cup, the draw for which will probably be announced in the near future.

Kingston United and Peterborough share top slot in the league both having six points and neither team having hit a goal scored against it in league play. Belleville and Batawa are tied for the next place with four points each. They are followed by Brockville and 6 R.D. with two points each and O'Hallorans and Vimy Signals share the cellar position without a point to their credit.

Just two scratches would cut the field so it could be handled in the crowded starting gate. Two gates—one can handle 12 and the other eight—are being hooked together to handle the large field. If there are no scratches two would have to start outside the gate. The track is being watered to near the start to allow this.

Tennis Notes

The Bay of Quinte Tennis League gets under way next week with all four clubs seeing action. Tomorrow afternoon Quinte plays host to Trenton Tennis Club. Wednesday, Batawa visits Point Anne.

Some good tennis should be seen again this year with all other clubs trying to wrest the league championship from the Cemeteen men who have copped the title for the last three seasons.

The Intermediate League will take on a formal outlook this year. A trophy has been donated for competition by the Bata Shoe Company and six teams have entered the league. The intermediate schedule will be drawn up at a league executive meeting last Wednesday and will be promulgated in the near future. Point Anne, Trenton, Batawa, Holloway Street, St. St. Andrews and Quinte will be represented this year.

The schedule opens with Trenton visiting Quinte on Sunday, June 3rd, and the following Wednesday will see Point Anne visit in the league with St. Andrews entertaining Batawa on the St. Andrews' court.

The senior league clubs are intending to use the intermediate competition as much as possible to develop up and coming youngsters for future senior competition.

An interesting opener to the season in the shape of a round robin tennis tournament took place at the Quinte courts last Sunday. The weather was ideal and some good tennis was seen. Alec Cunningham and Jim Erwine took the honors in the men's doubles and Jack Ethier and Jack Watson winning the consolation award. Gwen Bennett and Fred Bayliss were winners of the mixed doubles, while Elizabeth Pinney and Jerry Ireland took the consolation event. Patsy Brierly and Don Ireland won the ladies mixed doubles series. Wally Ives and Madge Cowley were joint conveners of this excellent show.

Early Recognition and Treatment Greatest Hope for Cancer Victims

Toronto, May 26 — (CP)—The greatest hope for cancer treatment lies in the early recognition and treatment of certain changes in the body's cell structure, Dr. John D. Hamilton of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., Friday told the Ontario Medical Association's annual convention.

Abnormal increases in the number of normal cells in normal body tissue may not be cancerous but may develop into cancer, Dr. Hamilton said in a report prepared for delivery to the gathering.

These increases — a condition known as hyperplasia — are often unpredictable, but once they have occurred it is impossible in many cases to reverse them, he said.

Persistent skin sores should be examined for hyperplasia and if this is present, then should be treated as a skin cancer even if they are not cancerous.

Among women in certain age groups and with certain family histories, cancer of the breast would develop in one of every four cases if hyperplasia were not treated by amputation, Dr. Hamilton said.

"This operation cannot be undertaken lightly," he said, "and then this remains a duty for the conservative in our treatment, possibly more conservative than we should be.

"From the standpoint of the pathologist, I am convinced that every breast, in which marked hyperplasia of cells occurs, should be removed."

Icing the Puck Rule Changed By The C.A.H.A.

Halifax, May 26—(CP)—Canadian amateur hockey will have a different look next season, but not because of the rule changes that will depend on how long you have been watching the game.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, winding up its 32th annual convention here today, has approved several new rules and amended some old ones designed to popularize the game.

Gerald Dickson of Toronto, secretary George Dudley, voting against the change, said there would be more penalties, more goals and more fights around the goal—the big thrill in hockey.

Another eye-raising ruling provides a one-year suspension and fourfold fine for any club, player or team official, who takes a team from the ice, fails to ice a team or refuses to appear on ice to start play within two minutes. There is no appeal from the suspension.

Along the same lines, a player leaving the ice during a fracas in an argument on the ice, now will be penalized. Previously he was only "warned" if he took part in the argument.

Amendment Left Over

Suggestions that the red line be eliminated and the blue line moved up five feet, making it 40 feet off spot in front of the nets received a hearing but no action was in use, were left over for further discussion by the National Hockey League meeting in June.

The Association decided to continue the major series if all leagues affected by the reorganization and post a $5,000 bond before the 1951-52 season opens. Any member will participate in the playoffs.

Tech Maritime and Ontario major team will be allowed eight imports and six will be granted British Columbia senior squad instead of the present four.

Winnipeg Buffaloes, Edmonton Mercurys and St. Francis Xavier University of Antigonish, N. S. will replace Port Arthur Bearcats at Olympic Games in Oslo next year. The final decision was left to the officers.

The entire slate was re-elected. They are: President, D. G. Grimston, New Westminster, B. C.; first Vice-president, W. H. George, Kemptville, Ont.; Second Vice-president, J. R. Dunn, Winnipeg; W. Gordon Love of Regina is now president.

Financial reports on the 1950-51 playoffs showed that the juniors got the largest slice of the cash. Out of the major series champion Valleyfield Braves took $1,900 and runner-up Toronto St. Mikes $1,000. Senior A champs got $2,700 for their six-game series with Valleyfield.

On the junior scene, Winnipeg Monarchs received $14,278; Regina $12,225 and champion Barrie Flyers $8,475. Inkerman Rockets will get $6,425 and Halifax St. Mary's $4,350.

Drive Raises New Issues In Inquiry

Washington, May 26 — (AP) — Criticism of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's dismissal as United Nations troops to the Yalu River last November has raised a new issue in the Far East controversy over the general's dismissal from his far eastern command.

Gen. Matthew Ridgway, army chief of staff, said yesterday MacArthur's dismissal ended a battlefield policy in letting non-Korean troops move close to Russia on the Manchurian border. Ridgway chiefs of staff, Collins said, had decided last November that United Nations forces some five miles south of the Manchurian border.

Whitney said MacArthur was never restrained directly or indirectly from sending troops to the Yalu River.

Collins did not accuse MacArthur of the "blatant disregard of orders."

Senator William F. Knowland (Rep. - Calif.) said today he felt MacArthur had no other choice than when he was ordered available to him in his drive to the Manchurian border.

But Senator John J. Sparkman (Dem. - Ala.) said there was a "serious feeling in the United Nations, with which he concurred, that use of non-Asiatic troops in the Korean area should be limited to stop trouble.

Sparkman touched off the new dispute in his initial appearance yesterday before the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees inquiring into MacArthur's dismissal.

He was called back for further questioning today (at 10 a. m., EDT).

Collins said MacArthur used U. S. troops in the Manchurian border area "to the extent of their effective use." Sept. 27 "without advising us first."

This was denied by Whitney who said in a statement that MacArthur's directive permitted troops to the Yalu area in compliance with the directives under which he was operating.

United Nations elements pushed up to the Yalu in the last month before the Chinese reds launched a massive attack which them knew MacArthur said the move to the border was dictated by "military necessity."

Good Roads Committee Will Meet in Toronto

Ottawa, May 26 (CP) — The first meeting of a committee appointed by the Canadian Good Roads Association to conduct a coast-to-coast survey of Canada's highway problems will be held in Toronto May 29.

C. W. Gindin, managing director of the association, said the committee will investigate all phases of highway problems, including the co-ordination of technical research and the stimulation of highway development, similar to that being maintained for that purpose in the United States and abroad.

Meetings will be held in several Canadian cities.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

COACH PAT WILSON

Several years ago [illegible] know how many, there was born up around Copp[illegible] way a bouncing bundle of boy who looked so much like Sir Patrick that the cold man named him after him.

The youngster turned up a crinkly nose at a bottle and nipple even at that age and instead reached for a hockey stick and baseball bat that stood in a nearby corner. And he has never relinquished them, so to speak.

Many years have flown by, now, in fact, had you seen the St. Mike's Monarchs battling in that early summer hockey series with the Valleyfield Braves for the Alexander Cup in the junior series, you would have seen the same youngster playing a standout game on left defence for the Monarchs.

Had you been in the news rooms of this office yesterday you would not have recognized the soft-spoken, personable chap as the razzed behind-the-backstop battler who at times found the Ervers out of their skins.

He is Pat Wilson, new playing - coach of the Belleville senior Redmen. Since the day when he scorned the pabulum and ranched per a shillelagh instead, he has played on three provincial championship teams in the realms of football, hockey and baseball.

A versatile cuss, is this Wilson. And he's modest with it. He still has his first bass while wearing diapers, kicked his first convert wearing rompers instead of moleskins and scored his first hockey goal when he was scarcely big enough to chin himself on the puck.

Sport has been all sport for the likeable Pat. There was a more serious game in which he played a prominent part when Hitler went out for the World Championship. Pat served four years in the RCAF as a flying officer and is credited with a tour of operations over Europe. At one time he was sports officer at the Mountain View Air Station in the days when Vic Bagnato was around with his famous "Bombardiers" girls softball team which won the district championship.

Pat learned his junior baseball with the Toronto Kiwanis Club later associating with the G. and W. Grads which won the Ontario title in 1934. With him was the well-known "Smokey" Smith now with the Smith's Falls Royals. Later he went to the London Majors and up north with the McIntyre Mines team.

Wilson played junior hockey with the British Consols of Toronto under Joe Primeau, and broke in with Billy Taylor. Later he joined the Atlantic City Seagulls next to Baltimore after a year on the seaboard. He returned to Ian Johnson where he played with Walter Gerow, Jr. and just before entering the RCAF played with the Fort Worth, Texas, team. Came another year with Baltimore then out to Prescott, California. He jumped to the American League joining the Washington ?????, . with which he stayed for two years before joining the St. Louis Flyers. Then he went to the Maple Leafs team, the St. Mike's Monarchs with which he performed last season.

He played on the champion St. Mike's football team back in the days when Johnny Crawford, Bill Stukus, Freddie Hunt, Pal McCreary and Harold Jackson starred.

Pat married the former Dorothy May, of Oshawa and has a bonny daughter Bernadette (Bunny) just three and one-half years of age.

Pat joined the Redmen a week or so ago, and made his presence felt. He is a hard-hitting outfielder as well as a field general. His popularity is already apparent with the team and under his guidance and playing generalship, the Redmen should be in for a good season in this, their "reorganization" year.

PICTON HERE TODAY!

Coach Wilson will start "Cuffer" Noakes against the Picton Athletics in the home opener at Exhibition Park this afternoon. The big left-hander will face clever Frankie Dyer in what should be an outstanding tussle. The same line-up will go against the Wright-Fraser gang that defeated the Batawa Shoemen Thursday night. While Wilson was more or less pleased with the team's effort he is not selling this Picton team short. The "Spanker" have a habit of making things nasty for the opposition, and they might do just that this afternoon. They showed plenty or hitting power against Joe Killoran's Napanee squad and they appear to be a better-balanced squad than that of the 1950 edition. However, Coach Wilson has the Redmen on edge and from their opening victory over Batawa are rarin' to make it two in a row at the expense of the crew from Belleville. Game at 3 p. m.

Richards, Freshman Leader Of Chicago White Sox, In Front For Manager of Year Honors

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Paul Richards is out front in the manager of the year race for his masterful job of piloting the amazing Chicago White Sox.

Rookie Richards inherited a chronic second division team but he has the Sox humming on all cylinders today.

The Sox, primarily a collection of players culled from other clubs, are riding the crest of an eight game winning streak today and breathing on the neck of the defending champion New York Yankees.

Only one player, rookie Jim Busby, who helped the Sox to a 6-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians last night, is a product of the Chicago farm system. All the others were either obtained in trades or bought from other farm systems.

Billy Pierce, who broke into the majors with Detroit, scattered 11 hits in gaining the nod over Indian ace Bob Lemon. The Sox collected 10 safeties including home runs by Ed Robinson and Phil Masi.

The Sox hopped on Lemon for three runs in the second inning and were never headed.

Pierce blanked the Indians until the sixth when Birdie Tebbetts belted a three-run pinch-hit double. The loss was Lemon's fourth straight.

The victory kept the Sox two games behind New York, as the Yanks defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 7-5.

Lefty Ed Lopat started for the Yanks and gained credit for his eighth victory without a defeat. Lopat was tagged for all the Sox for the first time this season when the A's rallied for three runs in the eighth inning.

The Yanks wiped out a 2-1 deficit with a four run rally in the third inning against loser Alex Kellner. Gerry Coleman's two-run single was the key blow of the rally. Gil McDougald socked a homer, double and single to lead New York's 10 hit attack.

Boston's up and coming Red Sox smeared the Washington Senators, 14-2. Chuck Stobbs coasted to his fifth victory allowing only six hits.

The Sox shelled Con Marrero and Alton Brown for 19 hits, Ted Williams paced the assault, driving in four runs and scoring three on a homer, two doubles and a single. The loss was Marrero's first in six decisions.

Home runs by Don Lenhardt and Johnny Bero led the St. Louis Browns to a 4-3 triumph over the Tigers in a night game at Detroit.

Won Game with Homer

Bero, a former Tiger, won the game with a home run in the seventh inning. The blow, his first of the year, snapped a 3-3 tie. Lenhardt connected with one on in the opening inning. Vic Wertz clouted two home runs for the Tigers.

Al Widmar went all the way to post his third conquest. He permitted 11 hits. Hal Newhouser gunning for his fifth straight victory, was the loser.

The Brooks upped their lead to three games by winning while the St. Louis lost to Cincinnati, 5-1.

Once again the home run was a big factor in the Dodger success. Campanella led the attack on Vern Bickford with his third homer of the year, a double and two singles.

Connie Ryan struck the decisive blow in an 11-inning struggle between Cincinnati and St. Louis with a grand slam homer off Red Munger in the 11th.

The New York Giants came from behind and downed the Phillies 8-5. The Giants shoved over five runs in the eighth inning. Whitey Lockman's two-run double was the big blow of the uprising.

Jimmy Carter Stops Williams To Win Title

New York, May 26—(AP)—Jimmy Carter, the mystery boy of boxing, held the world lightweight championship today and definitely declared he is ready to prove "I'm no cheese champ."

A comparative stranger even in his own home town, Carter, 20-year-old Harlem Negro knocked the crown of Ike Williams' groggy head last night when he stopped the weight-weakened defending champion in 2:48 of the third round but was leading on the scorecards of all three officials when referee Ruby Goldstein stepped in the bout as Williams staggered to the floor after taking a six-count.

— Told there of the possibility the NBA might not consider him as champion, Carter said "I'm going to give Williams a return bout and I'll knock him out quick the next time. And after Ike, I'll take on anyone who deserves a chance and can bring in some money."

The NBA, irked at Williams for his defection to the New York group, said Carter, rated 12th in its ratings, was not considered a proper opponent. A high-ranking NBA official, who asked not to be named, indicated however that Carter might be recognized if he agreed to meet certain challengers within a definite period.

The bitter, battered and glum ex-champion, who earned $34,000 today both eyes, said "I lost because I took off too much weight too fast. It will be different the next time."

They will probably meet in the garden within 60 to 90 days.

There were many skeptics who doubted whether Ike could ever make 135 pounds again. He had to make two trips to the scales to the weigh-in yesterday. He weighed 134½ the first time and had to sweat for an hour and a half to get off the excess weight.

Defending Champs Have Slim Hopes Of Repeating

Belleville Collegiate Institute, defending champions in the Central Ontario Track and Field meet, slated for this afternoon at Albert College grounds, have slim hopes at retaining their title.

Thirteen local and district collegiates will vie for the title seven up in the past two seasons by Big Red teams. Reason for the wide open race is the minute entry in the senior boys events with the collegiate having often to send in only two competitors in the whole field. Only Bruce Mercer and Harry Davis will be after honors in the high jump with Cameron's five foot, six inch effort expecting jumping looming large in the event. Davis will run in the senior mile as well.

In the intermediate boys' division Jack Mathews in the pole vault, and Jack Doig in the 100-yard dash shape up as strong contenders in their group.

However, coach Bradley has a strong contingent of relay material for the gun. Led by Bill Gault and Don Donaldson in the high jump, Lyman Cole in the pole vault and a relay team that copped the Eastern Ontario Track Carnivale meet in Kingston last week, the juniors are expected to give the opposition a hard go.

On the girls' side of the meet as incomplete entry in the senior ranks make the title race unlikely although Helen Weston, last year's senior champ is expected to repeat in the high jump, broad jump, and the sprints.

Violet Coulter, individual champion in the intermediate girls' section will again be in the running in the jumps and sprints and is expected to lead a packed intermediate team to victory. The junior girls' division is filled, with the Collegiate's hopes pinned on a bevy of smart stepping sprinters.

No word has been received about the entry of the other schools in the meet but Albert College, Campbellford and Wellington shape up as the teams to beat.

Three Scratched In Epsom Derby Leaving 41 Colts

(By The Canadian Press)

The field for the 172rd running of the Epsom Derby was cut to 41 Friday by the scratching of three colts—including one which died last November.

At the same time one of the big doubts about the mile-and-a-half classic next Wednesday was cleared up with the announcement that champion Jockey Gordon Richards will ride Sir Victor Sassoon's Stokes.

Meanwhile the Aga Khan decided to rely solely on Praise Do Bois the second and look Nasrullah Mahzkrakth out of the race.

The third scratched was Fast Anchor, a dead Irish horse listed among the final acceptors by mistake.

Phil Marchildon, former Major League pitcher released earlier this season by Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League has been signed by Guelph Maple Leafs of the Intercounty Baseball League.

General manager Frank Gouge announced the signing Friday night. Marchildon, who has been hampered by a nervous ailment in recent years, may make his first start Tuesday when Brantford Red Sox play in Guelph.

Marchildon, a native of Penetanguishene, Ont., played with Philadelphia Athletics in the American League.

It was his left collar bone, the same he broke in a fall Feb. 5 at Santa Anita Park.

A verdict in favor of Celeveland Indians' baseball pitcher Bob Feller was returned in superior court Friday in a $35,000 breach of contract suit brought against the fireballer by a Boston shirt firm.

Feller was sued for damages by John K. Sherman and John W. Ward for the (Jen-U-Wear) company. They contended Feller failed to fulfill a personal appearance contract in connection with the sale of their shirts June 28, 1948.

New Jersey's law against sports bribes was strengthened Friday to impose stiffer penalties on persons offering inducements for losing efforts.

Law amendments raised the maximum penalties for convicted tamperers to a $1,000 fine and a 10-year prison sentence. Previous limits were $5,000 fins and a seven-year jail term.

Jesse McEwen, Michigan University's crack middle distance star splashed to a record of 4:09 Friday night at the big track team championships in rain-soaked Dyche Stadium.

McEwen, winning by five yards over Ohio State's Len Truex, bettered the 1936 performance of Mel of 4:10.8 set by Indiana's Don Lash.

FINE STILL STANDS

Philadelphia, May 26 — (AP)— Ford Frick, National League president, said yesterday Leo Durocher's $100 fine still stands after the hearing requested by New York Giants on the Durocher - umpire Lon Warneke rhubarb at St. Louis last Sunday.

Frick said he met secretly with the Giants manager and owner Horace Stoneham yesterday at his league office.

"The fine still stands" said Frick. "It was a friendly chat. They asked me questions and I cleared things up for them."

Point Anne Wins Opener Against Ramsay Paint

Point Anne Consentuon, last year's Commercial Softball League champions, opened their title defence with a 9-5 win over Ramsay Paint scored 5-4, in an 8-inning game at Ramsay Corners and at Point Anne.

Jack Carpenter, who erected a 4-0 lead in the first three frames with the aid of several Ramsay errors, relief pitcher Jim Paintmen, saw their margin wither away in the sixth and seventh innings, and then came through with the clincher in the eighth.

Some sensational fielding by the Point Anne crew was the big factor in the win. Murney Green's running one handed theft of Maurice LaPorte's home run-bound ball in the fourth inning with two aboard was worth the price of admission alone. Tom Buchanan and second baseman L. Cole combined to end the game with a double play.

Ramsay's finally broke into the scoring column in the sixth with Carl Wood starting the parade with a single to centre field. Glen Lumbers walked and Jack Scanlan belted both home with a standing up triple. Ray Lumbers grounded to second and was safe on a fielder's choice as Scanlan was thrown out sliding at the plate. Claude Carr chipped in a double to centre field to park Lumbers' third. A wild pitch scored Lumbers. LaPort walked and Morocek slammed a long one to centre field but Carr failed to come in from third. Junior Young popped to short to end the rally.

Pitcher Pat Marsch scored the winning tally in the eighth. He singled, went to second on Eddie's choice and scored on Murney Green's double down the right field foul line.

Smiley Morocek toiled the distance for Ramsay's giving up five walks, being picked for nine hits and five runs. He struck out six.

Pat Marsch, pitching ace of the Pointers, notched his first win of the season. He struck out four and surrendering eight hits.

Morocek with two doubles in the field, and Scanlan with a single and a triple in five chances led the Paintmen at the plate.

Hurling Staff Keeps Ottawa Giants in Race

(By The Associated Press)

Ottawa's brilliant pitching staff is keeping the Giants in the thick of the International League pennant race.

George Bamberger came up with the latest gem last night as he hurled Hornets to a 2-0 two-hit triumph over the runner-up Rochester Red Wings.

Vic Power and the fifth by a Giant roundsman. It also was the third two-hitter registered by a Giant pitcher. Giant pitchers also have come up with two one-hitters.

Bamberger and Rochester's Jack Fazzholz were locked in a scoreless duel until the eighth when the Giants scored. Neal Wallington drove in Ziggy Jainski with a fly ball. Vic Power added Fazzholz' five game winning streak. The Giants' two runners trail pace-setting Montreal by five games.

The third-place Syracuse Chiefs moved to within a game of Rochester as Jack Griffore turned back Toronto Maple Leafs 5-2.

Vic Power and newcomer Whitey Platt drove in all of Syracuse's runs. Power knocked in three on a single and homer and Platt the others on a pair of singles. Lew Morton and Fred Collins homered to account for Toronto's tallies.

Game Fish and Temperatures

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

The longer I travel about the country in the sincere but often fruitless quest of outsize game fish, the more it is impressed upon me that temperatures are a vital determining factor in your success — or lack of it.

It doesn't seem to make much difference where you go or how many fish are in the waters in which you fish, if the weather is unfavorable, you are not apt to have very good fishing.

Last March I drove down to the Florida Keys to enjoy some of the superlative fishing they have in those waters. As stated in an earlier news story, the weather was unseasonably cold for those sub-tropical latitudes.

Bonefish are warm-water fish and they do not like chilly temperatures any better than I do. With the temperatures on the shallow flats too low for their liking, the fishing was not good.

Then one day came a phone call. Mr. Lee Smith, manager of the famous Everglades Rod and Gun Club at Everglades, Florida, wanted us to come over for a few days of fishing.

This was good news. To anyone who has sampled the fishing in the back-beyond places among the Ten Thousand Islands it seemed highly unlikely that anything but good fishing could be found, regardless of temperatures.

So we drove over to Everglades. On the way we stopped to try for snook in the canal beside the Tamiami Trail. In the chilly wind we fished industriously for about two hours. Result — one small snook.

Cold Weather Promised

Once installed in the Everglades Rod and Gun Club, we checked the weather reports. The weatherman promised cold weather for the next few days. So what? We went into a delicious dinner and refused to worry about weather reports.

That night I slep under three blankets — and thought I was in South Florida. The next morning, shivering slightly, I put on the only warm clothes I had with me — a sleeveless sweater and a light wool overshirt. The temperature? Forty-eight degrees above zero.

Lou Smith had engaged Boss Brown to take us fishing. His small name is Lonnie, and he but not many people seem to know it. Everybody calls him Boss.

Boss is just about tops in his fishing grounds. He knows them and the weather and the fish. In that Labyrinthian maze of mangrove keys and tidal rivers, based on the maps as the Ten Thousand Islands, he can tell you a lot about blindfolded.

To me, one mangrove key looks much like the others. To Boss, each one looks different and most of them have names. After the first hour of wondering where I was I simply gave up and left it to Boss to find the way. Even before darkness and the mosquitoes overtook us.

After breakfast that first morning we strolled down to the landing to talk with Boss. Perhaps that is a misstatement; you don't talk "with" Boss. You talk "at" him, mostly. He is about as garrulous as the Sphinx.

Cold Not Good

In response to various queries about fishing Boss finally broke down. "Cold weather ain't good," is what he said. He left it to draw our own conclusions.

As night fell, however, Boss knew of several hot spots that were not often visited. He took to one of them. To get there we had to travel through several mangrove tunnels. The water looked fishy, all right — dark water, several feet deep, under overhanging mangroves all along the entire shore line.

From just such waters in 1949 two of us in one day managed to extract over two hundred snook, using fly rods and large streamer flies. A few were kept for table fare but most of them were released. Not only that, but we hooked and lost many kingsize baracuda who broke our 20-pound leader points among the mangrove roots with evident ease.

So we started fishing. There was a minor Solunar Period in progress that morning and we did manage to pick up a few snook. They were small fry. They were not in evidence. Reluctantly Boss started the outboard motor and we sailed back to the big boat.

That afternoon, in another equally good location but without a Solunar Period to help us, we caught almost a complete blank. At last we gave up and came back to the club.

Three Tarpon

The next day was somewhat warmer and we did manage to hook three tarpon during the morning minor Solunar Period. Boss, as usual, made no comment, but they could see that he was worried.

After several hours of fruitless casting I filled up the tank of the little motor. Then he took time out to confide in us.

"This next place is plenty bad. Watch out for trees and logs."

That proved to be one of the most profound cases of understatement that I have encountered in many years. He started the motor and pointed the nose of the skiff directly into the mangroves.

What a trip that was, through about two miles of twisting channels, now way frequently barred by logs and overhanging trees. At last we emerged into a crystal "lake" which I am sure is not fished more than once or twice a year.

Filled with renewed hope we cast those lovely shadow lures. Now and again a small snook would reward our efforts, but that was all. Lunch at Boss and he smiled and shook his head, Then he looked at his watch.

I knew that a major Solunar Period was scheduled for late afternoon, around 4.15, to be exact. The shadows were lengthening and there was not much time left.

Fish in Quantity

Boss started the motor and took us to the final spot which was reached, as usual, through a long narrow mangrove tunnel. It was beautiful water and it gave every promise of holding fish in quantity.

"Last time I was here," said Boss, "two rods took over 50 head of snook in less than an hour, some of 'em eight ten pounds."

For about 20 minutes, right at the start of the major Solunar Period, we had the only good fishing of the entire trip. Then we cruised back to the big boat and arrived at the landing well after sunset.

Our score for the two days was 78 snook, six redfish and three small tarpon — good fish in open waters but better by far than any of the other boats.

I know those waters fairly well and I have fished them when conditions were favorable. Given 85 or 90 degrees of air temperature with the water in the middle 70's and I will lay a small wager that Boss Brown and I, using only one fly rod and fly rod lures, can hook at least 150 fish in that same area in one day's fishing.

Some sunny day, in the not too distant future, when weather and water conditions are right — not cold — I plan to do exactly that.

KITCHENER WINS

(By The Canadian Press)

Kitchener Legionnaires used 13 hits to blank St. Thomas Legion 16-0 in one of the three Intercounty senior league games played last night.

Youthful righthander Roly La Rouche hurled a tight three-hitter as Legionaires fanned St. Tomas to keep the Legion winless in seven starts.

In other games, London Majors went to visit and defeated Tweeters 8-4 while the league-leading Waterloo Tigers were in Guelph bashing the lowly Maple Leafs their fifth straight loss 6-3.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You never know from where you sit. When an opponent opens the bidding and you have a strong hand your partner is not expected to have much. But you never can tell.

Such strength as partner has may not look good to him all by himself. But if you tell him exactly the kind of hand you have, he will know best what to do with what he has.

If the opening bid is two in a suit or the defensive bid is an overcall in opponent suit, partner needs nothing to bid. He must make a responding bid of some kind regardless of his holding.

If his defensive bid is a jump overcall partner passes with less than two tricks. But with two tricks or more partner makes a bid of some kind and thus says they have a game.

♥9 8 6 5 2
♦A 6 5 3
♣A K

It is not so hot. Even with two aces and a king, it is not good for a bid by itself. But suppose opponent opens with one heart and partner says two spades. Your hand suddenly looks good.

The two spade bid by partner was a jump overcall. By such a bid he promises eight tricks with a spade suit that is rebiddable. Thus, your three small spades are adequate support.

Your hand contains four tricks with the eight tricks shown by partner, or ten 13 tricks. With support for partner's suit, you can set tricks enough for a small slam in spades.

Not only that. You also have two aces and a king. So, you could bid four no-trump, the ace and king convention. Known, or later. Partner must respond to this.

When partner tells you how many aces and kings he has, you can decide the final contract. But you know it will be in spades.

Rules when you heed them, help when you need them.

107 GUERRILLAS KILLED

Kuala Lumpur, Malaya, May 26 (Reuters) — The grim "hunt-the-terrorist" campaign in Malaya reached a record score last month with 107 guerrillas killed, many of them high-ranking communists, it was announced today.

This brings to 2,000 the total killed since the anti-guerrilla war began in earnest 2½ years ago.

Terrorists killed 65 civilians, how police and troops and 60 civilians and they caused great damage by slashing rubber trees and burning ambushed trucks and cars.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 26 — (AP) — Is grouse in season? I'm in trouble if it isn't, because today I feel like grousing.

So here goes . . . aren't the movies going overboard on the unsympathetic portrayals of newspaper men? In the Ben Hogan blog, the heavy was a nasty golf columnist, the like of which I've never seen. In a new pro football flicker, the villain is again a columnist who picks on Paul Douglas because he's a has-been.

But the biggest blow comes in "Ace in the Hole," in which Kirk Douglas plays the blackest dyed-in-the-wool louse in journalistic history . . . and while we're on the subject, hasn't Douglas gone overboard in his playing of heels? He can't be that much of a rat all the time.

The Voice's Troubles

Nothing gives me a bigger case of the yawns than reading about Frankie Sinatra's troubles with Ava Gardner . . .

Ever wonder what happened to the Frank Merriwell ending in which the football hero scores the winning touchdown in the last minute of play? It's in "Come On, Who Came Back." Paul Douglas carries the ball.

TV Woes

Wonder why such a polished gent as Bob Hope seems so nervous of TV . . . West coast viewers continue to complain about being shafted off in TV programming. They see kinescopes of eastern shows that have already been seen by others. Some are photographed by candle-light. Also, they are subjected to dated programs. They're getting Mother's Day shows now.

How about a show with that off - color burlesque routine in the new Danny Kaye film? . . . It should be. I don't shed any tears over the movie executives who are losing their salaries cut from $4,000 to $2,000 . . . I wish they had told the real story of Carnea in the blog instead of the glossy Hollywood version. Truth is more exciting than fiction.

Anglo-Iranian Oil Dispute May be Settled

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

(Associated Press News Analyst)

The Anglo-Iranian oil dispute remains a dangerous threat to international peace though it still is possible to say guardedly that it is susceptible of compromise.

This controversy revolves about the Tehran government's sensational nationalization of the huge petroleum concern, over the protests of Britain which owns the majority of stock. Britain long has operated this oil field and is dependent on the oil to maintain her vital middle eastern position. The United States also is concerned and, to a less degree, so are other western powers.

Naturally Britain is fearful that this Iranian oil may slip away from her, especially since the Iranians themselves are incapable of working the field. This raises the danger of neighboring Russia stepping in, since she long has had a yearning eye on this wealth of oil, as well as on a warm-water port on the Persian Gulf. The current position on thumbnail is this:

1. The Tehran government last Thursday fixed a seven-day deadline (in effect an ultimatum) for the petroleum concern to open conversations on ways and means of turning the company over to the Iranian government.

2. Yesterday, Iran's aged premier, Mohammad Mossadeh declared that Iran will "fight to the end" to carry out the nationalization. And he would be said to be.

3. Britain announced she was sending her tough 16th Parachute Brigade to the island of Cyprus, within easy striking distance of Iran.

4. State Secretary Dean Acheson has appealed to Britain and Iran to sit down at a conference table and work out a peaceful settlement.

5. Thus far Iran has rejected all proposals for settlement by arbitration.

What Can Britain Do?

This brings us up to the question of what Britain is justified in doing to maintain her position. Would she, for example, be warranted in sending military forces into Iran to protect these great oil interests?

Britain does not question the right of any government to nationalize commercial concerns. However, London does maintain that under the contract the Iranian government in effect agreed not to exercise any such nationalization rights.

A widespread feeling in Britain seems to be summed up accurately by Anthony Eden, Deputy Conservative leader, who said that the country has been pushed around a little too much of late." He said that international obligations are being flouted in Iran, and added:

"Giving away just international rights doesn't win peace. That is appeasement at its worst. It is bad for us and bad for other countries, and it is bad for peace."

Well, assuming that this is the sound argument what may we expect Britain to do? At this writing well-informed sources lean to the belief that while Britain means business, she isn't likely to take military action unless the lives of British Nationals or the oil properties are threatened.

That is to say, if the Iranian government is capable of maintaining order, Britain may be expected to hold her hand. However there is danger of extremists — inflamed by red agents —getting control and precipitating a revolt. That might bring British troops into action.

This is a moment of watchful waiting, but it is justifiable to repeat that Britain appears to mean business. And it is a grave crisis.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, May 27

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Want the seeds of doubt and you will be both unhappy and find things to doubt about; plant seeds of good will and understanding and you will soar high, know true contentment.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Step up your personality, e'en if it may be bright; develop one of your talents and have an eye on the purse-strings and you will be soundly efficient. Attend church.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Be as you honestly can. Praise will come naturally and in surer manner later. Smile; be busy.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—The Taurus today—you aspects, while not actually the same, call for like action considering your past and leanings. Keep in trim by healthy outdoor exercise; pray at church.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Don't forget old friends or loved ones in your bent for travel, new and. Not that you do not love deeply, but you sometimes let duty slip by heedlessly. Review: Where am I going?

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Hurry, if you must, but not with anxiety. Let little discrepancies pass unnoticed; point out only which pleases. Use the tact with which you were born.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)— May be less pleasing in spots than you would like, but there are advantages, blessings for you who will keep self and others in enthusiastic frame of mind. Go to church.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Artistic things, bright hues, for church, humanitarian, social activities highly sponsored. First seek comfort and encouragement from your church services. Make time for fun and rest.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Better go slowly at first rather than have to retrace steps and be sorry. Look the day and its likely activities over before starting. Where can you cut nonentities? Do! Pray.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)— Accept help, also advice in good faith—that is, accept the giver's good will, of course investigate whether that advice is good for you. Never be an idler, keep usefully busy.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—You can do much for yourself and others this mixed day. Some influences invigorating, others may seem to balk at your every effort. Keep your own system running smoothly. Attend your church.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces) — Hurry and anxiety should be outlawed; sometimes reasonable hurry — but without strain, nervous tension — is necessary. Give thought to coming week and its activities. Use this day well.

YOU BORN TODAY have much talent and vitality. Also have ability to put your own, and other's, good ideas and plans into progressive use. Fine! If you cultivate and daily apply these assets. If you don't, you may lose, but are more responsible for wasted time than another of lesser talents. And remember, it is never too late in life to make fresh starts. Give your better self full upper hand always; listen to others, seek associates wisely, heed advice of family, true friends. Have you tried your ability to promote, or for music?

Marmora — The annual dinner meeting of the Holy Name Society was held in Sacred Heart Hall on Wednesday evening, May 23rd, at 7 o'clock with the catering done by the Catholic Women's League. There was an attendance of nearly 100 members and guests.

The chairman of the meeting and president of the Society, Charles T. Nicholson, welcomed all, especially the visiting [illegible] Very Rev. H. J. Farrell, the guest speaker, Rev. Dr. Pickett of Halifax; [illegible] A. Hagan, of Stirling; Rev. J. Walsh, Principal of the new Separate School, Kingston, and Rev. J. Moss, of Woodstock, brother of Roy Moss, of this village.

Guest Speakers

The Rev. Rev. J. A. O'Neill, pastor, introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. Dr. Pickett, who inspired the gathering with his spirited and vigorous address on "The Gift of Faith".

Reeve, Vincent M. Lynch, moved a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker, which was seconded by Mr. L. Begley, principal of Marmora High School.

Enjoyable Radio Program

The Very Rev. H. J. Farrell then spoke briefly after which the program chairman, W. A. Mantle, Peter Nicholson, Carl Johnston, Dr. Murray and W. A. Shannon, with Mrs. Hugh Brady as accompanist.

James Black also gave one of his inimitable monologues which was much enjoyed. Mrs. Hugh Brady sang Rosewig's "Ave Maria," with Mrs. Jo Murray at the piano.

WOULD GIVE BLOOD TESTS

Toronto, May 26 (CP) — The Canadian Red Cross and Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children are prepared to give blood tests to every prospective mother in Ontario to determine if she has an RH negative blood factor that could cause her baby's death at childbirth, Dr. John F. McCreary told the Ontario Medical Associations annual convention Friday.

Dr. McCreary said this identification before birth would make it possible to start treatment at the birth of children whose fathers have a positive RH factor and whose mothers have an RH negative factor.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma made hotcakes and little sausidges this morning, being pop's favorite breakfist, and he started to fold up his newspaper to go to the office, saying to ma, My dear, the only way to express my appreciation for the poetic bewty of that feast is by rush rite out and send you a box of flowers.

Now William you'll do nuthing of the kind the kiss, ma said. I didn't make those hotcakes and sausidges for flowers, you silly thing. I made them for you, she said, and pop said, That's a lovely sentiment worthy of a lovely woman whose lovely hotcakes will linger in my memory without effacing the memory of the lovely hotcakes that have gone before, any more than a perfect sunset can efface the memory of perfect sunsets of the passed.

Why William, how nice, ma said. Your appreciation is ample reward as far as I am concerned, though naturally no sane woman would actually scorn flowers that are directly directed to her, she said, and pop said, I know what you mean, my dear, and all day at the office I'll be boyed up by the thawt that my innocent pleasure has filled you with sutch sattisfaction that it would probably an any climate send you flowers.

Well yes, of course, naturally, I mean I suppose so, ma said, and pop said, So, instead of that, I'll bring the flowers home with me.

Now William, really, I mean really, ma said.

Saying it like somebody feeling better instead of worse, and she quick kissed him goodbye before he had a chance to kiss her goodby first.

End of A Chapter

By Edwin Ruff

Thinking it was [illegible] Alice persuaded herself to be [illegible]. Molly had not simplified her remarks. She had to live at the Halleck's indefinitely No doubt the less she knew about their private lives, the better.

But presently Alice Pine found still another interest in the Halleck family. It was the small, tatty-haired Rick.

The Halleck's maid Stella, a fresh-faced, buxom female indigenous to the village of Tolliver, accustomedly took Thursday off. On this particular Thursday, Muriel Halleck began tidying her table in the morning.

"I'm elected today," she told Alice Pine. "Brent's off somewhere and I do wish he wasn't. Not that I don't adore being with Rick. But I'm really in a very important part of my novel."

Alice hesitated. But this might be still another way to make herself useful. "Why not let me?" she said.

Muriel's eyes lighted. "Would you? I . . . Oh, no. I can't return you into a baby sitter."

"Even if it's my own suggestion?"

"Am right, darling," Muriel was manifestly grateful. "I warn you though. He's a cheerful little handful."

"So long as he's cheerful," Alice laughed.

Rick was. Perhaps Alice constituted a novelty. Perhaps, too, she was more resourceful than the phlegmatic Stella. In any case, they had a successful afternoon.

Exceptional shells were discovered on the beach. Time slipped by while she showed Rick how to construct an intricate sand castle. Seagulls were fed on crusts thoughtfully brought along by Alice and a pirate's hideaway piled upon. She managed to return him in high good humor.

"You're wonderful," Muriel said, blinking slightly. "Half the time he's a perfect little devil after Stella brings him in."

Alice said: "That's hard to believe." But it was evident that Stella lived in ignorance of such lovely things as seashells and sand castles.

Thereafter, at Rick's vociferous behest, Alice took over on Thursdays. On one of these excursions, they unexpectedly encountered Brent.

He was hunched over an easel, in a little cove about a mile from the house. His profile was toward Alice, his left eye squinted appraisingly at the canvas. His feet were invisible, as if force of concentration had driven them deep into the sand.

Alice half-turned, wondering if she could slip away unnoticed. But Rick spied Brent and moved in a rush, whooping enthusiastically.

Brent said, without looking up "You act ready to fly."

"I am, rather."

"Hey!" His brush added another stroke.

"Oh," Alice, said, "Maybe I didn't want to trespass again."

He gave his short laugh. "Never forgave me for that, eh?"

Rick protected himself into the conversation, Proudly he displayed hands oozing with slimy substances gleaned at the water's edge. "Look!" he commanded.

"Why, darling, they're beautiful," Alice said, rather fatuously.

Brent chuckled. "I suppose it's part of your job to say these foolish things. What you ought to do is make him chuck that muck away and wash his hands."

Suddenly Alice got mad. There was utterly no reason for Brent's constant sardonic attitude.

"Why shouldn't he have the stuff?" she snapped. "And I'll wash him when we get home."

Brent stared at her in surprise. Then abruptly he got off his camp stool and sat down in the sand. Rick had scampered off.

"You know, Alice," Brent said slowly, "you're a lifesaver. Believe it or not."

"Am I?" She was still angry and his quizzically-raised brows didn't help. "Whose life?"

"Could be mine."

"I don't understand." Her eyes were steely-blue now.

"Well . . ." Brent strained sand through his fingers, "you save either Muriel or me an afternoon of boredom. Or nine nths off our hands."

She felt that it was not what he had started to tell her. She said: "You sound as if you and Mrs. Halleck didn't like taking care of Rick. And that isn't true in her case."

"But in mine, eh?"

She bit her lip. He had a faculty, a gift, for annoying her. "You brought this up yourself, Mr. Halleck. Besides, I'm only an employe, not a critic. Your opinions—"

"Sit down, Alice," Brent said irrelevantly.

"But—"

"Sit down! It's nice sand."

"Very well." She sat down abruptly, suddenly long slim legs under her.

For several seconds Brent appeared to be working at his painting. Moving the brush here and there, touching up a line and finally moving his head as if surveying his job. Then he cleaned his brushes, faced Alice and smiled.

"So you dont think I like being with the kid?" Brent said.

"I didn't say that."

"No. But you inferred." He was dogged, persistent, like a child.

"Listen Mr Halleck . ."

"Make it Brent'! Muriel wouldn't mind. Not after all these weeks of unswerving formality."

Alice Pine looked at Brent Halleck almost pityingly. His habitual mockery did not deceive her, unconsciously, anyone else, it was only a poor camouflage for an inner and esoteric discontent.

"We were talking about Rick," Alice reminded him.

"So we are. Well, your ideas to the contrary, I'm pretty fond of the little hoodlum. Especially since I'll never—" He stopped, face away from her. "You were right a moment ago, Alice. I brought this up. I shouldn't have. For over a month Muriel has had allowed herself to be avidly curious about Brent. But now she was strangely reluctant to continue the longest conversation she'd ever had with him. She did not understand the reluctance. It was almost—though the idea seemed incongruous—as if she were afraid of what Brent might say to her. He started to rise.

His hand touched her arm, lightly. "Please don't go! You'll be going soon enough, in the—the normal course of events."

The remark might have made her more ill-at-ease had he not smiled suddenly. An open smile, free of bitterness and cynicism. It changed the whole character of his face. Momentarily, he looked boyish, even happy.

"I may go sooner than I expect," she said. "Muriel's simply raving through her book."

Brent frowned. "Sorry to hear that."

"Sorry? When it'll probably be a best seller? You ought to be very proud of her, Mr. Hal—er, Brent."

"Oh, I am." He was back to normal, sarcasm riding his tone. "Cleverest woman I know."

Alice shrugged. It had occurred to her some time ago that, possibly, Brent was a trifle jealous of his wife's success. She got up, despite his hand on her sweater sleeve. "May I look at your picture?"

He waved negligently. "Help yourself. You won't like it, though."

The scene beyond the easel was one of lightness and brightness. Blue water aglint with sunshine; a tiny island not far off shore, green, fresh-looking; the distant white triangle of a sail. But Brent Halleck had chosen to see these things darkly.

He had painted water nearly black, a sinister sweep of it. The trees of the island were dull, and twisted grotesquely. In the background sailed a desolate gray ghost-boat, instead of the clean live thing of reality.

"Well?"

She turned from the canvas. "Want my real opinion?"

"No other's any good."

"All right. It doesn't look much like Long Island Sound on a wonderful clear day."

"So?" His eyes were amused. "Maybe I don't think it's a day's so swell."

That, Alice thought, was probably the truth. Brent, with his somber perversity, wouldn't be impressed by blue-and-gold weather. Storminess doubtless suited him better.

"I suppose," she said, "that it's all in the way you see things. Now I have to go."

"No hurry." But he made no active effort to detain her.

She called to Rick and went away. Her longest conversation with Brent Halleck had left him a bit enigma.

If Brent preferred storminess, that night was apt to his order. By dusk an ominous cloudbank had gathered in the east and thunder muttered distantly. The Sound was now a restless dun-colored waste. Alice and Muriel stayed doubt Canfield and Brent read a novel, during an evening in which thunder crept closer. Through the living room windows jagged lightning was interlittently visible, gashing the sky.

Once, after a blinding flash, Muriel shivered. "Brent," she said, "to pull the curtains!"

He gave her a twisted grin. "Afraid? It's nowhere near us yet."

"Do you always have to argue Brent!" Her annoyance crept into Muriel's voice.

Brent got up, pulled window cords. "Now that wasn't much of an argument, was it?"

"But why trouble to say anything?"

"Oh, I'm the talkative type." Surreptitiously Alice shook her head. Brent Halleck certainly extended himself to be difficult.

At last the Canfield game was finished and Alice excused herself and went upstairs.

The lightning and thunder continued an accompaniment to the rain and it seemed as if the wind grew stronger, when at last Alice crawled into bed.

But Alice was tired and the storm did not keep her awake.

The full fury of the storm struck after midnight. Alice wakened to a stunning thunderclap and a world gone livid. The lividness vanished as the lightning flickered out. Thunder trailed off in a growling rumble, like the voice of a drunken giant lurching away cursing.

For a moment she lay there, taut and quivering. The blast had apparently wrenched her nerves into a knot. Gradually she relaxed, turned on her side.

The sharp screams came then.

Alice Pine jerked up in her bed. She sensed a cold crawling fear along the back of her neck. The screams continued. They were awful like the cries of some small animal in torment. She listened, bewildered and very frightened. Afterwards, she never knew why she had not thought instantly of Rick. . . .

Alice flung back the covers and was out of bed in one quick motion. Her dressing-gown lay over a chair. She grabbed it, stumbled over her high-heeled mules, but did not bother with them.

What had happened seemed clear to her now. The crash had brought Rick awake in terror. And evidently neither Muriel nor Brent had heard him as yet. Alice's feet padded swiftly along the hall.

In the squarish house the hall made a right-angle turn before it reached the Halleck's rooms. Alice swept around this, and stopped dead.

Brent Halleck, tall, rather gaunt-looking in a gray robe, stood just outside of Rick's door. Around his knees clutching at the robe and howling pitifully, Rick moved in a kind of frenzied dance.

"Take it easy, little fellow,"

World Court Plan To Settle Dispute Refused by Iran

Observers Fear Extremists May Stage Lightning Coup

Teheran, Iran, May 28 — (AP) —Iran refused today to recognize the jurisdiction of the International Court in the dispute with Britain over nationalization of Iranian oil resources.

Deputy Premier Hossein Fatemi announced that the Iranian foreign office received a notification from the World Court of the complaint lodged Saturday by Britain and the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Asked for Arbiter

Britain earlier had notified Iran of referral of the dispute to the World Court at The Hague, asking that the United Nations-approved body name an arbiter.

The deputy premier said Foreign Minister Bagher Kezemi is preparing a notification from the Iranian government to the court denying its jurisdiction.

Meanwhile, Iran's communists intensified their subversive activities of heated nationalist emotions stirred by the oil dispute.

Red-front organizations scheduled country-wide mass meetings to "fight imperialistic oil companies." The government, headed by Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, was reported arranging for tanks, armored cars and special troops to maintain order.

Meanwhile non-communist Moslem fanatics, who have threatened a Holy war against the British-controlled Anglo - Iranian Oil Company grew more restive.

Still Doing Business

They pointed out that although Mossadegh fathered the nationalization law, which ostensibly added the properties of the $1,000,000,000 A.I.O.C. 26 days ago, the company's wells is doing business without interference.

Mossadegh is in further trouble because of the proposed cut in ruling royalties after passage of the law. These royalties make up most of Iran's income, and consequently the government is living from hand to mouth.

Observers fear that in the present unsettled atmosphere, either Right or Left extremists groups may stage a lightning coup and seize control of the country.

MOVED INTO SHANTY

Albion, N.Y., May 28 (AP) — It's only a shanty, but it's home to Mrs. Merle Tower, 32, recently voted this town's mother of the year, and her husband, parents of 11 children. They were evicted Saturday from a house here and moved into a shack on a nearby farm. A welfare worker said residents of Albion were afraid they'd get want the Tower family living there because they feared it would cause an increase in school tax rates.

Russia-Type Weapons Laid Down by Enemy

West Central Front Korea, May 28 (Reuters)— Modern Russian-type weapons have been seen before in the Korean war, are being laid down by thousands of Chinese surrendering on this front.

Allied units rounding up dejected prisoners have seized eight truckloads of these new weapons and their ammunition.

The booty in the last 24 hours has included recoilless rifles stamped 1950 — replicas of the American recoilless gun — heavy machine guns and tripods for use in aircraft, and Browning-type machine-guns mounted on small-wheel carriages.

The Americans have also captured powerful Russian - type fragmentation grenades and hundreds of new drum-type submachine-guns.

Party of 60 To Tour Sites Of Project

They will include 10 U.S. senators, members of the House of Representatives Public Works Committee, U.S. army engineers, representatives of the Canadian government headed by Transport Minister Chevrier and 34 newspaper men.

India's Top Bandit Chief Kindly To Women, Shares Loot With Poor

Rajkot, India, May 28—(AP)—The government of Saurashtra, a new Indian state composed of former princely holdings in the Kathiawar peninsula, has offered a reward of 50,000 rupees ($10,500) for the seizure dead or alive of India's top bandit chief.

He is Bhupat Khakwara, a 35-year-old British Indian whose him of at least 40 murders committed in the course of a campaign of terror against the inhabitants of 27 villages.

Sparsely-settled Kathiawar in western India affords a happy hunting ground for Bhupat, who is a crack shot and a skilled wild car driver.

Bhupat once served as a soldier in the "provisional government of Junagadh," where he worked for leader Samaldas Gandhi. At the time of partition revolt swept the area when Hindu residens of Junagadh opposed the action of the Nawab of Junagadh in joining Pakistan. Finally the Nawab fled to Pakistan leaving the Indian Union in control.

The bandit leader took up robbery as a profession following the end of this state of emergency. First he looted the homes of well-to-do farmers, shooting without hesitation whoever he was opposed.

Then he formed a bandit gang and began his attentions to the richer villages. Reports of his ventures always stress his kindliness and generosity with his "sharing" of his loot with the poor.

Unable to trap the fast-moving Bhupat, police officials enlisted the aid of the Indian army. Numerous traps were laid for his capture, but Bhupat, always warned by his associates, managed to escape.

Recently police spies brought back word that Bhupat is overconfident and boastful. He holds drinking bouts frequently, they say, and laughs at the effort of the law to capture him.

Canadian Troops in Sight Of 38th Parallel After Sunday Advance of Six Air Miles

By BILL ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

West Sector, Korea, May 28— (CP)—Troops from Quebec's Royal 22nd Regiment probed north of the 38th parallel into north Korea today.

The task body of the "Vandoo", a series of forced marches behind them, at last to mountain positions and relaxed.

With the Royal Canadian Regiment from London, Ont., also part of Brig. John Rockingham's 25th Infantry Brigade, the Vandoos advanced six map miles Sunday. That was six miles in a straight line — but troops probably marched twice that distance as they toiled up mountains and moved through valleys and along winding trails.

The Royal 22nd had relieved Turkish brigade troops east of Songu (Map 2). On a 1,000-yard front, the Vandoos undertook clearing operation from their starting point to the parallel.

The regiment advanced 15 map miles, varying more than 30 square miles of territory and capturing 21 Chinese. The cost was three men wounded.

Train Re-routed

The regiment had just one fight, a battle for a hill which the Chinese abandoned overnight before a second assault could be mounted.

Since the brigade kicked off Friday there had been nothing spectacular about the operation in pursuit of the Chinese. Chinese reds except the aggressiveness with which it was pursued.

It was a great hunt, with two teams matching wits to clear the hills and ravines of hostile troops.

It ended in a tie.

Tiring from the teams probed nooks and crannies, dugouts, or any places conceivably capable of hiding Chinese. They found abandoned sensitive to the hidden peril of mines and booby traps.

Everything indicated the speed with which the enemy decamped. Both outfits uncovered abandoned Chinese mules, complete with harness, scattered equipment and still-hot fires left by the fleeing foe.

A slight drizzle alternated with brilliant sunshine Sunday, following Saturday's heavy rain which flooded the advancing troops to the skin.

Lieut. Lorne Glendinning of Vancouver, young tank commander in the Strathcona marked over the hillsides, mused: "The whole thing makes you think of Italy doesn't it?"

One Burned Slightly

The only sounds in the area of the parallel were the heavy roars of distant tanks, the busy buzz of scurrying jeeps and occasional rifle shots. These were from troops shooting up possibly-occupied caves.

Surely only casualty was a soldier whose phosphorus grenade bounced back, burning him slightly.

To hasten the advance at one point, Rockingham commandeered jeeding Canadian and American tanks, trucks and jeeps—including his own—to carry the Canadian soldiers and lift them forward.

As the Canadians neared the Uniform Corridor, the enemy force dispatched ahead three days before, a Chinese officer rode his jeep through to the spot where Rockingham was following operations. Rockingham captured with him his territory only nominally enemy-held for information leading to the location of remaining enemy troops.

Later still, the Canadians watched the blue, green and darkbrown hills of North Korea glisten in its breeding and asked themselves: "How far now?"

Reaches Parallel

One of them already had decided to go further. Glendinning made a dash into Chinese Corridor and found the Canadian positions and dashed the following message back to his commanding officer, Maj. William Quinn, before returning to the parallel.

"This message comes to you from the parallel," he wrote.

Meanwhile, the 2nd Battalion, Light Infantry, hoped to join the Royal Canadians Canadian brigade soon. The Patricias were resting Saturday after five weeks in the line which ended with them operating with another brigade about 15 miles to the east of the 25th Brigade's sector. The Patricias were then notified that they would be rejoining the unit as soon as possible. This would be the second time that began last November when the Patricias left Fort Lewis, Wash., to go to Korea. The 25th arrived in Korea May 4.

Russian Jet Engine Superior To U.S. Types--Vandenberg

Washington, May 28 (AP)— Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg told senators today a Russian-built fighter plane used by the Chinese communists in Korea has a jet engine "superior to any we have."

Vandenberg, the air force chief of staff, made the statement at the senate inquiry into Korean war policy and the firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Vandenberg said the United States is operating with a "shoestring" air force and cannot afford to change its tactics on the bombing of Manchuria. He concurred in the orders to General Arthur not to bomb bases of the Yalu River—the border between Korea and Manchuria.

MacArthur urged the bombing of Chinese rail supply bases and troop concentrations in Manchuria as an effective way to check the war to the communists and avoid a "bloody stalemate" in Korea. He was in public advocacy of this strategy, plus a naval and economic blockade of red China and use of Chinese Nationalist troops, that led President Truman to dismiss him for his far eastern commands.

In reply to questions by Senator Russell (D-Ga.), Vandenberg said indications are that "mass production" of a very excellent aircraft are now a capability of the Russians.

Vandenberg also said he believes there are "reasonable possibilities" for negotiated peace in Korea without bombing of Manchuria.

The air force chief said the United States aircraft industry will be "hard pressed" to produce to do much of a job toward supplying the airplanes that we would need in a fight against a major opposition."

Asked whether whether the Russians built the MIG jet engine "or do we think it is an improvement on the British jet engine?" Vandenberg: "It is a very marked improvement of the almost obsolescent jet engine that was sold (by the British) to the Russians a year ago. It was made and developed in Russia possibly with the help of German technicians..."

700 FIREFIGHTERS BATTLE TO BLUNT HUGE FOREST FIRE

Raging Out of Control 35 Miles From Timmins

Timmins, Ont., May 28 — (CP) —More than 700 firefighters today battled to blunt the northward surge of a giant forest fire which in the last two days raced 34 miles from the Ogama district, 60 miles south of here, to cover more than 50,000 acres of birch, pine and dead timbers.

A shift in light winds, veering from the north, was forecast to lift any danger to this gold-mining city of 20,000 persons.

But the fire, largest in Ontario's northland since the disastrous 1947 blaze which swept suburbs, still was taking its toll of timber and had pushed stands of red and white pine in the dead end of the Timagami Forest Reserve.

District Forester Jim Taylor, in Cogama, launched an airborne counter-attack and planned to ring the blaze with a series of 25-man firefighting groups, landed a few miles ahead of the zoning to form a defence line.

"That does not mean the fire will be under control for a long shot," he said. "We might say it will be being, but it all depends on the weather."

Little rain fell during the weekend as the fire's six townships where the fire burned.

Scattered showers somewhere were reported in other Northern Ontario points where three fires were reported under control. But at least eight of the province's 50 worst fires remained out of control.

Rain Helped

Rain Saturday night helped firefighters bring under control a 2,500-acre bush fire 43 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie. A fire in Algonquin Park doubled in size. Firefighters had been brought in from Port Arthur and Geraldton after the fire exploded from its 500-acre area on Friday.

Two other fires — both of 250 acres — were brought under control in Blaiklock township, 48 miles northeast of Cochrane, and in Pitt township, 70 miles north of Kapuskasing.

All bush travel was banned in the Timagami Forest Reserve, hindered by dense brush and fresh blowdown. Aircraft were pressed, and two stripped-down Beechcraft were ordered into the area by Chief Fire Ryder Commission.

Another fire advanced for 48 hours after Friday from its original 100-acre site, whipped by south winds through 2,000 acres of dead wood from a 1941 fire.

11 Men and Woman Cling to Canoes For Three Hours to Escape Flames

Timmins, Ont., May 28—(CP) A party of nurses and 11 men clung to their overturned canoes in Loonwig Lake for three hours Saturday to escape the flames racing at them from inside timber.

A 50,000-acre forest fire that originated in the Cogama district, 65 miles south of here, destroyed their camping outfits and a 1,000-pound drilling outfit and personal belongings before it swept farther north.

The nurse, Mrs. Roy Poughney, and the 11 men comprised a Exploration Company prospectors party on a weekend visit with her husband.

"The flames moved in so fast we just had time to toss a few personal belongings into two canoes," Mrs. Poughney said. "It was so dark from the smoke you couldn't see 10 feet in front of you."

She said the wind and flames suddenly changed direction, forcing the party to leave the shore and the canoes were overturned.

We hung there until it pleased," she said. "We had to stay there three hours before it was safe to go ashore."

The tents were saved by submerging them in the water. A tractor also was saved by driving it into the lake.

The party managed to return to the island and spent a restless night watching the flames roar past them.

On Sinclair Lake, a crew of diamond drillers also was forced to take to the water for safety. The five men paddled up and down the lake Saturday night as the flames rolled past.

Foreman Jack Rusty Blakey and Jay Pipe tried to rescue both parties Saturday but were unable to see through the smoke.

They said an impenetrable pall of smoke rose 20 miles into the air and rose as high as 15,000 feet in the air. They could not see where the fire began or how it ended, they said.

Both parties were rescued by

War's Greatest Bag of Prisoners Taken by Allies

Reds Retreated When They Could Not Crack U.N. Lines

By OLEN CLEMENTS

Tokyo, May 28 (AP) —Communist resistance stiffened today as United Nations troops pushed deeper into communist Korea after taking the war's greatest bag of prisoners.

But Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet said the Chinese communists had lost their nerve and retreated when they couldn't crack the U.S. 2nd Division.

"He (the enemy) lost his nerve He just quit and hauled out," declared the U.N. ground commander.

U.S. Eighth Army headquarters announced 3,000 reds surrendered Sunday. Another 2,000 were taken last week.

Most of the 5,000 were captured in a great box-like trap, 25 miles across and 10 miles deep. The lid of the trap is the Hwachon reservoir with U.N. forces anchored at each side of Inje and Hwachon. Both are in North Korea.

U.N. forces drove new prongs Monday across the 38th parallel, strengthening the lid of the box in points. South Koreans smashed into Sakchang, 4 1-2 miles north of the parallel and 10 miles west of Hwachon. Americans moved up on their western flank. They met no stiffening resistance against advanced forces Monday. And fewer surrendered.

Push Beyond Inje

A strong allied task force shoved 10 miles beyond captured Inje into North Korea. It was turned back with withering fire from a road block south of the town of Hangye, nine miles north of the parallel. This U.N. force had driven from Hangye, 27 air miles south from which the allied frontline offensive jumped off last week.

With isolated exceptions, the reds were in full retreat.

But the retreat, "fast as it is," Van Fleet said, "is not all that it does not necessarily mean any end to the war.

"The end (of the enemy) will retreat I do not know," the U.N. ground commander said. "He still has plenty of reserves and great latent capabilities. He can smash us again if he wants to. But there's no denying his troops have low morale right now and they are very weary and ill-fed."

Two Drivers Face Charges After Toronto Boy Dies

Toronto, May 28 — (CP) — David Stone, 16-year-old cyclist struck by three motorists only minutes apart, died today.

Coroner Carter of suburban West Toronto was charged with leaving the scene of an accident and Samuel Dunbar of Port Credit, Ont., was charged with careless driving.

Police said the suburban Lakeview boy was knocked from his bicycle Saturday by a truck which failed to stop. Minutes later while spectators waited for an ambulance, an old-model car hit the boy and carried him 25 feet on the front bumper before bringing him to the road again.

Larry Ash, 12, riding along Highway No. 2 with David, said a panel truck swerved across the road, struck David's bicycle and tossed up the road without stopping.

"About five or six people gathered around David where he was kneeling on the side of the pavement," Larry said. "The car came along and knocked him down and went over his body."

Police said headlights on the car were poor and brakes faulty.

Five Injured, Three in Hospital As Fire Engine, Two Cars Crash

Trenton (Special)— Two men and a little girl are in Trenton District Hospital here as the result of the town's latest two-car, engine collision which took cars at the Dundas Street and Dufferin Avenue intersection yesterday.

Admitted to hospital were: George Ashley, 68, of Wellington, believed to be suffering from a fractured skull; Charles Clow, 45, of Batawa, injured right leg; and Margo Clow, nine, Batawa, injuries not yet determined. Mona Clow, 11, and Andrew Clements, two more passengers involved in the crash, escaped with a severe shaking up.

The fireman, checking a report of a grass fire by Dundas Street, said that the lights were changing as he entered the intersection. The fire truck driven by Mr. Clow car in the centre of the crossroad and veered off into the Ashley auto approaching from the south. The Clow car, an old model coupe belonging to Jim Stanton and passengers, was knocked over the curb and up on the lawn, by the impact with the 10-ton fire engine.

Damage to the front of the fire engine was estimated at between $2,000 and $3,000, while the total loss to the two cars was set at $700.

Trenton Station Now Key Base For Rescue Work

Trenton. — (Special). — The R.C.A.F.'s search and rescue organization at Trenton, which since 1946 has served as co-ordinator in the air and ground hunt for missing aircraft and persons lost in Ontario's bushlands, has been authorized by cabinet directive to take all marine distress incidents under its wing.

Steps to implement this new operation, designed to expedite rescue work on the Great Lakes and other inland waters, were taken Friday at a meeting of department of transport officials, department of fisheries, provincial police, R.C.M.P., the Canadian Marconi Co. and the R.C.A.F.

Recommendations introduced at the meeting will be placed before an inter-departmental committee for action. In charge of the committee will be Group Capt. Pat Fit. Lieut. Ronald Gilmour.

To put the new system in action, instructions will be issued to all federal government agencies, ships, radio stations and personnel before navigation gets underway.

Henceforth, when marine emergencies arise, civilians can either report to police or radio agents, or telephone directly to the co-ordinating centre at Trenton to hasten rescue efforts.

At present, transport department officials are working out a suitable method of radio communication and other methods of relaying the co-ordinating centre in cases of emergency.

The new system will in future relieve police of the responsibility of calling out civilian aircraft to aid in rescue work. Heretofore, rescue efforts have been delayed through haggling over who would be responsible for expense entailed in aerial search. Marine agents are to be authorized to call out civilian aircraft whenever needed.

Alert Soldier Assists Police In Men's Arrest

Intuition on the part of a soldier hitchhiker after a seemingly trifling did not seem just right, resulted in the apprehension early Saturday morning of two escaped men on suspicion of auto theft. The men are lodged in the Belleville jail awaiting police escort back to Montreal.

Shortly after sunrise Sunday the unidentified soldier came to the city police station and told Constable Ken Ingalls, on English model car bearing a Quebec license had picked him up on the highway. The soldier reported the men seemed very nervous and this led him to suspect the car may have been stolen.

Description of the car was given to the desk sergeant who in turn contacted the provincial police who stopped the car at Marysville. Police reported that the men admitted the car had been stolen two weeks ago in Montreal.

No charges have been laid here but the men will be held for Magistrate Lochhead, of Montreal, will be held for Montreal police.

Anti-Aircraft Guns Taking Heaviest Toll

Washington, May 28—(AP)—Modern, electronically-aimed anti-aircraft guns—and not the spectacular Russian-designed MIG 15 jet fighters—are taking the heaviest toll of American planes in the Korean war.

Of the more than 200 U.S. air force planes lost to enemy action in 11 months of war, the first majority has been downed by fire from the ground — everything ranging from rifle fire to heavy flak. Because the air force guards such details, the proportion of aircraft lost to flak and to enemy planes may not be stated.

The radar-ground gunners, using radar-directed weapons, have hit B-29 bombers at altitudes well above 30,00 feet in air raids during recent weeks.

This radar equipment, like the planes the Chinese and North Korean forces use, is presumed of Russian manufacture and much of it probably was copied from the substantial amounts of radar equipment given the Soviets by the United States and Britain during the Second World War. The three were allies.

The quality of communist anti-aircraft work raises a question, like that involving the enemy jet fighter planes, about who operates the radar-controlled guns. Highly-skilled technicians, not usually found among the peasant soldiers of Asia, are needed to operate and keep radar aiming equipment in repair.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

Buffalo, May 28—(AP)—Cattle 600, fairly slow, market about steady. Steer and heifer receipts included 14 loads, mostly Canadian. Calves 300; demand active, market steady. Good and choice handyweight calves 40.00-41.00

Hogs 650, demand active, market steady. Good and choice mostly truck hogs, 22.00-22.50; good sows 17.75-18.50.

Fourteen Persons Die Violently During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Fourteen persons lost their lives in fatalities in eastern Canada during the weekend, with nine of the deaths in Quebec, four in Ontario and one in Nova Scotia.

Three of the four persons who lost their lives in Ontario were drowned. Electrocution was cited for the other death in that province.

In Quebec, drownings resulted in three deaths, traffic accidents took three other lives and three persons died in an explosion, a train wreck and by asphyxiation. The Nova Scotia fatality was in a drowning accident.

Larry Hynes, 23-year-old assistant bartender at the Minawanni Hotel at Timagami, Ont., was drowned Sunday when a canoe upset in Lake Timagami on a fishing trip. Two companions swam to shore.

Alfred Roy, 36-year-old Sudbury miner, was drowned Sunday while fishing with five other Sudbury residents in the French River, 40 miles east of Sudbury. Their boat overturned in a sudden squall and all but Roy was rescued.

The overturning of a canoe in a squall in Lake Timagami led to the drowning of Sam Osborne, 19, of Toronto.

John Hutcheon, 37-year-old Hydro worker from Alderwood, near Toronto, was electrocuted at Hamilton. A boom he was operating came in contact with a high tension line.

Two in Montreal Area

Two of the Quebec drownings were in the Montreal area. Gilles Paradis, 11, fell into a water-filled quarry near his Montreal home. An unidentified man jumped off a bridge into Rivere Des Prairies.

Antoine Belvin, 28, was drowned at Riviere du Moulin in northeastern Quebec.

In the same district, Guy Gamours, 8, died after he was hit by a truck.

Claude Levielle, 20, of St. Philippe D'Argenteuil, Que., was killed when his motorcycle hit a calf on the highway.

Raymond Rivard, 37, of Farnham, Que., died after he was struck by an automobile.

Lucien Fournier, 32, of Montreal, was asphyxiated in his automobile at St. Michel, near Montreal.

Miss Borday, 60, also of Montreal, died in an explosion that wrecked a food products building at Daveluyville, Que., the engine, baggage car and mail car of a Canadian National Railways passenger train bound from Montreal to Halifax left the rails and overturned and the engineer, A. Bissonnette of Charney, Que., is missing and believed killed. He is thought to be pinned under the overturned cab.

In Nova Scotia, Joseph G. McPhail, 27, was drowned at Sydney after falling from a wharf into three feet of water.

Quints Celebrate 17th Birthday At Summer Home

Callander, Ont., May 28 (CP)—The quintuplets were 17 years old today. They celebrated with a party and a holiday from school.

"Of course we gave them a holiday," their foster father, Oliva Dionne, said. "You're only 17 once, you know — and it's a very important birthday."

Just 17 years ago — May 28, 1934, was the date — Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne, were born in a farmhouse near this northern Ontario town, eight miles southeast of North Bay. The multiple births were termed a miracle by medical men the world over and the late Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the attending country doctor, was credited with keeping the babies alive.

For their birthday the five each received a camera from their parents. Mr. Dionne said the girls have had thousands of pictures taken of them.

"And I thought it was about time they started taking some — with their own cameras."

Most of the day was spent at the family's summer cottage on nearby Trout Lake. It began early — at 8 a. m. — with celebration of mass in the Dionne's private chapel. The evening was reserved for the birthday supper attended by the five brothers and two sisters and the 10 other teen-aged girls who attend school with them.

RUBBER UNLOADED

405 Maritime Squadron Arrives In Great Britain

St. Eval, Cornwall, England, May 28 (CP) —Officers and men of the RCAF 405 Maritime Squadron today received their first briefing in England after a transatlantic flight through mist and rain.

Led by Sqdn. Ldr. A. G. (Digger) Dagg of Vancouver, the squadron of Sir Lancasters and two North Star transports took flight from Goose Bay, Labrador, yesterday.

The Canadians will remain in the United Kingdom for five weeks of intensive anti-submarine training with the RAF coastal command. They will operate from Ballykelly, Northern Ireland, and St. Eval.

Close to 75 percent of the air crews are graduates of the RCAF's post-war training scheme and the visit here is the first for all except Flt. Lt. L. H. Croft of Flin Flon, Man., who served in Iceland with the RCAF in Second World War.

The squadron's wartime Lancaster's, modified for Maritime reconnaissance, are the first of the specially built aircraft to be delivered to RCAF. Manufactured in Canada, they saw service during the war from United Kingdom bases.

Three-quarters of the flight was made high above the clouds, and for most of the way they had flown through a dazzling display of northern lights.

Without food brought from home, the Canadians were entertained the station's personnel at a dinner tonight. Other functions to be arranged later.

The RCAF boys, who less than a month ago came from across Canada to prepare for the ocean jaunt, will return to their Greenwood, N.S., base at the end of June.

FIRST TRIP TO EUROPE

New York May 28. (AP)—Margaret Truman sailed aboard the S.S. America, Sunday on her first trip to Europe. Her trip will take her to Britain, Holland, Belgium, France, Luxembourg and Italy.

Pravda Attacks Defence Budget By Truman

Moscow, May 28 (AP)—Pravda attacked President Truman's request to the United States Congress for $8,500,000,000 for foreign military and economic aid as a "program of further expansion of American aggressive policy."

An editorial in the communist party organ by commentator Y. Viktorov called the program a "more oppressive Marshall plan," calculated at "further enslavement of the Marshallized and Americanized countries and at further intensification of American control over the satellites."

Truman, the newspaper said, in his message, "does not spare slanderous attacks on the U.S.R. and other peace-loving countries and peoples.

"But lies have short legs and Truman was unable to prod even one proof of Soviet aggressiveness", the editorial asser-

THE JOB IS MADE MUCH HARDER

The sentencing of two men employed as bushworkers in Northern Ontario to jail terms and payments of fines totalling a campfire burning in the woods is entirely justified.

Thousands of acres of timber were burned out by fire which followed, and many men, with much equipment, will now have to fight this blaze.

Each year, news columns carry the stories of urban and rural people, men and women, who, unused to the ways of the forest, leave their campfires burning and, by that action, directly cause rampaging forest fires. Despite intensive campaigns to educate them, these people never seem to learn that this wastes timber, destroys wildlife and kills young trees.

Basically, the issue does not make sense. There are two men who destroy their means of living. It would not be sensible for a commercial fisherman to destroy his boat, nor does he destroy the commercial fish that provide his livelihood. Why then, would two bush workers be so careless of forest wealth? The answer, of course, is that they do not own the woods or the timber that is there, and an idea that what is destroyed by their carelessness will easily be built up again by nature.

Yet they should know that it is a long process, and an expensive process. Trees do not grow overnight, but they do burn to ashes in a matter of hours. Such examples of carelessness by men who should know better make the education of urban people who like to camp out even more difficult.

A BOOM BECOMES NORMAL

The situation in which many Canadians are finding themselves in these days is outlined by the Montreal Gazette as being one where a "boom" period is fast becoming to be regarded as a "normal" period by the younger generation. In consequence, an economic rift is present between the young and the old.

In the last 100 years, the status of the wageearner has known a continuous overall rise. The pattern of this progress, until a few years ago, had little variation. During a boom period—induced by wars or territorial expansions—the worker's return from his labor took a sudden spurt. This followed a levelling-off period, during which some gains were lost. Not all were lost, however. He was always a little ahead of where he'd been before the boom began.

This process occurred under each generation, so that each generation found itself a little better off than the one which preceded it.

The cycles of boom-depression-boom took place in the 20 years between 1919 and 1939. The power of the cycle has grown so enormously that booms run right off the charts of the experts.

The immediate end of the Second World War boom has been so great that it has carried us right through the years of "recession" that were expected to follow it. The new rearmament boom has come along so as to certify that it is not its predecessor, but an almost continuous upward spiral.

And we are told that this new boom may last a whole generation itself.

Where does this leave our economic tradition? Where does it leave us? In a state of much confusion and uncertainty.

All through the war years, we fondly quoted 1939 prices. We didn't really expect that prices would go all the way back, when the war ended. But we were sure they'd go back a long way. We're still waiting.

The experts were as wrong as we were. Both countries have recently revised those lists. They say that 1935-1939 "buying habits" are gone and that within the next visible future the whole 1935-1939 chart will be discarded. What will replace it, as an index to our cost-of-living? Possibly a chart of prices during 1945-1950. This period may be looked back upon as "the good old days, before rearmament started."

In other words, within one generation, we may have seen the present, blatantly abnormal period accepted as the normal one. The younger people already accept it as such. But to a large proportion of the population, it means a good deal of bewilderment and difficult readjustment.

French is the official language of the Republic of Haiti, which has a population of about 3,000,000.

MID-SEASON ANGLER

Some years ago to Baldwin, Mich.,
I went for rainbow trout to fish,
And mark the season's opening day,
Which was, as now, the first of May.

I'd fish for perch and pike and bass
But I can tell the truth: Alas!
I've never learned a thing about
The skillful art of luring trout.

Trout fishermen, I had been told
The opening day with reverence hold.
No matter how the north wind screams,
Two sweaters and a canvas coat,
Boots that reach buttonhole at my throat;
Rod, reel and creel and book of flies
Equipped me for the enterprise.

It rained, it snowed, the north wind blew
The day and I both colder grew.
But I was gamer than the trout
For they stayed in while I went out.

I tried to cast as I was taught,
But rocks and trees were all I caught
Except a cold — at Baldwin, Mich.

ARE YOU DIGGING!

In some areas of the world where justice is administered in a more primitive manner than it is in our own country, a condemned prisoner is compelled to dig his own grave. The prisoner digs slowly and, when he has until the pit is deep enough. Then the shovel is thrown to him and he is told to steal cigarette, and he is shot as he stands in the very grave he has dug for himself.

Efficient as such a system may perhaps be, there is a cold brutality about it which bothers most of us. We would strongly resist the adoption of such a custom here. Yet how many Americans today are digging their own graves, figuratively speaking, just as surely as if they were condemned prisoners!

Some people are ignorant of the effects upon the body of overindulgence in food and drink. We all know men who are not only shortening their lives but also making their declining remnants less pleasant and useful by searing down their bodies with food and drink. Each year, thousands of Americans dig graves for themselves and others by careless driving. Other thousands suffer and perish from avoidable diseases and preventable accidents caused by their own excesses or by their carelessness.

Are you shoveling the shovel that is digging your grave? Let temperance and self-control help you drop it.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A friend of mine owns a very beautiful and prolific little trout pond. He has to keep putting trout in, every year or two, to keep abreast of the fishing and the fish that of his numerous friends. And he goes to a great deal of trouble and expense to stock the pond from poachers.

Only last week Alden Knight, the famous American angler and author, up for a fish, and during their talk, he said, delight that he was the best defence against poachers.

"Well," said Knight, "the best thing to do, after all, is, when you are stocking your pond, to put in a few extra for the poachers."

This is probably the most practical statement ever made on the poaching problem. For, even if you have a reasonably effective ban on the property, there are poachers who can outwit him. The fact of the matter is, poachers get are poaching than out of the fish they catch, for a long shot. And the thrill they get out of poaching is hotly guarded precisely in that proportion to the risk.

Poaching comes under the same general heading as the crime of smuggling the honest citizen indulges in when he returns from abroad, or returns from abroad. Neither is regarded as theft, or even cheating. It is regarded as the one level of moral conscience man is most of us can reach. We do not feel guilt to the extent we should.

But in many of these small sporting estates, the cost of a trout or a pheasant comes high enough to make poaching real larceny. A trout costing a dollar and a pheasant costing fifteen dollars is not at all unusual, when cost accounting takes into consideration all the time and trouble involved in owning and operating a little private paradise.

EL YOUNG LOVERS

As it comes to all men, old age is creeping up on my pal Barry Mather.

Oh, he makes a great show of hiding it. Those burgundy-colored pants, for instance, the yellow jacket, the dicta-dot bow tie, the beanie with the propeller on it—they foot a lot of people. Others are obviously taken in by the cocky attitude he carries about. But I know better.

It was only the other day that Barry revealed himself as a man who has lost all sympathy with romance and—as I always say—a man without romance is a sad old man.

In this particular column Mr. M. said some unkind things about a new hit tune called "Hello Young Lovers" an admittedly resentful ditty which Barry chose to call a dirge.

I had heard the piece myself, only a few days before and thought instantly, "Here, at last, is a real love song." A real younger love song." At any rate, a man who still has a tiny throb of sentiment left in his soul knows that instinctively, just as he would know that "Glen Wharpole" was a great mazurka.

Young love perhaps the most mysterious and moving of all human emotions. It is the great equalizer, the great leveller. It is the great compensation. It is the great reason why the world's true lovers are not all old and crotchety. It is the great reason why the world's true lovers are not all young and crotchety. It is the great reason why the world's true lovers are not all young and crotchety. It is the great reason why the world's true lovers are not all young

Two Newspaper Men Killed By Enemy Mine

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

West Sector, Korea, May 28— The Canadian force was saddened today as word spread that two newspaper men, working with it were killed Saturday by an enemy mine.

Lieut. Joe Levison, 32, of Halifax, Canadian army public relations officer and Derek Pearcy, 25-year-old correspondent for Reuters - Australian Associated Press, died on a mountain trail when their jeep detonated a mine over which tanks previously had passed intact repeatedly.

They were en route to visit Major Jack Peterson, St. Thomas Ont., commanding a company of the Royal Canadian Regiment south of Kachae, when the explosion happened. They actually passed over the mine once, but when the jeep failed to negotiate a muddy slope the first time, they backed up for another run.

The mine was a wooden one of the ratchet type, which allows a predetermined number of vehicles to pass over before it explodes.

"It's a tragedy—both were fine men," said Brig. John Rockingham, commander of the 25th Canadian Brigade.

Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U.S. Eighth Army commander, messaged Reuters: "My deepest sympathy for the recent unfortunate death of Mr. Derek Pearcy. His loss will be felt by all Eighth Army."

Levison went to Korea last December with the advance party of the Princess Patricia' Canadian Light Infantry. Born in Sydney N.S., and educated in Halifax schools and at Dalhousie University, he had served on the editorial staff of the Halifax Chronicle and the Halifax Herald.

Pearcy was the 14th correspondent killed while covering the Korean fighting. Three more are missing, believed killed, and two are prisoners.

Mrs. M. W. Heslip Gives Fine Message

Ivanhoe — The Ivanhoe W.M.S. at Beulah United Church held their May meeting on Tuesday in the form of a "Visitors' Day," at the home of Mrs. Sam Twiddy. Seven other neighboring societies were invited to attend: Salem, White Lake, Fuller, West Huntingdon, Marmora, St. Andrew's Presbyterian and St. Thomas' Anglican.

This was an all day gathering when the guests began to arrive at 11 o'clock. They were received and welcomed by Mrs. Earl Benson, president of the Ivanhoe society, assisted by Mrs. B. J. Beckel.

Guest Speaker.

Upon entering the home each one signed the guest book and was given a name card. The guest speaker for the day, Mrs. M. W. Heslip, of Madoc, was presented with a beautiful corsage.

At the noon hour Mrs. Sam Twiddy welcomed all to her home and 83 people were served a full course dinner. Both during this time and after, all enjoyed a fine visit with other members of the societies.

At two o'clock, the president, Mrs. Earl Benson, opened the meeting by conducting an impressive worship service, taking as the theme "Giving Of Ourselves." Quiet music was played by Mrs. Charles Keeble and a short poem used as a call to worship. The Scripture lesson, Luke 10: 29-37 was read by Mrs. Donald Reid. A helpful meditation on the Scripture and the theme was given by the president giving thoughts how all can give of themselves, working for the Master.

The program included a duet, "It is No Secret," by Mrs. Harry Mayo, and Mrs. S. Hagerman, from Salem W.A.; a reading, "The Garden of Life," by Miss Edna Turner from St. Thomas' W.A. from West Huntingdon, Mrs. Grant rendered a pleasing solo, "He Did So Much for Me", from St. Andrew's Presbyterian, a solo by Mrs. Milton Shaw, "A Little Talk With Jesus." Madoc W.M.S. a reading, "The Boy Who Didn't Pass," given by Mrs. E. Moore.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker, Mrs. M. W. Heslip, was introduced by Mrs. B. J. Beckel. Mrs. Heslip speaking on "Encouragement in the Christian Work", based her message on 3 John 4. Mrs. Heslip read a letter she had just received from a foreign missionary. This letter was very interesting and brought to all listeners a more vivid picture of the need for Christ in each individual.

In speaking, Mrs. Heslip said "greater is He that is in us than he who is in the world", and that our part is to carry on and do what God would have us do."

Mrs. Clifford Mitz voiced appreciation to Mrs. Heslip for giving of her time and for bringing such an inspiring message, also to the visiting societies for their readings and musical numbers.

Earl Benson moved a hearty vote of thanks to the hostess, Mrs. Sam Twiddy and her daughter, Doris, for the use of their home for this meeting and for the work

Twenty-Five Sunday Schools Organize Vacation Bible School

Tweed — On Wednesday evening, 25 Sunday School workers from the different Sunday schools in Tweed and Thomasburg met in St. John's United Church, Tweed, to make arrangements for a Vacation Bible Summer School to be held early in July.

Where Jesus Christ is the centre of the purpose and aims. Is the only Bible training her commissions when told to "feed My lambs." MADOC

Grades Seven, Eight Enjoy Trip To Canada's Capital

Madoc — The pupils of Grades 7 and 8 of the Madoc Public School enjoyed a conducted tour of Ottawa recently.

Arriving there at 8.00 a.m., via Experiential Farm, they had their first glimpse of the Capital City.

The initial place of interest was the Mint, where small groups, conducted by members of the Mint staff were shown and instructed in the different processes of coin making.

Many interesting, educational, and historical yellow were viewed at the Archives and the War Memorial Museum.

Refreshments were enjoyed at Major Hill Park.

Walking across the Interprovincial Bridge to Hull the children visited the E. B. Eddy Co. and braced paper—made from the 4-foot pulp log to the manufactured finished articles, towels, boxes, and bags.

Returning to Ottawa, the children were shown into the rotunda of the Chateau Laurier and through the tunnel to the Union Station.

The highlight of the afternoon was the visit to the Parliament Buildings. From the Peace Tower the children had a bird's eye view of their picturesque Dominion Capital. In the visitors' gallery of the House of Commons they listened to a discussion on Income Tax.

The last place of interest was the filtration plant, where the water for Ottawa and Hull is purified.

These annual trips, entirely financed by the students, have proven to be highly educational and it is the intention that such a trip to Ottawa and a similar one to Toronto will be realized by every student before graduation.

REDMEN SCORE SECOND WIN!

Well, we beat 'em. Picton [illegible] there's no point in being proud about it. For those [illegible]spanlards" if you listened, the Walt Fraser, Ken Chase and Jack Wash outfit might have given us the works.

And it's a matter of fact, if you were there, those blokes from Sivel's village might have handed us city slickers a bit of a go.

To get down to serious facts, Saturday afternoon, after a terrific workout trying to get the parade under way (Are you listenin' Chris Lockyer?) and attention Stephen Licence, Ltd., thanks a lot gentlemen for your generous donation of three prizes for the decorated bicycles.

After that was over, we saw a baseball team in action. In fact, two, but Picton, too, will improve.

Ladies and gentlemen of this grand old city, you have, right now, a baseball team, that with practice and its nucleus will go a long way to bring back to Belleville, under the able coaching of one Pat Wilson, a lot of the prestige that the era of Frosty Mills, brother Harry, the family Indian, Jack Williams, Walter Gebow, the late Doc Blakely, and others of that ilk, held for this town.

We saw them play on Saturday afternoon. They flubbed that ball a few times. It was not a good baseball game. Don't forget that. They were just as bad (one run say-forget that. They were just as bad (one run say-forget that. They were just as bad (one run say-

Redmen Edge Picton 9-8 For Second Straight Victory

Belleville Redmen won their second straight victory at the 1951 Central Ontario Baseball League season opener here Thursday afternoon defeating the Picton Athletics 9-8 score. The Reds scored their first run in the Thursday night fracas in the sixth inning.

The game was one packed with thrills from start to finish with the Redmen coming from behind in every inning except one through with a timely hit to clinch the score. They were led to victory by shortstop Milford Dyer. The Reds scored their last run in the ninth inning when Dyer singled and came home on a two-sacrifice out. Miller settled down and held the Reds hitless for the rest of the game.

Made it Close

Picton came through with a three run splurge in the fifth to tie the score at 5-5. Macdonald and Staples by Wardhaugh and MacDonald started the play for Hoskins and Billy Strahan was rushed into the breach. Johnny Bell poled out a single off the centerfield delivery scoring one run and Bill Ward of the Indians drove out a single.

The Athletics scored two more in the seventh when Bell poled out a home run that hopped over the left field fence. Macdonald walked but Strahan sent him back. It was typical baseball weather. The game was dragged out to nearly three hours playing time. It took two hours and fifty minutes to get the pastime rushed away.

Reds Pitchers Takes Out

Frankie Dyer of Picton and Letty Hoskins of the Redmen started on the mound for their respective teams but both failed to go the route. Both were taken out of the game in the fifth inning. Hoskins allowed four hits for five runs before being relieved by Billy Strahan who finished the game and was credited for the victory.

The Redmen bats got to Dyer's delivery in the fifth when they pounded him for five hits and as many runs and that was the end of Dyer. Miller, in the relief chair, took over and held the Redmen sluggers to one run and one hit over the rest of the route. Dyer allowed eight hits for six many tallies.

Pat Wilson's two run single in the first gave the Reds a lead they never relinquished. Red Carson's mighty triple off the first ball pitched to him in the fifth inning scored Wilson and Wardhaugh drawing a walk after Strahan struck out. Carson Wilson neatly placed blow and the Reds were off to a two run start. They scored two more in the third but the Athletics roared back with a pair in the first half of the fourth on two hits and a brace of Belleville errors.

Dean, Mulholland and Dyer singled in succession in the classic three and 50-yd. O'Shaughnessy.

Major Factor Wins 92nd Running Of King's Plate

Toronto, May 26 — (CP) — Major Factor, Cinderella bait of the E. P. Taylor entry, came from behind to win the Plate here Saturday to win the 92nd running of the historic King's Plate.

Ridden by Eddie Nolan, the diminutive stable of the Toronto industrialist that has five times last year in claiming races for as low as $2,500, the three-year-old colt earned the biggest purse in the history of North America's oldest continuously-run horse race.

Second in the bulky 21-horse field was Libertine, the 3-year-old from the Medway Stable of London, Ont. Charging up to the wire was Bear Plaid, owned by Jim Fair of Calnaville, Ont. Fourth in the highly-regarded Britannia, other bait of the Taylor entry, and winner-loser favorite in Saturday's running of last year's 1½ mile event, was Mr. Jones and Bill Fetherston-Elizabeth and Coronation Stakes.

In this trials a week previous to Britannia's win in last time while Major Factor — who won the big race as a 3-year-old — was a dismal eighth. In the big race Saturday, Britannia faltered after leading most of the way.

The Taylor entry paid $8.30 to win, $3.80, for place and $2.70 show.

The Governor-General, Viscount Alexander of Tunis, representative, symbolic of the plate, to Mr. Taylor in the Royal Canadian Dragoons' guidon which turned to rain before the afternoon ended.

Major Factor's share of the $21,400 purse — plus 50 guineas donated by Col. R. S. McLaughlin, $15,— 183. His time of one minute and 33 seconds was a full second behind the race record established for 1946 by Jim Fair's Last Mark.

Mr. Fairbairn, Toronto-born free-lance jockey who usually rides for entries for the plate failed to train to expectations.

Served Four Years

Bavington, who served four years in the Canadian army during the Second World War, said in an interview:

"I had only one horse beaten at the paddock turn. Later, with only three-eighths of a mile to go, I looked up and saw a solid wall or horses ahead of me. My horse had lots of run but there was no way to get through the big crowd. So I steered him to the middle of the track, turned him with my whip and we were through.

E. P. Taylor, whose Epic had won the plate in 1949, had confidence in Major Factor. He told Bavington before the race, "You have the best horse, you'll win the race."

Shy, quiet-spoken Pete McDaniel, trainer for former jockey who twice had losing mounts in the spring classic, divorced Bellanca. When presentations were made after the race, McCann shunned the spotlight and stayed with his fellow-horsemen in the paddock area.

The bulky field, largest since 1933 when King O'Connor led 22 starters home, was away evenly. The favored Libertine was bothered after the start, jockey John Adams almost said. Another jockey, Jim Nichol, one of three imports from the United States for the race, also said his horse,

Detectives Guard Stake of Favorite For Epsom Derby

London, May 26—(Reuters) — Detectives, in the best Nat Gould tradition, stood guard today on the stable of Lord Rosebery's favored 17-2 favorite for Wednesday's Epsom Derby.

The Two Thousand Guineas victor stands to win more than $110,000 in stake money and also for owner "Lucky Billy" Ley On, who runs a London chop suey restaurant. And that city detective is taking no chances.

El King, trained by former Sidney Michael Beary at South Fawley Manor, near Wantage, Berkshire, put in for escaped the smallpox epidemic which trimmed a record derby field to 27 during the weekend and left two others doubtful starters for the 13-furlong colts classic.

Galcador, Titian, Prince Doulily and Selector II were scratched Saturday and Assemnestra and King Cotton also are considered doubtful.

If the 25 probables go to the post (at 12:30 a.m. EDT) Wednesday they'll break the record of 32 starters set in 1862. Last year's scratches were the Blue Ribbon. The prize money of £12,338 also outstrips the £11,775 in the 171-year history of the race.

This year's renewal remains a gigantic puzzle. Those trying to pick a winner.

Three-year-old form this year, both here and in France, has been full of reverses and no outstanding candidate emerges.

In the last dozen derbies only two Two Thousand Guineas winners and the favorites have won the longer, tougher race over Epsom's twisting hilly course.

Although Beary's stable has yet to produce its usual brilliant form this season, betting men also distrust Rosebery's Mossborough, sole entrant, Nyangai, a winter book favorite which has drifted to 20-1 in most books. His race specialist Rae (Snapper) Johnstone — who won the 1949 Derby on My Love, and in 1950 rare with Bousino's Galcador—will ride.

Mount Brance, didn't like the soft filled-in ground of his stable post position.

The track was specially widened at the start for the big field.

Behind the first four were Mr. Hood, Monsoon, Sayajirao and Carallis. Pandamond, Prey Seven, Bill Armstrong, Scapa Blow, Fairflow, Donstan, Sir Algabal, Teddy's Sister, Impone, Corywol, Lacquer and Sir Gallis. Willie Georgie, in that order.

Erindale Kid of Mrs. Fred Ivor-Willis, Carleton, of Windsor, Ont., just after the start. Shaken up, Zarilla was able to walk away, not severely hurt.

Dr. MacDonald said the understanding before last week was that Sydney would get a minimum of $4,000. He has asked Mr. Campbell to submit a demand for an additional $2,000.

At a minute after midnight the fish was gaffed.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 28 (AP) — Chicago ballyhoo artists are ballin' the jack to build up the fighting-est heavyweight champion of all because Wednesday's fight with Ezzard Charles will be the eighth title defence in less than two years. It took Joe Louis just two years to get his defence No. 8. Maybe that's what killed off the heavyweight division.

After Jack Dempsey won the title from Jess Willard in 1919, he defended it five times in one year, twice more in 1923 and didn't fight anything but exhibitions until he lost to Gene Tunney in September, 1926. Tunney waited a year for his second Dempsey fight and 10 more months before his second and last title defence against Jack Sharkey. Those guys wouldn't by fight until they found an opponent who could contribute his share toward building a $1,000,-,000 gate. Meanwhile the other heavyweights had to fight among themselves to avoid starvation until someone could get the title shot. But Louis fought himself out of opposition; Charles is doing the same thing and the fans don't get too excited about one title scrap because they know they'll be another soon.

South made an opening bid of one spade. West stuck in a double, and North-South had the happy overcall was the most correct bid with the west holding three an amazing four spades.

The jump overcall presents a dilemma which is not that is the best rebiddable. The club suit is better than rebiddable. The actual count in the west hand is nine tricks.

With this nine tricks, if west had no losers in spades he could have bid two spades; an overcall of opponent's bid with four losers is spades, such a bid would have been wrong.

The jump overcall by west asks partner to pass with less than two tricks; to bid three no tricks or more; to prefer an assist in that suit if he has support for rebiddable clubs.

When north passed, east should have assisted in spades. He has adequate support for a rebiddable suit with 9 tricks and one ace, or should be, evident that the jump is based on clubs being solid.

West could then go to five clubs with or without first bidding three diamonds. In happens that six clubs can be made, but even if he pushed that slam he might still stop at five clubs.

Instead of helping clubs, however, east bid no-trump and west passed. Opponents took three spade tricks before west could catch his breath, which was a big swing against west and north.

Each who was unlucky at fault himself for not going back to clubs. When I asked what was said, the players told me: "I was bewildered, he didn't say anything."

NEVER CAUGHT UP

Brampton, May 28 — (CP)—Runnymede Recreation bolted to a 32-0 victory over Fergus Thistles in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game Saturday.

The home-town club looped into a 2-1 lead by the end of the first period. Fergus never caught up.

Top scorer for the winners was Bob Blakeley, who netted four goals. Bob Barlard added a hat trick and scored three apiece. Bob Gear scored two of Fergus' points.

'Squib' Walker Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

Fort William, May 28 — (CP) — George (Squib) Walker, dean of Canadian scouts, died suddenly of a heart seizure at his home here Sunday. He was 56.

Chief scout for Quetico Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League and a well-known figure in Canadian hockey circles for more than a quarter century, Mr. Walker was stricken late Saturday and died three hours later.

He had been in good health up until his fatal attack, and was making preparations for a fishing trip on Sunday with friends.

A native of Toronto, Mr. Walker was associated with the Maple Leaf organization for 30 years, first as a scout and later as chief scout. He was Toronto's chief scout for the last 10 years. He made Fort William his home for the last 30 years.

His work took him to all parts of Canada in search of hockey talent for the Maple Leafs. He was popular and highly respected by fans, players, managers and coaches with whom he came in contact.

During the First World War, he served overseas in France for four years as a gunner in the 203th Canadian Field Battery. Following his return from service he became buyer of a local clothing store and was also in the life insurance business. He retired to scouting on a full-time basis.

He is survived by his wife, the former Marjory Mackay, of Toronto, and a sister, Athola Walker of Fort William. Funeral will be held here Tuesday.

Calvert Pitches No-Hit, No-Run Game in Seattle

Seattle, May 28 (AP)—Montreal's Paul Calvert, who spent most of the spring rusting on the bench with Detroit Tigers, blew the works in his first start for Seattle Rainiers. He pitched a no-hit, no-run game.

The 4-0 no-hitter yesterday over Sacramento Solons meant a lot to somebody else making his first start in the Pacific Coast League. For manager Rogers Hornsby, it meant first place—at least temporarily—for the Rainiers in his first season at the helm.

Before he was sold to Seattle two weeks ago, Calvert had hurled only five innings all spring for Detroit. Four of those innings were in an intra-squad game among the Tigers. The other was a regular one-inning relief stanint against the Yankees after the season opened.

Originally signed by Cleveland in 1940, he narrowly missed a no-hitter for Cedar Rapids in the Three-I-League. A broken bat bloop single in the sixth inning spoiled that one.

Then in 1942, he pitched one for Sherbrooke in the Quebec Provincial League.

The thin-faced Canadian (he pronounces it with every letter) of Montreal in 1940 with a mastery displayed Sunday. He had almost exclusively to win last night's game.

Center fielder Sheely said:

"He was hardly ever off the plate. Every pitch he threw was close. He had good control. That sinker of his breaks maybe two inches over the plate, but that's enough to keep 'em beating it into the dirt."

M. G. M.'s "Kim" Adventure Spectacle, Filmed in India in Technicolor

"Kim" Rudyard Kipling's immortal story of romance, adventure and intrigue, has been brought to the screen by M. G. M. as one of the year's outstanding motion picture events. The classic tale, at the Belle Theatre Today and Tuesday, was made in Technicolor and is the first major Hollywood production to be filmed in India, much of it against the sweeping Himalayan Mountains.

With Errol Flynn as the unforgettable Mahbub Ali, better known as "Kim's" friend, and talented young Dean Stockwell as Kim, the action and suspense is packed adventure of the Afghan horse-dealer, secretly a member of the British espionage and the little ragmuffin who aids the government in quelling an uprising, come to life as Kipling's incomparable pageantry of India of 1885.

From the opening scene in which little Kim arranges a tryst between the Red Bear, and a girl in the closely - guarded women's quarters of Lahore and is forced to use all his wiles in escaping the sword of a zealous guard, Kipling's famous adventure holds the observer in a taut and relentless excitement.

Director Victor Saville has done a finished job of integrating the action of Kipling's immortal adventure story with the eye - arresting color and magnificent backgrounds of the East and, together with producer Leon Gordon, has given "Kim" complete integrity in a production that is truly great. The result is superlative entertainment.

Montreal Royals 4½ Games Ahead In Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal Royals, International League pace-setters expect to lose either Bob Alexander or Clarence (Dutch) Mostil in the next few days.

Both Alexander and Podbielan are under observation by officials of the parent Brooklyn Dodgers. The two great righthanders have won 11 of Montreal's 26 victories. There's a vacancy on the Dodger staff because of Ivy Palica's arm trouble.

Montreal coach Clyde Sukeforth and Scout John Corriden were in the stands yesterday as Podbielan turned back Springfield Cubs 4-1 in the second game of a double-header. Podbielan scattered five hits and lost his shutout when Carm Mauro homered in the sixth inning. George Shuba whacked a three-run homer in the third inning to clinch the victory. Bob Skinlan helped his own cause with a two-run triple.

The Royals also won the opener 5-3 behind Mal Mallette and Bill Voiselle. Mallette was lifted in the ninth for Al Gettel who got gained credit for the victory, his first, as Voiselle pinchhit in the third for the victors.

The sweep enabled the Royals to move 4½ games ahead of the runner-up Rochester Red Wings who lost 5-3 to Toronto Maple Leafs in the first game of a double-header. The Wings were leading 3-2 as the end of five innings in the nightcap when the game was called because of Toronto's Sunday curfew. The game will be completed on Rochester's next visit to Toronto.

Johnny Ostrowski ruined the Wings in the opener with a grand slam homer, double and triple. It was the second time this season that Ostrowski has knocked in six runs in one game. Charley Lanning and Larry Claffone homered for the Wings.

Lefty Hal Hudson picked up his fourth victory without defeat. Hudson entered in the eighth, shifted to the outfield and returned to the mound in the 9th.

Ottawa Giants and Syracuse Chiefs battled to a seven inning 0-0 tie. The game was called because of rain.

The double header between Baltimore and Buffalo was rained out.

Batawa Shoemen Beat O'Hallorans By 5-0 Score

Batawa Shoemen swarmed over an under-strength O'Hallorans squad from Peterborough, Saturday afternoon, on their home field, downing the visitors 5-0.

The visitors arrived half an hour after game time due to difficulties on the road and were forced to play a short game. Batawa's fast passing game was too much for the weakened team and the Shoetowners had things pretty much their own way.

Batawa piled up a three goal lead in the first few minutes of the play before Peterborough crew in their own end of the field.

Pratshyzavsky and Tiamsa scored in the second half.

Movie Column

Hollywood, May 28—(AP)—Still haunted by the ghost of Frankenstein's monster, Boris Karloff is ending his 33-year residence in Hollywood.

The English-born actor said as he is selling his Hollywood house and will make his home in New York. This is partly due to the heavyclouded monster which catapulted him to stardom 20 years ago.

Before playing in "Frankenstein," he was just another character actor. He had been here since 1919 without making any great impression on the movie public. But after that memorable film, his name was synonymous with menace.

"Yes, I was typed," he sighed. "But then, I guess everyone is in the movies, even juveniles."

In recent years, he has turned to the stage in an attempt to shed the label. He had notable success with Boris Ilienkov in "Peter Pan" with Jean Arthur. But he returned to Hollywood to play a disillusioned servant in a thriller called "The Door." After he finishes the film he's leaving for New York.

Stage Love

"I think the first love of any actor is the stage," he admitted. "And actually, I have been away from Hollywood more than I have been here in the past 10 years. I played Svengali in "Arsenic and Old Lace," another six months with it overseas and two years in Peter Pan.

"Also there are more things to keep an actor busy in New York. You have radio, television and radio. Out here it's mostly pictures."

I asked Karloff if he has seen any of the new type of thrill pictures, such as "Rocketship X-M."

"No, but I'd like to," he answered. "In understand they now have monsters who are vegetables. Fascinating!"

Capsule Review

"Hard, Fast and Beautiful" continues the curious fad of looking into the field of sports. This one is a hard-bitten view of the athletes who make a racket a playing instrument tennis. Sally Forest is the player who turns from innocent girlhood, guided along by her ruthless mother, Claire Trevor. Dramatic values are skillfully prepared by director Ida Lupino.

Collegiate Track Squad Wins Bay of Quinte COSSA Meet

In the closest contested meet in the history of the Bay of Quinte COSSA, Belleville C.I. and V.S. came out tying for first place honors with Campbellford H.S. on the Albert College Athletic Field on Saturday afternoon.

The weather must provided a perfect day for the 250 athletes competing in a program of seventy events. Points were awarded on the basis for the various events in six classes, Junior, Intermediate and Senior boys and the same classes for girls.

Campbellford H.S. was the surprise team of the meet, running the local Collegiate students a very close second for the meet honors, and taking the Intermediate boys' team title, while Paul they took the Intermediate individual championship for the school.

Ten new records were established, one of which equalled all records intact being the Senior boys' class.

Albert College provided the championship Boys' team for the meet, while Belleville C.I. took the Girls' championship.

Individual champions were as follows: Junior Boys, Frank Lavin, Tweed H.S. Intermediate Boys, Ron Gegear, Campbellford H.S. Senior Boys, Donald Shepherdson, Albert College. Junior Girls, Beverly Whalen of Brighton H.S. Intermediate Girls, Violet Coulter, Belleville C.I. and Senior Girls, Doris Kerr of Belleville C.I.

Class champions were as follows: Junior Boys, Picton C.I. Intermediate Boys, Campbellford H.S. Senior Boys, Albert College. Junior Girls, Brighton H.S. Intermediate Girls, Belleville C.I. Senior Girls, Belleville C.I.

Donald Shepherdson of Albert by taking the Senior 100 yards, 220 yards and 440 yards, and Paul Roy of Campbellford H.S. who took the Intermediate broad jump, hop step and jump, and 120 yard were perhaps the outstanding athletes of the day, Donald Ross of Campbellford Seniors in the Intermediate class provided an outstanding performance by running the 100 yards in 10 8/10 seconds to provide a new record and ran the fastest 100 yards of the day.

Brighton H. S. Intermediate Girls' 220 yard relay team ran the distance in 29 9/10 seconds to set a new record and cover the distance in the fastest time in the history of the meet—this time is faster than all senior times.

Belleville Drones Win District Bowling Title

Bill Estenson's Belleville Bowl-O-Drome bowling team won the championship of the Central Ontario Bowling League on Saturday night after defeating Frank Merrifield finish. The Drones edged the starry Trenton Guy's squad by four points to annex the title and trophy.

Only one point separated the teams after playing 60 games during the season, with the Belleville team holding the slim margin. The homesiers won the first game but Belleville rallied strongly to win the next two and the honors. The final scores were Drones, 2765 and Trenton, 2670.

Greenfield's triple of 942 including a single of 451 were the best scores of the season.

The league will wind up its seasonal activities on June 6th when the trophy and prizes will be presented.

Austria Elects Anti-Communist For President

Vienna, May 28 — (AP) — Austria's new Socialist president, 76-year-old Dr. Theodor Koerner, pledged himself today to abide by his country's constitution and to "act instead of talk."

Koerner, a bitter anti-communist and Vienna's Lord Mayor since the Second World War, defeated the People's Party (Conservative) candidate, Dr. Heinrich Gleisamer, in a runoff election yesterday.

The white-bearded former general of the Austro-Hungarian Imperial Army can be expected to follow two aims after he takes the oath of office, probably June 20.

1. He has said he will devote the six years of his presidential term to the fervent hope of all Austrians — attainment of liberation from the occupation troops of Russia and the west.

2. He will reject all attempts by Austria's communist party to capitalize upon the help they gave him in his election.

His Socialist party also refused all suggestions of a co-operation with the communists.

Koerner succeeds another Socialist, the late Dr. Karl Renner, who died last New Year's eve. The presidency carries little political authority and is largely a post of honor.

The vote yesterday was 2,173,306 for Koerner and 2,006,290 for Gleisamer. In the first election three weeks ago, with six candidates, Koerner ran second with 1,962,981 votes to Gleisamer's 1,725,451.

Upon. He'll be okay in a moment." Bernt looked at her levelly at last. And he might have thought he held her eyes as she set the glass, while his foot made its first surreptitious movement.

Alice had stopped feeling. Now still sobbing he clung to Brent's knees. Brent patted his shoulder. "There, there, honey. Run along back to bed, Alice."

Again the foot, carefully executed, moved.

"—" Suddenly Alice felt her body go rigid. "I—you—you—"

She turned and fled, in a visceral panic. Hot things seeded behind her eyes and there was a horrible, queasy feeling at the pit of her stomach. She was afraid indeed, that she might be actively sick.

Brent's foot had not been entirely successful—in pushing the small, satin locker-ship under the edge of the hall rug.

Alice slept but little for the rest of that night. The memory of the dismaying scene lay on her mind like a weight. Now that the first shock had passed, she felt a growing anger and resentment. That child . . . scarcely four years old. No matter what he may have done, such an extreme punishment as whipping was uncalled for.

Moreover, why had not Muriel Halleck, the only person who could logically do so, been there to interfere? Those piercing screams, still ringing in Alice's ears, should have awakened a dead mute.

Toward morning Alice finally fell deeply asleep, in consequence she was late for breakfast. Muriel and Brent were still at the table, lingering over coffee. And both looked unusually dressed up.

"Hi, sleepy one," Muriel said gaily. "What happened to you? Bert 'you really should have stayed in bed, at that. You're having the day off."

Alice slipped into her place. She tried not to look at Brent, and failed.

He was leaning back in his chair, perfectly at ease. He smiled at her casually. She felt her lips tighten. Perhaps he thought her unaware of what had actually taken place. But, more probably, he was callous to her knowledge of it. He gave him a brief nod.

"Yes," Muriel continued "we're going into town, Brent's seeing some art editors and I want to talk to my agent. And it's an ideal day for it.

"The day in fact, was ideal for most things. The storm had cleared the air. Sunlight and a fresh-feeling breeze poured in through the open windows.

They left soon after breakfast, Brent driving Muriel's smart blue convertible. Alice watched the departure with relief. She doubted whether she could ever again be even civil to Brent Halleck. Certainly she could not have been today.

She spent the morning typing and getting out household chores. Toward noon she wandered out to the terrace.

It occurred first to Alice Pins that a prowling beachcomber, finding the Halleck's not at home, was making remarkably free with their properties. This individual fantastically arrayed in paint-smeared slacks and striped jersey, was slumped in a deck chair. Beside him, on a white iron table, stood a Tom Collins, together with the makings of many more.

Alice noted a gin bottle, an ice bucket, a small pitcher of lemon juice, sparkling water and a sugar bowl. Collins-ayse, the beachcomber was palpably not one to omit any essential ingredients.

At Alice's appearance the stranger blinked sleepy green eyes. Sandy lashes drooped over the eyes. His hair was that color and sandy stubble covered his chin. His face, rather a nice face surprisingly, was freckled and tanned.

"Gee," he said, struggling belatedly to rise, "I didn't know there were any guests here. I—"

Alice waved him back. "Please don't get up. I'm not a guest, exactly. And I'm only passing by."

The sandy person grinned, and kept his seat. "You and Mr. Finch! But I wish you wouldn't." His was suddenly inspired. "What about a drink?"

She hesitated. "I might if—"

"If you knew who was inviting you? Oh, I'm only Chuck Wisner. Long-time old friend of the family."

Alice explained herself, adding "But I thought you were in Bermuda." She remembered Molly Tremayne's mention of him.

"Flew back yesterday. But you've heard of me? No good, I'll bet!"

"It's good wha..ver," she replied smiling. He crooked grin, half-cocky, half-rueful, encouraged small talk. "I gathered that you're a bad character. And this performance proves it."

"Now look," said Chuck insouciantly, "I came all the way over here to get Brent to help me paint my sailboat. Then I'll back from the cook, that he and Muriel are off gallivanting. So I'm letting Brent buy me a couple, to build up stamina for the return trip. By the way, who's taken my name in vain? The Halleck?"

"Well, they've mentioned you. But first, it was a lady I met from Tolliver."

He squinted. "Uh-oh! Tolliver ladies think I'm poison, mostly."

Head on one side and grinning, Chuck Wisner looked about 21 years old and very non-poisonous. Alice said reprovingly. "This one certainly did."

"Let me guess who? Esther Grafton? Molly Tremayne? Rae Richarder?"

"You're way off." But she wondered how he had hit it so quickly. "Of course, though, I wouldn't tell you even if you guessed."

He looked disappointed. "That isn't nice Alice. But I mentioned the leading felines. Must have been some kittycat of the lesser variety. Well, how about that drink?"

"What'll I drink out of? My shoe?"

He got up leisurely, went into the house and returned with another glass. Mixing the drink he said lightly: "So the great writer has produced an amanuensis"

"Don't you think she needs one?" Alice asked. "Anybody that successful?"

Chuck looked her up and down "Mm. Maybe. And she sure picks a honey while she was at it."

"Why Chuck! I'll bet that's the question for all the—the Tolliver ladies."

He handed her the drink. "Listen, Alice, you're a tyro here. Tolliver ladies don't speak to me. Not if they see me first."

"Why? What are you, the village villain?"

"Nope. The village loafer. I work when you see. And if you don't do that on this stern and rockbound coast, you're strictly anathema."

Being "anathema" did not seem to bother him much. He spoke with relish, as if vastly amused. By then his face sobered. "How long have you been here, Alice?"

"About a month."

"Like it?"

She hesitated, remembering the previous night. "O-Oh, yes."

Chuck had caught the hesitation. "You too sure, eh?"

"Certainly I am. Why not?"

"I don't know. Only Brent's a very odd sort of a guy."

Alice controlled a snort. "I don't work for Brent."

14 BRITISH MINERS DEAD IN COLLIERY BLAST

Two Red Divisions, Hacked to Pieces On Central Front

Chinese Lose 18,000 Men In Fierce Four-Day Battle

Tokyo, May 29 (AP) —Communist troops fighting stubbornly from their own hills today slowed the United Nations advance into red Korea.

Two Chinese divisions were wiped out in a four-day battle on the central front, south of the 38th parallel. The U.S. Eighth Army said the two divisions lost 18,000 men—killed, wounded or captured—in the single battle.

Smaller but equally-stubborn fights raged across Korea north of the 38th parallel as troops held to limited gains. Stiffest action was in the west of the peninsula where U.N. troops tried to seal off the Hwachon reservoir.

Advance Five Miles

Field dispatches reported allied troops behind the fighting front knifed five miles up the Hyonjine road to link with American flanks that slowly northward.

But a strong force moving northwest of Inje fought for two days to clear a path over a mine or road junction 3 1-2 miles from the death-ridden town.

A delayed and heavily-censored dispatch from AP correspondent Tom Bradshaw said a powerful U.N. task force bogged down Monday northeast of Inje.

Other armored units ran into the same trouble as they headed northwest toward Yanggu, 10 miles away on the end of Hwachon reservoir, AP correspondent Jim Becker reported. American hacked out one mile Tuesday against rugged opposition.

Stiff Defences

At its western tip, U.S. Marines were engaged in sharp, fierce fights with red Koreans east, south and west of Pyonggang, town of Hwachon. Hwachon is the central spearhead of the 1225-mile U.N. battleline.

None, however, approached the scope of the four-day battle on the central front where Chinese divisions were eliminated.

ACTOR'S WIFE GOES HOME

Air of Innocence Displayed By Six Wise Dogs

West Hartlepool, Durham, England, May 29 —(AP)—Six wise dogs with a special air of innocence met up yesterday with the three wise magistrates of West Hartlepool.

The three wise magistrates stared sternly at the six wise dogs and sought to determine which one — or more — was the culprit or culprits.

Each magistrate liked an occasional nip of human leg.

But the six wise dogs are six re markably identical collie bitches belonging to George Roberts, and they sat with a calm and satisfied air while their owner said he could not tell which was the one to be punished.

Ernest Raddle, who complained to the police that he was on the receiving end of one of those occasional nips, said he didn't know which it was either.

"We've had this trouble before," Police Inspector Alan Armstrong told the three wise magistrates. "We are told one of them has bitten somebody, but by the time we get there, the dogs are all together and it's impossible to tell which it is."

The three wise magistrates stared sternly at the six dogs, and the canine specimens looked back at them with waggish not-me airs that betrayed no guilt.

So the three wise magistrates conferred quietly for a few moments. Then Magistrate W. T. Hay announced they had arrived at a solution.

The court, he informed the owner of the six wise dogs, was ordering that they should be kept under control.

"And it is up to you to decide which one-it is," said the magistrate.

Divisions, CAN TAKE ACTION AGAINST CROWN WITHOUT CONSENT

Commons Approves Measure in Principle

Ottawa, May 29—(CP)— The Commons last night approved a government move to abolish a centuries-old royal prerogative based on the belief that the King can do no wrong.

It gave second reading to a bill which will free individuals from the necessity of obtaining the Crown's permission before they can take action against it in the courts.

Such permission—a fiat—goes back to the days of King Edward III of Britain. In actual practice, permission rarely has been refused in this country.

Justice Minister Garson, introducing the legislation, said it represented a "clear recognition" of the realities of present-day life. It also would give assurance that the government would not hide behind a refusal to grant a fiat.

Welcomes Change

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), welcoming the change, urged the government to allow individuals to take action against the Crown in courts other than the exchequer court. At present, all suits can be launched only in that court.

The bill was one of several dealt with by the chamber in a slow-moving sitting. It adopted two minor measures dealing with units of length and mass and prisons and reformatories.

A fourth measure, amending the Customs Act, won final passage after George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, urged the government not to take action which would allow transport trucks to increase the size of loads from United States points.

Motion Defeated

He opposed a section which would allow trucks to carry goods in bond from one point in the United States to a warehouse in Canada. At present, the goods must be unloaded at border crossing points and appraised for customs purposes.

He moved that the bill be referred to a committee for further study, but the motion was defeated 97 to 19.

Revenue Minister McCann, sponsoring the legislation, said the time had come when trucks should be treated in the same way as rail ways and allowed to carry goods in bond.

The legislation would have no immediate effect. Before using it, trucking firms would have to find out from the provincial governments whether they could use the highways and would have to establish warehouses

Writer Uses Subterfuge to Rid Himself of Communist Soldier

By JIM BECKER

With the U.S. Marines in East Central Korea, May 29—(AP)—I had a communist Chinese soldier on my hands today. I couldn't use him for a while I would have to take him home with me. Only by subterfuge was I able to rid myself of him.

I found him this morning. You might call me my captor's friend.

There he was cowering in the bushes as I walked by. He stood up with his hands raised and smiled.

I took him to my jeep and put him in the front seat. He never made a move and he never stopped grinning.

I felt stooped some marine infantrymen coming down the road.

"You want a prisoner?" I asked.

"What should we do with him?" one asked.

"Take the next cross roads I met a military policeman.

"Here's a prisoner for you."

"I don't want him," said the M. P. "Take him to the rear. And move on, you are blocking traffic."

After a mile, I spotted a platoon of war processing point for a battalion.

I stopped, motioned to my captive to wait, and went inside.

There was a corporal sitting on a box. In the rear, a batch of forlorn-looking Chinese in assorted uniforms.

"I've got a prisoner outside in the jeep," I told the corporal.

"Who are you?" he asked.

I told him.

"We only process prisoners captured by our own outfits," he said. "Take him back to the rear," he said, tried one more M.P., without much luck, and he merely pointed and said:

"Take him to the rear."

There was a P.O.W. stockade but I knew they wouldn't want him there.

So I drove right up to S-2 (intelligence tent), I motioned to the laughing lad to follow me. He came along quietly.

I circled around to the rear of the tent, looked carefully in all directions and then opened the flap and shoved my captive still grinning, inside.

I hope they have better luck getting rid of him than I did.

Carrying First Polar Airmail Solo Flyer Starts Non-Stop Flight Over Pole From Norway

Oslo, Norway, May 29 — (AP) — Charles Blair started a non-stop solo flight over the North Pole today in the converted P-51 Mustang fighter in which he set the non-stop New York-to-London record last Jan. 15.

Fairbanks, Alaska, is his destination.

Carrying the first Polar airmail — 3,000 letters — Blair took off from Oslo's Gardermoen air base. He planned to land at Bardu, in northern Norway, for refueling this afternoon, then leave immediately on the non-stop hop of 3,300 miles across the top of the world.

Blair, 41-year-old Pan American Airways veteran, again is flying the Excalibur III, the single-seated fighter in which 6 months ago he crossed the Atlantic in 7 hours and 48 minutes. That hop smashed all records for the New York to London crossing.

The letters he carried today will be auctioned in New York for the benefit of the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

Blair took off from Oslo at 10:19 a. m. (5:19 a. m. EDT) and is due to leave Bardu at 3:30 p.m. (10 a.m. EDT).

He said he expected to make the hop to Fairbanks in 10 hours.

Blair plans to cross the North Pole at an altitude of 25,000 feet. Just before leaving Oslo, he said he had a revolver and some food in case he had to make an emergency landing in the Norwegian region.

He will be out of radio contact with the world for about seven hours.

Britain Pleads With Iran Govt. To Negotiate Tense Oil Issue In a Atmosphere of Good Will

London, May 29 — (AP) — Britain pleaded with Iran today to negotiate the tense Iranian oil issue in an atmosphere of good will, "taking full account of the dangerous potentialities of the present situation."

The British statement, delivered by Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison in the House of Commons, rejected one-sided Iranian action in nationalizing the giant Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, and said Britain is ready to accept some form of nationalization of her oil interest in Iran.

The bid for Iranian came as tension rose in Iran over the oil issue. Tanks and troops poured into Tehran as Iran's government braced for communist-inspired "anti-imperialist" demonstrations throughout the country.

Moscow issued another propaganda blast on the issue today, its literary gazette charged Britain with trying to blackmail Iran and frighten the Iranians with military force.

Morrison told the House of Commons that Britain's ambassador, Sir Francis Shepherd, has informed Iran that Britain is ready for some form of nation- will."

Tehran Tense as 50,000 Demonstrators Parade Streets

Tehran, Iran (AP) — A demonstration by 50,000 persons in Tehran today opened a communist-front barrage against the British and Americans hope to the explosive oil issue. Tanks and troop-trucks patrolled the tense capital.

It was the biggest communist-demonstration thus far in Tehran, and it was the signal for other demonstrations planned at key points throughout Iran, called by the communist Tudeh Party as a protest against "British-American imperialism."

The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, chief target of the demonstrators, announced it was withdrawing the wives and children of its British, Pakistani and Indian employes to quit Abadan, the oil port, "on leave" at company expense, bidding all of the company, controlled by the British government.

Three Fliers Seriously Hurt As Plane Crashes

London, Ont., May 29. (CP)— Three fliers from the R.C.A.F. Station at Centralia were injured seriously today when their twin-engined training plane crashed and burned three quarters of a mile north of the airport.

Names were withheld until next-of-kin have been notified.

Three ambulances, escorted by provincial and city police, rushed the injured to Westminster hospital,

Transplanting Begun in Most Farm Districts

Toronto, May 29 — (CP) — Seeding has been almost completed in most parts of Ontario and transplanting begun, the Ontario Agriculture Department said Monday in its weekly crop report.

Ideal weather conditions during the last few days gave growers an opportunity to plant late crops. By the end of the week the tobacco fields were going into the ground in Dufferin county and for the early crops, seeding had been planted in Kent and Essex.

REDS IN ITALY GIVEN WORST ELECTION BEATING

Democrats Win In Four Biggest Cities

The communists were kicked out of five provincial capital administrations they had won in 1945. De Gasperi's forces took a heavy majority of council seats in elections which ended yesterday for a third of the country. The rest of the country votes later.

Interior ministry results in 330 of 554 provincial council seats gave the anti-communist bloc a combination of the majority Christian Democrats party, the Republican, Liberal and anti-Communist Socialist parties—336 places to 164 for the Communist-Leftwing Socialist bloc.

Control 22 Capitals

The returns indicated that anti-communists also had won control city councils in 22 provincial capitals. The communists hold two, and three are undecided.

The parties led by De Gasperi in the port cities of Venice and Genoa—two top prizes in the municipal elections—and three other provincial capitals. Returns which were communist in the five years.

A late vote count from 306 of 329 precincts gave the Pro-Communist Bloc 104,815 votes to 102,-776 for the De Gasperi forces, and observers familiar with the city forecast that the left wing would keep control of Bologna's government by a narrow margin.

Bologna, Ravenna and Rovigo were the only three of the communist gothic-line citadels voting last week. In the other line, stretching from the Tyrrhenian to the Adriatic, the vote test will come June 10 when another third of the country votes.

The rest of Italy's provincial and municipal elections will be held in the fall.

RELEASED ON BAIL

Kingston, May 29 — (CP) — Steven C. Dulmage, Ottawa held on a charge of abducting Mary Wainwright, of Kingston on Good Friday, Monday was released from the county jail when $1,500 bail was posted.

Dulmage, awaiting jury trial at the June sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario, has been in custody since March 23, when he was arrested following an automobile accident.

Police allege that Dulmage took the 19-year-old Miss Wainwright by to his Ottawa home and was refusing him to the city when the accident that led to his arrest occurred.

Wise to Postpone Vaccinations For Certain Diseases in Polio Season

By Allen L. BLAKESLEE

Chicago, May 29—(AP)—In the polio season, June to September, it seems wise to postpone vaccinations of children for whooping cough or diphtheria, unless there's an outbreak of those diseases.

The vaccinations may increase the chances of a child's coming down with polio.

New evidence for this bit of medical advice was described today in the Journal of Immunology. Bacteriologists by Drs. Albert Miller, Milly A. Weiss, and Katherine Schaffer, all of Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago.

The advice stems from studies in Britain and Australia. Doctors found that more children under 5 years old developed polio within a month after vaccination for whooping cough and diphtheria than vaccinated youngsters.

The Chicago experiments were done on nearly 500 mice. The vaccinated mice developed polio much earlier than those not vaccinated, Dr. Miller said. Why the vaccinations did this is not known, though there are a number of possibilities.

The journal of the American Medical Association has suggested it may be advisable, if practicable, to postpone such vaccinations in the polio season. One exception may be babies getting whooping-cough vaccine at the age of three or four months. Such babies are probably not exposed to polio virus anywhere near as much as older children.

Evidence that cockroaches could carry the polio virus, possibly transmitting it to humans, was reported by Dr. Robert G. Fischer, University of North Dakota, and Dr. Jerome T. Syverton, University of Minnesota.

They fed roaches doses of virus including one strain of virus that cause human polio. The roaches eliminated the virus in their drop-

The roaches eliminated the virus for as long as 16 days.

63 Still Entombed By Wall of Rock At 900-Foot Level

Easington, Durham, England, May 29 — (AP) — A violent explosion buried 79 British coal miners today behind a tunnel full of thousands of rocks. The bodies of 14 men were dragged out by rescuers and one man was taken out badly crushed and burned, but by late afternoon 63 still were entombed.

Twelve brigades of rescuers worked in teams through the tumbled rocks attempting to clear 1,000 yards of blocked tunnel to reach the blast area, 900s feet underground at the large Easington coal pit.

R. E. Collins, production director of the Durham coal mining division, said "We have not given up hope." But Fuel Minister Philip Noel-Baker told the House of Commons he feared "it was not at all probable" that any of the trapped men could have escaped through the old tunnels branching off from the gas-laden explosion site.

By early afternoon rescue parties had driven through more than 300 yards of debris. Mining officials said the coal face, where it is believed the majority of men are trapped, is being forced through neighboring seams in hopes it would filter through to the men.

Two Blown Clear

The violent blast blew two men clear of the tumbling debris. One said he was lifted and tossed 60 yards down the tunnel. Another said he was thrown 20 to 30 yards.

"A great cloud of black gas" poured down the shaft, said George Williams, twin brother of 19-year-old Matthew Williams who was the first brought out alive.

The explosion caught the miners just as the day shift was relieving the night workers about 1¼ miles from the bottom of the pit hoisting shaft.

Cause of the disaster was not known.

One of the rescue workers told reporters "It is unlikely that any of the miners in there are alive. The fall is terribly big and we have some idea of the force of the explosion."

The Easington Colliery, one of the largest in the Durham county coalfield, is 10 miles east of the city of Durham. Two coal seams runs under the North Sea.

RARE COLLECTION

Brampton, May 29 (CP)—Bob Palmer of this town, 15 miles west of Toronto, believed to be the only own one of the rarest collection of stamps and bank notes existing in Ontario. Recently he came across a 200-year-old hand organ, a fully working piece, by rails, the frame weatherbeaten but all its parts intact. He also owns a Swedish hand organ dating back to 1700.

United States Will Contribute To Global Force

Atlantic City, N. J., May 29 — (AP) — Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate to the United Nations, said Monday night the U. S. would disclose soon how many troops it would earmark for use by the U. N. in future emergencies.

This was the first official announcement that the U. S. would contribute to a global emergency force, although it originated the uniting-for-peace resolution under which the proposed U. N. army is being set up.

Austin made his declaration in a speech prepared for delivery before the 42nd annual convention of the Rotary International.

In Ottawa it was recalled that Canada was the first country to officially to commit a specific military force to back her U. N. decisions.

In fulfillment of this commitment, the 25th brigade now is fighting in Korea. Canada also has three destroyers off Korea and the R. C. A. F. transport squadron involved in the trans-Pacific airlift.

'Inspector' Tricks Bank Employee, Gets $10,000

Montreal, May 29 (CP) — A "federal inspector" checking to bogus currency last night fled with $10,000 from the St. Sotique Caisse Populaire in the city's north end.

Accountant Jean Marie Messier told police the bank had been closed more than two hours when someone knocked on the front door. Messier said he was engaged in counting the people's bank books.

He opened the door and the bank was closed. The latter said he was a federal inspector verifying the bank's books.

Messier said he let the man in and the latter asked to see $10 bills. Then the "inspector" drew a revolver, emptied the wickets and fled.

Salvation Army Opens Campaign To Raise $7000

The annual appeal of the Salvation Army here opened on Monday. The goals for the city this year is $7,000.

The greater majority of residents are familiar with the fine work being done by the "Sally Ann" during its stay in this city. It may be down but never out" as it has extended a helping hand to many a family in distress that has fallen by the wayside. It has yet to refuse a needy human, regardless of color, race or creed.

This, however, is but a part of the work being done by the Salvation Army. Its good works are far-reaching and many a family as well as individual has reasond to say "Thank God for the Salvation Army".

Its work is never done. Daily its funds are needed to keep the much-needed help to someone. The drain on Salvation Army finances is heavy.

The many organizations such as hostels, hospitals and other activities cannot be operated without funds.

Cognizant of Fine Work

Belleville in the past has supported the Salvation Army generously. Its citizens are fully cognizant of the fine work being done, also, the unsung day after day, week after week and year after year. And especially officials are fully confident that the same fine response that has greeted the Army's appeal in previous years will again be forthcoming.

The city campaign, as was mentioned before, started yesterday. Canvassers will shortly be calling on all citizens. Be courteous, even if you cannot afford to give. But above all give something, whether large or small.

The "Army" is relying on its many friends in the city to once again support its efforts in a financial way. And a generous one at that.

Campaign headquarters are located at the Citadel on Pinnacle Street. Donations will be gratefully received.

More Canvassers

By the way some twenty-five or thirty more canvassers are needed more canvassers are needed. Those desirous of assisting the Army along these lines are requested to get in touch with Major Honeychurch at the Salvation Army Citadel and they will be given their cards and all other canvassing equipment.

The Salvation Army will be deeply appreciative of any efforts along these lines.

Choir Boys and Girls of 'Y' Sing Way into Hearts of Large Audience at Collegiate Eighty choir boys and girls of the YMCA sang their way into the hearts of a near-capacity audience at the Collegiate Auditorium Monday night.

In their first appearance before a public audience, the choir under the direction of Walter Bent, YMCA program director, and aided and abetted by clever comedians, instrumentalists, and individual vocal artists made a distinct hit with a clever tuneful presentation.

It was a good show. And from the opening 'How Do You Do" to the grand finale "Whispering Hope" sung by the massed choirs, the program while somewhat lengthy, moved briskly along in a melodic sequence.

The choral work was a distinct departure from the hoary effort sings of adult organizations. The sweet soprano voices of youngsters heard in light scores, some of them humorous, bespoke months of intensive rehearsals under the direction. The girls' choir, while not numerically as strong as that of the boys did give a splendid account of itself in the few numbers it sang.

Number of Selections

The boys' choir was heard in "Emperor Napoleon" "Grandfather's Clock," "Week Day Song" humorous numbers. The well-known "Old MacDonald Had a Farm," "Comin' Round the Mountain" in a good rendition scored in the first half of the program and in the second it offered "Are You Sleeping?" "Under the Lilac Tree" and the finale "Whispering Hope."

Under the direction of Mr. William Gander the girls' choir sang "I Got a Robe," and "A Frog Would Awooing Go" besides the finale.

Vocal solos were given by Ken Burroughs, whose "Lucky Old Sun" and encore "Ol' Man River" ovation, Ron McBride in "If", Walter Richards in "April Showers"; Ron Poste in "It is No Secret What God Can Do"; Bob Wills in "Jesus Jane" with the choir, and Larry Tucker in, "Bless This House."

Clever Instrumentalists

Dale Roksab, a clever young accordionist offered "Red Right Hand" and in response to prolonged applause gave the "Beer Barrel Polka." Another clever young instrumentalist was Ken Davidson who demonstrated his ability on a guitar.

Larry Regensburg, Roddy Grills and Ron Poste made up a trio while the three young ladies Deanna Mansfield, Betty Davidson and Maureen Clark sang "Sisters Trio of Day." A girls' quartet composed of Judy Watson, Ann Poole, Jane Partridge and Jackie Cowan offered the "Cradle Song" in soft sweet voices.

There were skits aplenty. But one that nearly brought down the house was the fine performance of Bobby and Carolyn, twin children of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Franklin in a comedy offering "The Way the Trouble Began". Pupils of Miss Jessie Tuite, Albert College, the youngsters showed wonderful histrionic ability and a distinct flair for comedy in their humorous portrayal of Mr. and Mrs. Cruickshanks' a long-suffering wife and a hen-pecked husband.

How Mr. Cruickshanks finally wheedled a dollar from his wife to go to the fair and the funny situations that followed and drew a fine ovation from the audience.

Fine As Impersonator

Dick Lynch also showed outstanding ability as an impersonator. He started with the "record" in a fine portrayal of the late Al Jolson in his famous "Mammy" and "Rock-a-Bye Baby".

The "Andrew Sisters" Dick Lynch, Bob Crull and Jack Root, garbed in elaborate evening dress plus wigs and chapeaux, drew roars of laughter with their funny antics in imitating the famous trio. Plus a "Bing Crosby" they offered "Quicksilver" and added further laurels to a job well done.

Alec Gordon was heard in an organ solo as well as accompaniment. Ron Poste offered a piano solo.

Ted McDonnell and Paul White in a Spike Jones arrangement of "Mexican Hayride" had the audience laughing throughout. The youngsters proved fine comedians in this difficult impersonation skit.

Choir is Praised

Preceding the show Mr. Al Davis, Y.M.C.A. general secretary spoke briefly on the time and effort expended by the choir in order to its present high status. Mr. Norman Edwards of the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors thanked those during intermission.

Walter Bent proved a capable master-of-ceremonies for the show as well as directing the choir.

Mrs. Clinton McBride was the pianist accompanist and was presented with a bouquet and another gift by a member of the choir. Walter Bent also received a token of appreciation from the boys.

The stage manager was Mr. Gander while the make-up was in charge of Mrs. Lloyd Grandam assisted by members of the Y.M. C.A. Women's Auxiliary. Mrs. Grandam also was also assisted in many ways was personally thanked.

The proceeds of the Variety Show will go towards defraying expenses of the choir, which has been invited to sing at the Canadian National Exhibition this fall.

IN MEMORIAM

MARCH — In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away May 30th, 1950.

The calling of years will not lessen
But still the record remain
The memory of the voice, the smile
The hand we shall not clasp again.
We mourn for mother in silence,
No one but God can see
But many a silent tear is shed
For one we loved so dearly.
It's lonesome here without you,
We miss you more each day
Somehow we cannot believe
That you are called away.
Sadly but surely and lovingly remembered by the family and grandchildren.

PLANE — In loving memory of our little son and brother Ronald Plane, who passed away May 30th, 1947.

Gone from this world of sorrow,
Gone from this world of care,
God must have a beautiful garden
Because He took you there.
Take him in Thine arms, dear Lord
And rest him on Thy breast,
A messenger bore Jesus' word
And God knew best and Thou
Lovingly remembered by Mother, Dad and Ralph.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 29 — (CP) Prices climbed slowly as the session progressed on the stock market today.

Prices moved ahead at the opening following yesterday's advance and continued edging higher.

Trading was again extremely quiet. Volume for the first three hours of 640,000 shares, was about 160,000 shares more than the same period yesterday.

Industrials posted gains ranging from fractions to around a point. Papers led the way with a solid rolonnade of plus signs and steels, utilities, agricultures, foods, retailing oils and textiles followed. The rest of the board was mixed.

Base metals eased at the opening and then mustered enough support to show a majority of issues ahead at the close. Hollinger, International Nickel, Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge and East Sullivan were the most active while Steep Rock, Labrador, Normetal and Quemont advanced.

Western oils, like base metals, were higher with a slightly mixed tinge. Royalite, Home Oil, Anglo-Canadian, Calgary and Edmonton and Calvan Consolidated posted small advances while Gridoil, National Petroleum, Del Rio and Federated Petroleum weakened.

The exchange's 1 p. m. indices showed industrials up 2.20 at 321.16, Golds down .54 at 77.60, base metals off 2.24 at 173.00 and western oils up .96 at 103.19.

Council Approves Formation Of Bay of Quinte High School Area by Recorded Vote of 10-4

Belleville city council voiced its approval of the proposed Bay of Quinte District High School Area yesterday when at their regular meeting members approved of the by-laws being read ing councils concerned and voted that the necessary steps be taken to form such an area.

The high school area would be composed of the city of Belleville, with the rural municipalities of Thurlow, Tyendinaga, and part of the township of Ameliasburg in Prince Edward county. Hearings council will discuss the matter at their session this week and it is expected action will be taken in passing the necessary by-laws. The Prince Edward county agree the new high school area would come into being on January 1, 1953.

Although the motion for the by-laws to join with other municipalities in the area, the recommendation did not pass in city council without a lengthy discussion, or before an amendment submitted by Alderman Ross Tice had been voted down.

Amendment Defeated

When the original recommendation by Alderman Porter was being discussed, he came up with the amendment that council express its willingness to the educational accommodation at the collegiate institute for all pupils in the province, and for the city to sell education to the municipalities concerned at the cost of the building of education.

The amendment went on to recommend that the building be sold under terms of a satisfactory agreement which would extend for 25 years at 3% on the unpaid issue.

The amendment was lost by 10-4 count, the same vote by which the original recommendation was passed.

Grants Guaranteed by Dept.

Alderman Porter in submitting the recommendation which ultimately was carried, told council that guarantees would be given grants which might be secured from the department but prevented his doing so before.

"It is now guaranteed that the grants for the new school would not be less than they are now under the operation of the two separate high schools."

Alderman Argue demurred by saying that the matter of assessment of unimproved property to be levied against the respective municipalities in the form of charges would have to be levied on an assessment basis he would be opposed to formation of the area board until he was assured that charges would be levied on an assessment basis.

In presenting his amendment Alderman Hyde said he was also opposed to the by-laws because the charges would be unfair to the city. "We could not possibly ask the taxpayers of Belleville to pay more for education than should be paid by the rural area," he said.

Reasons Broader

Alderman Clarke made it plain that he also was opposed to the area but his reasons were broader than merely that of costs based on assessment.

"We will go into this area, all the assets of the present board of education will pass on to the new board," he pointed out. "The act provides that the city may go on borrowing money but let me point out that no city in Ontario has yet gone into such an agreement."

Mr. Clarke went on to point out that school costs would be increased in proportion to the equalized assessment of the municipalities concerned. Belleville's assessment he said, was roughly 17 millions, while that of the rural area coming into the high school area would be but six millions. Against this he said the fact that enrolment at the collegiate now half from the city and half from the rural area.

Rural Areas Not Interested

In answer to the argument placed by opponents of the area Alderman Porter noted that the rural area had stated definitely that it was not interested in the purchase of education from the city. He noted that the approximate costs of the various schemes set for had been worked out and said regardless of the scheme adopted the costs to the city would be roughly the same.

He did not get Alderman Clarke's point in saying that all assets of the present board would be turned over to the new board. "Loose control," he said. "What good does it do us to say that we will be represented on the school? It has no monetary value, except as a school."

Alderman Rollins wanted to know why the rural area did not wish to continue purchasing education from the city. He was told by Alderman Porter that among other things, the rural area preferred to have some say in the operation of the school. This it did not have under the present system.

Alderman Not Satisfied

But Alderman Argue still was not satisfied and pointed out that of the 4 that voted against the recommendation, 3 were from the county, not the city, which needed a new school. "City pupils alone would fill the school within a few years" he said.

Also if the city entered the area as a part of the cost of transporting rural pupils to the city would be paid by the city.

"When the matter of the high school area was discussed last year it appeared the county was not ready to pay its way," he said. "That was one of the reasons why there was no recommendation forthcoming from the committee appointed to investigate."

Not Reasonable to Sacrifice

"It is quite true that the present school will satisfy the needs of the city for some years, the recommendation did not pass in city council without a lengthy discussion, or before an amendment submitted by Alderman Ross Tice had been voted down.

Amendment Defeated

When the original recommendation by Alderman Porter was being discussed, he came up with the amendment that council express its willingness to the educational accommodation at the collegiate institute for all pupils in the province, and for the city to sell education to the municipalities concerned at the cost of the building of education. Alderman Countryman

The amendment went on to recommend that the building be sold under terms of a satisfactory agreement which would extend for 25 years at 3% on the unpaid issue.

The amendment was lost by 10-4 count, the same vote by which the original recommendation was passed.

Shuffle in Public Works Dept. Arouses Considerable Discussion in City Council

A shuffle in the public works personnel which will place Mr. Clifford Matthews as supervisor of works and see the hiring of a new clerk for the city engineer's department was approved by city council Monday afternoon.

As a result of the shuffle Mr. Matthews will be moved to an outside job to replace Mr. F. T. Sumerhayes, who is head of the public works staff. Lorne W. Probert of the city will be hired as clerk in the engineer's department at an unstated salary.

Only opposition to the move came from Alderman Charles Hyde who introduced an amendment to have Frank Sparks named as supervisor of works with no additional members to be added to the public works staff or to the city engineer's department.

No Increase Intended

To this Mayor R. T. Potter and Alderman Porter noted that no increase in staff was intended. They said Mr. Stephens was leaving.

Alderman Rollins objected that the public works committee should first have been consulted to hire the new clerk—only to recommend—and council as a whole should have names of all the applicants.

Mayor or not moving Mr. Matthews from his present inside job to that of superintendent of works, the city's payroll was doubled by Alderman Haig who said Matthews' present value to the department was at inside work. "Mr. Matthews in his years with the city has developed a vast amount of accounting knowledge," he said. "I think it would be mistaken strategy to place him outside."

Amendment Defeated

Alderman Latimer wanted to know if the appointment was to be permanent or merely a "stopgap" with Mr. Matthews later to be replaced by the present inside job. He was told the move was intended to be permanent.

Council voted down Alderman Hyde's amendment and Mr. Frank Sparks named as superintendent of works, and approved of the appointment of Mr. Matthews and hire Mr. Probert as clerk.

Repeated oiling of city streets with manhole covers being covered up in the process has council in finding them again, according to Alderman Don Thomas, chairman of the public works committee. He said that men were spending hours in the city to find manhole covers on certain streets and recommended the purchase of a detector machine to do the job. Other machine works or the principle of a mine detector and costs about $100 were promptly recommended the purchase.

The city engineer will be asked to advise council as to the city's right in the disposal of buildings on the Bridge Street property.

Keep Old Curtain

The old painted curtain which graced the stage of the city hall auditorium will not go into discard, but will remain on the stage. The stage has now been redecorated in room for Chamber of Commerce offices and council recommended the curtain be kept as the scene of the auditorium until suitable disposition can be made.

Alderman Hyde turned down a recommendation introduced by Alderman Haig that the city hall switchboard operator placed under the supervision of the executive assistant at the present time. At present the operator is under the welfare department.

The executive assistant committee will decide on a "suitable" location for the placement of 'E' Company of the Hasty Pees which has gone active.

Many Surgestions

There was considerable discussion as to what a suitable location might be, suggestions ranging all the way from a dinner to sweaters with crests.

There was some objection on the grounds that the city could not lend membership to an 'E' Company of the Hasty Pees when hundreds of other men had gone actively with the air force, navy and also the army, before the Hasty Pees completed enough men for this was the argument that Belleville was headquarters for the Hasty Pees.

The Canada Transport Commission may be granted permission to install a gasoline pump and storage tank on the property on Coleman Street.

Reception For Editors

Approximately 40 editors of American weekly newspapers will be entertained at a brief reception in the city on June 21st. It is the 5th annual tour of U.S. editors through Canada. They will stop briefly in the city for a reception at the Shrine Club before moving on to Trenton Air Station for dinner.

Aldermen Rollins, Argue and Lummiss, along with Chamber of Commerce and secretary Freeman Burrows, were named to attend the Trade Fair in Toronto to represent the city. Each of the men will spend two days at the fair.

Mayor Potter wanted to know if the expenditure was worthwhile. Alderman Rollins stated the cost would be worthwhile as several industrial prospects were to be interviewed at the fair.

Council referred back to a motion by Alderman Hyde to fill in the marsh between Zwick's Island and the mainland with material from the island.

Suggests New Garbage Dump

Speaking to the motion Alderman Hyde pointed out that in the near future the city would have to find a new location for dumping garbage and other refuse. He thought the marsh adjoining Zwick's Island would be an ideal place.

He said that for the past 30 years the city had been using garbage and ashes to fill in waste land on the easterly section of Front Street and Albert Street with result that approximately 100 acres of land has been created.

"If the marsh land around Zwick's Island was filled in we would have an area of approximately 35 acres of valuable property," he said. "This could be used for the purposes of the city in particular use. There is a sewer nearby. Along the north side of the C.P.R. tracks and water service is not far away."

Need Fill of Earth

Before the marsh area could be filled in, however, Mr. Hyde said that the city would have to extend the north end of the island to the mainland was needed. This would prevent seepage out into the bay.

The proposed construction of an 18 inch sewer by the city two years ago was referred to by Mr. Hyde. He said the estimated cost of the incinerator at that time was about $90,000. Plans and specifications were prepared, but when these were received nine months later the estimated cost was $200,000.

Perhaps by this time the cost would be nearer $300,000," he suggested.

However, a hearth for the incinerator had been ordered, but delivery had been held up as the city was not ready to proceed with construction. Mr. Hyde was sure that there was an adequate site on part of the suppliers to force the city to accept the hearth as it was of size and had probably "been sold long ago."

Wants Debt Reduced First

"But even if we had an incinerator it would still be necessary to have a location for the disposal of non-combustible refuse," he pointed out.

"I am not in favor of spending any large sum of money for an incinerator at this time, in fact I am opposed to spending any sum, large or small, for anything that would increase the municipal debt. existing debenture debt is reduced.

In conclusion the alderman said he was sure the cost of constructing the earth fill at the end of the marsh would be trivial as compared to the cost of building an incinerator, plus the salaries of four or five men to operate it. He said it would be worthwhile to propose tenders on the filling in placing the fill.

In reply Alderman Lummiss admitted the idea may be a good one but reminded that the city has not yet got the marsh.

Disagrees with Estimate

Alderman Tice disagreed with Mr. Hyde's estimate of the probable present cost of building the incinerator. He said the first estimate had been $90,000 and the second price had been $125,000 or $200,000. He also pointed out that the city owned only 16 acres of the marsh, the balance being owned by the federal government and by private parties.

The motion presented by Mr. Hyde was then referred back for consideration by the planning board and by the parks board and for determination as to the terms of the marsh property.

Alderman Haig complimented members of the Arena committee in their operation of the arena which had shown a substantial operational profit amounting $9,000 for the year. Net balance now owing the city by the Arena commission is approximately $17,000.

Alderman Haig also referred to the criticism aimed at city council with the Shelly-Arena purchase of a truck for the public works department. Tenders had been called and a truck costing $274 more than the lowest tender was purchased.

"While I do not wish to extend the controversy which has taken place over the recent purchase by the Council of a truck I feel that there are some broad principles involved in regard to both the discussion and general policy of public purchases which are generally misunderstood upon. You will recall that the committee of last year purchased a truck which was not the lowest tender and if I remember correctly the committee of that year, purchased the truck because it was a Canadian product. I do not think anyone will deny to the committee of that year received better value than that of the preceding years. In the case of the purchase of shirts for the firemen and policemen the lowest tender possible was made possible that a shirt costing $2.95 would be infinitely better wearing than a shirt costing $2.75. I think that in considering the purchase of the chief at $2.75 it should be by betraying the public trust and not giving the person in the case of purchase of shirts the quality to which they are entitled.

"I happen to be a member of the committee which purchased the truck in question. It was unfortunate that controversy should have eventually resolved upon the two trucks which have been referred to. I am not a mechanic nor a member of the committee specifically advocated the purchase of the particular truck because it was the cheapest, and the truck which, in the opinion of the committee on the definite recommendation of the Department of Public Works of Canada, the truck was to be used.

"Whether the committee was been correct in its decision could be open to argument. I do feel however, that any criticism which is to be levied at the decision should be on a basis of having made such decision. I do not feel that no Council when making a decision under similar circumstances should follow the principle to necessarily accept the lowest tender."

Fuel Oil Stolen From Householder

The winter heating season is over, but apparently there still is a demand for fuel oil.

At least that is the report of a West Hill resident who had complained to police that 100 gallons of oil disappeared from the tank outside his house.

Two other instances of petty thievery were reported. A Moira real man parked his car on the market square only to find it broken into and several articles of clothing missing. The thief apparently was frightened off or opened the door before he could get very far.

Still another resident complained that a pair of expensive binoculars had been stolen from his boathouse some time since Sunday.

This morning's court session was brief. A local motorist was convicted of drunk driving and sentenced to seven days in jail, while a number of drunks pleaded guilty, some of them facing the conventional "ten and costs" or out of town and others taking 10 days in lieu of fine.

Two Jet Trainers Flown From U.S. To Leave Trenton

Trenton (Special)—The two United States jet trainers flown into R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, last week by the Ferry Flight of No. 6 TAD, will leave the station again this week for Chatham, New Brunswick.

The planes were flown direct from the Lockheed aircraft plant at Van Nuys, Calif., by Flight Lieutenant W. Speck and Flight Lieutenant A. A. Procter. Both men will fly the jets out again this week for Chatham's operational training unit.

The planes are the first of many to be received by Canada from the United States for training pilots who will later fly the CF-100 and F-86 jet fighters. Government officials said Saturday that it is expected that 100 of the T-33's would be purchased from the U.S.

TIBET'S FUTURE IS DIM

Another nation has fallen under the communist wing, and another people will be subjected to harsh red control. Tibet, the latest in the chain of Soviet satellites is Tibet, the gateway to India. By Russian-engineered treaty, Tibet is now nothing more than another finger on the long arm and hand of Soviet domination and aggression, and any move or fears toward peace can now be regarded as a direct opposite of that.

By the terms of the treaty, all of Tibet's trade and commerce will be organized and taken over by Russia's red China. Her troops will be integrated into the Chinese communist army, and Tibet itself "will banish imperialist influence and revert to red China." Red radio broadcasts, however claim that Buddhism, the religion of Tibet, will remain untouched.

Perhaps, the final step but one has been taken in the subjugation of another country by the Soviets. The final step, that of destruction of religion, has not yet been made. But it will, in all probability, be done by a slow program. When that happens, the soul of Tibet will be surely killed, and it will become just another cog in the Soviet machine.

The western world will be forced to take notice of the latest Soviet aggression, for more and more reason. Perhaps the prisoner in Tibet Prime Minister Pandit Nehru, of India, has been subjected to increased wooing by Mr. Stalin, and his basic ideas of nationhood and its principles of government have been altered, if only slightly. The communists seem to have been altered, if only slightly. The communists have jumped to India's slow western world by agreeing to supply wheat to India's starving millions. While the western nations tried to decide how and when they should help to cut down on the starvation, an alert communist machine jumped in with food. They are ready to find an excuse to grind out more propaganda, the reds sent wheat. Their action was not motivated by any feelings of kindness, but by a desire to spread communism.

A religious split in India has been promised by the red dictators. While guaranteeing to keep the Dalai Lama (who fled to the Indian border when the communist invasion began) in power, the reds also propose to set up a puppet ruler from China. The result will only taking over the country, but the attempting to split it internally. Tibet's future is dim and grim.

IRAN BECOMES MORE IMPORTANT

Iran, it appears, has found more trouble than she bargained for when she nationalized the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company almost four weeks ago. With Britain and the United States still fighting to retain an interest in the country's prime resource, the situation bids fair to assume the role of a second cold war.

The basis of the bid by Britain and America to retain interest is that both countries are afraid Soviet Russia will gain control of the oilfields. Iranians claim that they have not been fairly treated by the Anglo-Iranian company and not been fairly treated by the profits from oil diverted to their own country's coffers. While they may have a point, they might be in for a production for or by Soviet Russia would be a good deal more harsh than that sponsored by British or American capital.

The communists, seizing on the situation, have incited student meetings to protest the imperialism of western nations, and are reportedly gaining wide support in Iran. The premier of Iran, Mohammed Mossadegh, who has become known in international circles as "the hunting premier" because of his habit of slipping into unconscious repose when a crisis is being met, has arranged for the tools of war to be at the ready.

Britain has moved to have her parachute army within close reach should a war, holy or otherwise, break out. The United States has made her representations, because she would not like to see the oil get into aggressor's hands. It would appear that very little is needed to spark a full-scale war, and it is very likely that it would be a second Korea, with the western nations supplying the bulk of the free power, and the communists feeding arms, and supplies to the other side.

Just as dangerous as the prospect of a "hot" war between east and west is the chance that Iran may be subjected to riot and war from-within. Since the oil company has been taken over by Iran, royalty payments on the black gold have stopped. And since this money makes up the best part of Iran's income, the economic life of the country has been slowed to a considerable extent. Just how long Iranians will stand for a situation in which their country is without funds to operate is questionable. If they should make objection by force, the resulting civil war might easily erupt into a full-scale battle on a world front.

Iran has not yet taken the emphasis off Korea in international relations, but it seems now that it may do so within a short time.

SLEEP MEDICINE

The thing you need is sleep, that's best—
It's coming to the close of day,
With no wide thoughts disturbing rest,
No loss of pride along the way;
No fear of what the morrow will bring,
Just for today a day well spent.

It is a comfortable thought
To retire during regret
Knowing you've toiled the way
And every obligation met,
And every obligation met,
No fretting over blunders made;
No promised letter still delayed.

There's no barbiturate can bring
So sound a sleep as peace of mind.

And, looking back, remembering
No bitterness that lies behind.
A day well spent, through good and ill,
Is better than a sleeping pill.

A STATEMENT TO PONDER

"From earliest childhood I have learned that in Jesus the supreme example of one who loves His neighbor and expresses that love in actions that count, who knows that people can find their way in living themselves in something of great value; who will die rather than betray the truth in favor of the popular view held by his most respected contemporaries. That Jesus' spirit lives vitally in men today, makes me hope that by following in His footsteps in my small way, I, also, may live forever . . ."

"Go out and help someone by doing something for others. Get interested in helping the other fellow solve his problems, and you won't have any time to worry about your own."

Who wrote this? You will no doubt reply that it appears to have been written by a clergyman. But this is not correct. It was written by the president of one of the largest companies in the United States, who, before he held this position, was an athlete at the navy.

Very fortunately, religion today is losing its professional status. It used to be that only ministers and a few conspicuous lay leaders spoke in terms such as this. But today the businessman and others are talking in a different tone and fashion about religion and the influence of Jesus on modern life.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

What kind of people are these who go in for little dangling ornaments in their car windows: monkeys on trapezes, dolls, and birds affixed with suction cups? They even have them inside and on their windshields. In several Canadian cities, the police have tried to discourage the habit on the ground that such gewgaws interfere with proper driving vision.

If you would take note of the drivers and passengers in cars decorated with these trinkets, you will observe a curious similarity in appearance. Men smoke cigars, but do not hold the cigars between their lips: they hold them in their lips so they droop and waggle.

The women also are given to wearing their hats at a tilt, and of paper or flimsy cloth, with the name of some baking powder or house paint printed large on the back.

The women are the type who wear slacks if the men do, and make them look like the last elephant in the parade. If there are little girls in the car, they have their hair done up in rag curlers, and wear pink, pink sashes.

On the few occasions that you might be called upon to ride in such cars, take your trinketeers, there is no doubt it would feel as if they were handing you a pound of sausages. Good heavens, what malice is creeping into this Packsack! In the event that you might be invited into the homes of these people, you would find the mantel and all the side tables cluttered with small ornaments of a hundred kinds, including ivory elephants. There would be yellow or pink satin pillows, with frills and beads on them, tastefully disposed in corners of sofas and chairs. Of this the polite and national safety organizations have no comment, but they bet us to keep the trinkets out of car windows.

OUR TOWN

THE FATAL ACCENT

The evidence is piled too high to ignore. Immigrants from the Old Country, unsurprised to start fresh in Canada, are meeting discrimination. An "accent"—be it Oxford or cockney—can be a burden.

I wrote the other day that I hoped this wasn't true. The answer was a flood of letters from immigrants. They were very similar. Canada is wonderful, they all agreed. But they realized they must adapt themselves. But they are finding something less than equality, or opportunity.

"As a recent immigrant myself," writes one, "I'm not sorry I came. I like Canadians. But there is a definite bias against English immigrants.

"To me, my experience that employers here fall into two groups: those who will not employ an Englishman under any circumstances and those who will because they know that he will put up with anything in order to hold a job."

Another writes: "I resent being told by some personnel manager that he will not employ me because I'm British. The English have no guts or initiative and expect to come out there and be waited on hand and foot. I listen to long-winded monologues about the 'tempo' of Canada, and the 'pace' of the new life in the 'old country' and how it is doubtful whether I could ever adapt to it. I resent the master mind who tells me that I will have difficulty in getting a job because I don't have had Canadian experience.

"Most of all I resent the man who says I must not expect too much from the old country and tells me that it's finished and suggested that the dry rot set in the day after he left."

A Few Cases

There are several cases reported of this strange kind of discrimination.

One English ex-pilot who arrived here two years ago writes: "I have had to fight for my fit in; not because life or practices here are any different than they were in the R.A.F., but because of a psychological feeling of resentment I've encountered. Perhaps I've been over sensitive, but I get the impression that all Englishmen are born snobs. One potential employer said to me bluntly, 'I don't like the high and mighty way you Limeys act!' I suppose we do have our individual characteristics at that, but it seems too much to ask to have us neuter ourselves."

Another ex-pilot, also an Englishgirl who emigrated last July. Jobs as a teacher of history in some of the better schools in England and Jamaica and had been a British Council lecturer in Stockholm.

This girl could not get work in Belleville, Ontario, because she hadn't the necessary certificate. Her Cambridge degree in history meant nothing. So she worked as a dishwasher in one of the larger hotels for three or four months and finally landed an office job at $125 a month.

Another writes that one of an English girl of good education and exceptional ability who applied to the personnel manager of a big department store for a job. "The manager took her brought with her almost gone," my informant writes, "Her room rent was paid up for the next month, but she had been rationing herself to three dollars a week on food.

"The manager, who was supposedly trained in personnel work, politely turned down she burst into tears. The personnel manager, seeing her distress, remembered that a girl was needed in the kitchenware department. So he went down to the section manager with a note that she was to be given a job selling kitchenware. The manager sent her back with another note to the effect that he was sorry, but he already had one there; she had an English accent and the customers would not be able to understand her!"

And Baseball

Most acknowledge a rather staggering number of letters from baseball lovers clouting me over the head with the strong opinion that the game is really pretty dull.

Sports Desk Tanner writes: "Baseball is not a subject to be treated like the fashions of women's hats. It is a game that, in its way, is cultured, a very personal love to a great many of our people, it is a good outdoor game and is spreading steadily and surely around the world."

Another correspondent J. O'L. writes: "Your column gets pretty awful at times, but I don't think more awful than today's cockeyed attack on baseball. I would sure like to know why it is that when there some night and watch you go down swinging."

Publisher Taylor adds this note: "You are like my wife who never could understand what baseball fans see in the game. More consequently, stays at home when I have an evening up. It's simply the most subtle and mentally demanding of all and perhaps the only sport in which clothing is reduced to a minimum."

One man has quit the paper because of my "attack" on baseball. The game must surely have something to inspire such loyalty. But I'm darned if I can see what it is.

INNER ASSURANCE

I attended a first private showing of a new engine which the Chrysler Corporation will put upon the market. The exhibition emphasized the engineering triumphs of the corporation, which has most interesting but what also attracted my eyes most, and what I have thought about ever since, was the exhibition of a box of tools that Walter Chrysler made himself. He started as a mechanic and to found the great concern that he did, and to build the organization that is known around the world.

Walter Chrysler was born in a small town in Kansas, and he never knew what it was not to work. He is by birth a railroad engineer, and his ambition to become an engineer kept him working hard. So he got a job that paid him ten dollars a month. It was the money he was after, however. It was the fulfillment of an idea he had in his heart upon. The thought of this when I went through the great organization he has created, and recently when I actually looked at this unique monument known as the Chrysler Building, I thought of it.

That Chrysler box of tools made me think of the first automobile that Henry Ford made, and which he showed to friends later with such pride. Within the breast of each one of these men there beat and without fanfare, rise to heights that no one else had ever dreamed ever of attaining. It's the inner assurance that keeps whispering to us that we can do anything of which we are capable, and no one else can know how true that assurance is.

There are times that come to us all when we know we are right, but that we are undefeatable. And it is this inner assurance that inspires us to go ahead with our plans, even to move a mountain or two if necessary!

SHOP TALK WITH REAL DOCTORS

Officially I have no friends left in the profession, because I blab too much about the tricks of the trade. Unofficially or via long distance communication some real doctors still chat amiably with me about this and that, shop talk, you know. In fact these undercover colleagues have been and still are the best sources of material for this column.

From his home in a small college town where there are two hospitals, both semi-private or semi-public, a doctor in general practice says he has had perhaps more than his share of obstetric cases. About half of his patients have been confined in hospital, half at home. All of them lived in ordinary middle class homes, no squalor, no great wealth. His best judgment is that mothers and babies have done at least as well in hospital as at home. The baby was born at home than they have when the baby was born in hospital. But it is certainly a lot easier for the doctor to attend confinements in the hospital.

The doctor does not say whether he instructs expectant mothers in the modern way as exemplified by Dr. Grantly Dick Read in his great book Childbirth Without Pain (Harper). Which, I think, is required reading for every firm intending to have children. I mean that both expectant parents should study this book and everything else available on the subject. Call it C-R-I, and teach them to wear the masks whenever your baby is due. C-R-I. For a copy of the booklet send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Color Blindness

What causes color blindness? I have two children both born with it. Has it been found color blind by army-doctors. The rest of the family are all right. Is there any help for this. (Mrs. M. M.)

Answer—Lack of perception of the fundamental colors—red, green and blue—a congenital abnormality. The fact which occurs in 3 or 4 out of each hundred males. It is hereditary. Females only rarely are color blind although they may transmit the defect to half of their sons. Cause unknown.

SET WORLD RECORD

Berkeley, Calif., May 29 (AP) — Four University of California students yesterday set a "world" teeter-tottering record—24 hours of ups and downs. He had at least two different mates in the feat.

Army Medics Waging Fight Against Addicts

Tokyo, May 29—(AP)— While United Nations troops battle to destroy the communist forces, army medics behind the lines are waging a relentless fight against drug addiction.

They say they are winning.

The medical authorities deny published stories that use of drugs has become a major problem among troops in Japan and Korea.

Maj.-Gen. Edgar H. Hume, surgeon general of the Far East Command, expressed surprise when informed such stories had been circulated. "The whole major problem exists," he said.

Hume said admissions to army hospitals for drug cases were "normal and about the same as experienced in any civilian hospital in the United States."

Ontario Govt. Fiscal and Housing Policies Criticized by CCF Speaker

"Present buoyant times are unprecedented in our province, but we shall come to power in these times," the pre-prophecy made last evening by Dr. Thomas, M.P.P., C.C.F. member for Oshawa, riding of an audience of approximately 30 members of the local C.C.F. club.

"Capitalism is the natural evolution from feudalism and socialism is the natural evolution from capitalism," he continued. "Governments have been doing the right thing by the working man, and given a sense of fair play, but because of pressure from the C.C.F. and the trade unions. They keep doling out benefits in dribblets in order to keep the people satisfied and to keep themselves in power."

"The monied interests in Canada and the United States are opposed to the British Labor Party because they know that if it succeeds the people will demand the same type of government here. Your work is to act as missionaries of the socialist cause, by word of mouth, and through the C.C.F. News, for the day is coming when the C.C.F. will obtain the government of the province and of the Dominion."

Revenues, Cost

Mr. Thomas devoted the greater portion of his remarks to a discussion of the sources of revenue and the expenditures of the present provincial government.

"The revenue of the provincial government, from direct and indirect taxes will be 254 million dollars this year, Licence fees on automobiles and an 11-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline accounts for 87 million dollars. Corporation taxes get 71 million dollars. Liquor taxes bring in 39 million and lands and forests 13 million."

"I have never dealt with lands and forests myself, but from all the timber and wood exported to the United States, the provincial government received only 13 million dollars in taxes while it cost the government $12,700,000 to operate the Lands and Forests department. So the people of Ontario lost not only all the timber but $700,000 besides, in addition that the Conservatives have denied the best interests of the people under pressure of vested interests."

Inspired Accounts

"And how is this money spent? One of the major items is grants to social municipalities, and the grants to education of 48 million dollars. This grant to education is based on assessment, but there is no yardstick for assessments in this province and some municipalities have deliberately kept their assessment low with the result that they are receiving 98 per cent assistance toward the cost of education."

"Since educational costs the people of this province 100 million dollars yearly this leaves a burden of 52 millions to be met by the municipalities. I think that the province should, and can, give more assistance to education and lift this municipal burden."

In explaining where this money was to come from, Mr. Thomas stated that the present government is taxing corporations to their limit of 10 per cent, and taxing it a rate of only 2 per cent.

Would Raise Corporation Taxes

"With a 71 million dollar revenue on a seven per cent tax, the government would be able to collect 28 millions more simply by raising corporation taxes to the 10 per cent limit agreed on by the federal and provincial governments in 1946. That 28 million, if added to the grant for education would finance 75 per cent of the cost in this province and greatly relieve the municipal tax burdens."

The speaker also outlined a program of government warehousing of beer in which the province could substantially increase its revenues from a paltry six million dollars.

"Three brewing companies in Ontario had profits of 44 million dollars last year, I think that we can get some of that money. The province, by warehousing beer along lines similar to the Liquor Control Board's sale of liquor could derive 26 million dollars more a year."

Criticizes Housing, Pensions

Mr. Thomas also struck out at the government's policy in regard to housing and old age pensions.

"Last year the government granted only $365,000 to the municipalities to aid housing and yet the Prime Minister now hopes to attract 150,000 immigrants to Ontario this year. Where are they going to put them? Last year there were 67,000 marriages and only 52,000 homes built, so we are already 5,000 homes behind. The provinces and the Dominion will not help. I think that housing is one of the greatest bulwarks against communism and deserves government aid."

In discussing social security and old age pensions Mr. Thomas pointed out that it will cost Ontario just five million dollars to provide old age pensions on a 50-50 basis with the federal government for those between 65 and 70 years old with a means test. The federal government is going to pay the whole cost of old age pensions for those over 70 and there will be no means test."

The speaker concluded his remarks by urging the audience to work for the success of the C.C.F. "whose time is coming."

The speaker was introduced by Mr. A. D. Archibald and thanked by the president of the local club, Mr. E. Wilson.

WILL BE GIVEN HOLIDAY

Toronto, May 29—(CP)—Ontario public and high school students will be given a holiday next Monday to celebrate the King's birthday, education department officials said today.

Although the King's birthday actually is in December it is celebrated in June when the weather usually is more suitable for holiday seekers. Government employees also will be given a holiday

Students Produce Annual Issue BCI Magazine

The students of B.C.I., as is their custom, have produced a school magazine again this year. And as in former years, the quality of work in "The Elevator" is high. The literary content is versatile, and some of the "chink" pieces show a maturity of style not found all too seldom in high school work.

Any faults that can be found in the magazine of this type must be weighed against the difficulties the students face in its production. With only their spare hours to devote to it, they are faced with a time problem. Many of them do not have a great deal of experience, and that, coupled with the fact that they must keep on top of their studies, creates a difficult situation for them.

Good Editing

Their efforts have been worthwhile, however, because "The Elevator" should stack up well against any other school magazine. They have used their pictures well and fully, creating more interest in an event by the judicious use of photos. An example is a one-page layout for "Arms and the Man," this year's Dramatic Club production. Staff shots and one behind-the-scenes photo help recall the event.

In the humor section, there are the eternal inanity handed out to fellow-students by the editors. In some of them, gleaned apparently from exchange magazines, are in the form of jokes, and others are in verse. Insulting as some of them are, they're all in the game.

The top literary efforts in the book include a review of customs and fashions, highlights from issues of "The Elevator" since its inception in 1913, written by Barbara Arnott; a wee poem entitled "Guilty or Not?" by Barbara Greatrix; a creative piece with a twist ending by Donna Cameron; and a humorous story about an advertising contest by Joan White.

Fine Lay-out

In general, the writing is of good calibre. Advertising, while it is a necessary part of the magazine, in this case has been treated with the proper restraint, and is a credit to the rest of the magazine.

Editor of the magazine this year was Harriet Thompson; she was assisted by Marilyn Andrews, Barbara Hamilton, Jacqueline Varcoe, Don Dolan, Nancy David, Wayne O'Hara, Joan Walden, Mildred Taylor, Roy Taylor, Murray Lennox, Bob Reid, Jim Wagg, Flora Clarke, Barbara Arnott and John Burrowes, in direct capacities. Faculty advisers were Mr. Linton Read, Mr. R. Tindale and Mr. J. Snetsinger.

BECAME SUSPICIOUS

St. Catharines, May 29 (CP)—A local farmer became suspicious when his son and neighboring boys went on picnics every day taking a good supply of food with them. Investigating, he discovered the food was being delivered to a 15-year-old boy who had run away from home and was living in a tree and canvass lean-to. The boy was turned over to Children's Aid officials.

Rev. E. Caldwell Guest Speaker At Rotary Club

"You and your job" was the subject of an interesting address given by Rev. Ernest Caldwell of the Shannonville Anglican Church at the weekly Rotary luncheon in the Quinte Hotel on Monday.

"It is of salient importance", stated Mr. Caldwell, "to think of ourselves and our own job. A man's work must be part of himself. You must lend dignity to the community of which you are a part."

Elaborating further on his topic Rev. Caldwell said "Your body, mind, soul and spirit must be in your job. Your job is the most vital contribution that you can make to the community."

Mr. Caldwell, during the course of his address told several anecdotes about the Anglican Church and about his native Nova Scotia.

A graduate of Dalhousie University, Rev. Caldwell paid a very high compliment to Rotarian Dr. G. H. Stobie of Belleville. He said that even during his college days at Dalhousie, one of his professors, Dr. E. K. McDonald, had mentioned Dr. Stobie as one of the outstanding surgeons in Canada.

The speaker was introduced by Canon Jack Creeggan and thanked by Rev. Duncan McTavish of Bridge Street United Church.

Dr. Bert Howard was commended by the District Governor for his address "Youth and Rotary" at the recent district meeting.

Rotarian C. L. Morgan reminded the club once again of the meeting at Batawa on Wednesday, the 30th of May. He urged that a large representation from the local club be on hand as they are the sponsors of the meeting.

Man Crushed Beneath Wheels Of Transport

Baden, May 29 (CP) —Clarence Dingman, 38, of Stratford was killed when crushed beneath the wheels of a C. and N. transport truck on the highway in front of the Baden Hotel today.

He had attempted to cross the road in front of the transport and when part way across tried to return, but slipped and fell. The wheels of the Kitchener-bound vehicle, driven by Grant Collins of Watford, passed over his body.

Dr. T. R. Feick, coroner, had the body removed to the Kitchener morgue. It is unlikely that an inquest will be held.

Dingman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dingman of Stratford was working at Baden.

WEDDINGS

PRICE—ROBINSON

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, May 26th at high noon in the United Church Madoc, when Helen Victoria Robinson, of Toronto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Robinson, Madoc, became the bride of Melvin Haley Price, of New Westminster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Price. The Rev. G. W. Stevenson officiated. The bride entered before a background of spring flowers in tall standards and vases, and was lovely in a floor length bridal by white satin bows and tiny sprays of lilies.

Mrs. Bruce Robinson rendered the wedding music from Wagner's "Lohengrin", and the soloist, Mr. Don Bastian, of Lorne Park College, sang before the ceremony, "The Wedding Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "This Is The House".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a charming bridal gown of white satin trimmed with imported French lace and pearl Elizabethan lines with attached train. Her three-quarter length veil was held by a bridal halo of net, and she carried a white Bible with streamers attached to red rose buds and lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Claude Horton, of Lorne Park College, was matron of honor; Miss Evelyn Ball, of Toronto; Miss Eleanor Wells of Stirling, and Miss Margaret Robinson, of Peterborough (were bridesmaids. All were similar gowns of net, and carried bouquets of yellow, pink, mauve and blue, respectively, with matching floral headdresses and carried bouquets of spring flowers with streamers.

Little Miss Sandra Wells, of Stirling, was flower girl, daintily frocked in mauve taffeta with matching pale bonnet and carrying a nosegay of lily-of-the-valley and pansies with gold and mauve streamers.

Master Billie Wells, of Marmora, dressed in white suit, acted as page boy.

Mr. Harold Kemp, of Frankford, was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Bill Campbell, of Barrie; Mr. Claude Horton, of Lorne Park College, and Mr. Bill Robinson, of Madoc.

The reception was held in the church parlors, where the bride's mother, wearing a two-piece grey sheer with embroidered yoke, matching accessories with corsage of pink rosebuds and fern, received the many guests. She was assisted by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Charles Wells, (in the absence of the bridegroom's mother), who was gowned in black sheer with corsage of lily-of-the-valley.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Price left for a wedding trip to the west coast, through the United States, where they will visit the bridegroom's parents, at New Westminster. For travelling, the bride chose a grey suede nylon suit with blue accessories. They will reside at Middlemus, Ont., at the Middle.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Sarnia, Lefroy, Port Credit, Wallaceburg, Brockville, Tweed, Stirling, Marmora and Peterborough.

Miss Barbara Diment Feted by Mothers

The evening was spent in dancing, games, and a social get-together, with the highlight being the presentation of a mock bride and groom which kept everyone in gales of laughter.

Following the dancing, an address was read to Barbara by Mrs. Wesley Gray, Jr., and the presentation of a silver tea service and a silverware was made by Mrs. Harold Thrasher, Mrs. Mansfield, Mrs. D. Chisholm and Mrs. A. Bannon, on behalf of the mothers.

The tea table was a picture of spring loveliness centred by two bride's cakes in all their pink and white beauty, flanked by floral decorations and silver services, from which the sumptuous refreshments were served.

TEN JAPANESE DROWNED

Tokyo, May 30 (Reuters)—Ten of the 24 crew members of the Japanese fishing boat, Nabesaka Maru, were drowned today after a collision with an American landing transport off Miho peninsula, south of Tokyo. The 35-ton fishing boat sank immediately.

Ladies' Aux. Holds Afternoon Tea

An afternoon tea and sale of home cooking was held recently at the home of Mrs. Charles Coleman, 47 Geddes Street, under the sponsorship of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Bofler Group of the C.N.R. Athletic Association.

Mrs. Charles Coleman, hostess, and Mrs. Harry Boyle, group leader, received. Mrs. B. W. Quaid acted as treasurer for the occasion.

Inviting to the attractive tea room was Mrs. F. B. Cross, while those who presided at the daintily appointed tea table with its hand-made lace cloth, centred with a lovely arrangement of tulips and lilly-of-the-valley, flanked with silver candelabra and ivory tapers, and silver services, were: Mrs. G. Rodgers, Mrs. Masterson, Mrs. Roy Johnston and Mrs. Faulkner.

Those who assisted included: Mrs. W. Wale, Mrs. C. Lloyd, Mrs. A. N. Dickens, Mrs. F. Savage, Mrs. G. J. Anderson, Mrs. W. Smith, and Mrs. B. Storms.

In charge of the beautifully decorated pink cake, was Mrs. E. K. Hilton, and the lucky winner was the gracious hostess, Mrs. C. Coleman.

The homecooking table presented most inviting array of choice pastries, cookies, pies, cakes, and buns, and was well patronized, under the charmers Mrs. H. Clarke and Mrs. P. Burton were busily employed wrapping and packaging.

An attractive afternoon tea, nicely conveyed.

'Bosom Friend' Is Popular As Bra Purse

New York, (CP)—Now milady's First National Bank has a new safety deposit vault.

It's known as the "Bosom Friend"—a small, plastic-lined crepe purse that can be snap-fastened to both shoulder straps and tucked inside the bra. In it the wearer can carry "anywhere from 12 to 15 folded bills according to your size."

The inventor, Mrs. John D. Robinson of Wallace, N.C., said here the idea came to her years ago when she was travelling all over the country attending women's meetings.

"Women are always losing their purses," she said, "I've never been to a meeting yet where that hasn't happened."

Women long ago thought up the trick of carrying extra cash in a handkerchief tucked down inside the neckline.

Commercial Venture

And so the bosom friend was born. It was not until quite recently, though, that Mrs. Robinson began to realize the commercial possibilities of her idea.

Then she took out a patent, set up several machines in the garage (her doctor-husband now parks his car under the portecochere), and seven women began manufacture of the gadget. In the last year more than 5,000 of them have been sold in department stores and by service clubs through post exchanges in North Carolina and neighboring states. Now Mrs. Robinson is trying to broaden her market.

Up to now, Mrs. Robinson admits, the invention has not made her "fortune—we use up $500 worth of material before you can say scat." But she adds proudly that her bosom friends have been used "everywhere in the world except Korea and China."

"I look on it as an answer to a woman's prayer."

Now she is working on another project, a bosom friend for men which "should be fine for fishermen and hunters."

DWINDLING TERRITORY

Indian land holdings in the United States totalled 53,000,000 acres in 1950, compared with 157,000,000 in 1887.

Women of The Moose

On Sunday morning, a number of Women of the Moose, Belleville Chapter 436, with their brothers of Loyal Order Moose 1004, Belleville, and their wives, attended the Area meeting at Peterborough.

Many were under the way with Tommy Taylor, the bus driver, leading. When Peterborough was reached all went to dinner, and then to the meeting.

The meeting was called to order by Governor Ben Snooh, Peterborough, who welcomed one and all, introducing the visitors of the day. Governor Gorham, of Port Hope, also tendered his welcome.

Leo Bashey, secretary of Activities and Socials, gave a talk on the various activities that had been carried out in the last six months. He mentioned that the notice for the next meeting to be held at Lindsay would reach the various lodges and chapters in time to plan for it.

Mrs. Ward rendered a solo, "Jealous Heart", which was well received.

The next speaker was well-known, Bro. Bill White, of Lindsay, who told of the large increase they are having in membership.

Past Governor Art Savage of Belleville, spoke for Belleville Lodge 1004. Here again Mrs. Ward entertained with "Daddy's Little Girl". Bro. George Bird, Belleville, asked permission for the bus driver to sing, and the applause was so great that Tommy favored all with several popular tunes, with all joining in "Irish Eyes Are Smiling".

Bro. Len Robb, Owen Sound, gave a talk on membership and activities; Sr. Regt. Selina Isles, Belleville Chapter, told of the many things accomplished this year, that the defending circle had been increased with 32 members.

Sr. Regt. Saunders, of Peterborough, tendered her vote of thanks to all attending stating how glad she was to see old faces and to meet the new ones.

Regional Director Norman G. Heyd, of Toronto, who needed no introduction, gave an interesting talk, on "MoosehearT" the child city and "Moosehaven", the city for the aged.

Of interest to all was the story of David Potter, a Canadian boy, who will graduate head of the honor list, from MoosehearT, on June 23, 1951. All should strive to help David who wishes to become an engineer. He will attend one of the universities in the fall. All six more lodges in the area to lodge in the district will work hard to be sure David has the chance he deserves.

Funds are to be raised and sent to Governor Ian Snooh, Peterborough, to help the fire victims' families, as soon as possible. Last but not least, the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, where a certain sum of money is sent each year to maintain a child's cot and anything needed for it. All Loyal Women and Women of the Moose have a big year ahead and many activities will have to take place to raise funds for the various projects.

After Mr. Heyd finished his speech, a question and answer program followed with Mr. Heyd answering all questions.

A delicious buffet luncheon was prepared by the women of Peterborough Chapter to whom a vote of thanks was tendered by all.

Bro. George Bird, Belleville, extended an invitation to Bros. Norman G. Heyd and Len Robb to attend Belleville's 'Open House' in the new hall, in the near future, which was accepted.

A lovely draw, donated by Jr. Grad. Regt. Kay Donnovan and Recorder Gladys Hitch, was won by Leo Bashey, Port Hope.

British Woollens Popular Products in Festival Year

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—With a knitting history dating from the 15th century, Scotland still holds her own in the sweater market.

Many overseas visitors who like a woolly during chilly weather in Britain can be a good deal chillier than Canada in the summer—seek out the cashmeres, gay Fair Isles and feather-weight Shetland lace jumpers that have already made their name throughout the world.

This can be done without even leaving London. At most large departmental stores in the West End, Canadian and American visitors are found buying the finest "export" products of England's north country and the Scottish mills.

Sweaters, however, don't hold all the limelight. A favorite Canadian choice is a knitted "tuxedo" suit under a variety of names—the Rob Roy, the Blue Bonnet and the Limerick Bonnet. This knitted headgear has a history traceable to 1590 and was originally made in Stewarton, near Kilmarnock.

A gift choice for boyfriend or husband is a pair of Argyll-patterned socks with matching pullover. These are made in adult and junior sizes.

Strapless Sweater

For the ladies there is everything from thick golfing jackets to fine off-shoulder and strapless sweaters suited for the most formal evening wear. A beautifully-tailored example is a Pringle sweater with long sleeves and pointed off-shoulder neckline.

A fashion increasingly popular for country wear with tartan skirts is a sweater combining woven and knitted materials. For instance, a tartan sweater with short dolman sleeves has deep knitted waistband of heavy rib and matching knitted collar.

A waistcoat with the same idea has tartan front and ribbed back.

In direct contrast to the pounge-neckline sweaters that have continued in favor, collared neck-lines are gaining popularity. Among these is a deep-pointed, double-collared effect that sets off to perfection the slim, tailored lines of a plain sweater with a single line of fancy stitching running vertically from neck to waist, accentuating the severity of line.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

No end his best friend like the same girl

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have dated a girl several times who has also been going out by my best friend. I thought he only regarded her as a girl to say hello to on the street, as he was in the time of day with. Now I realize that he likes her very much, but is too shy to keep asking her out. It seems plain to me by the way this girl acts that she likes him very much, so I now have the problem of deciding whether to try and get this girl myself or to get my best friend to go back to her without letting on how much it will hurt me to lose her.

W. A. R.

Dear W. A. R.:

It is nice to hear from a boy who shows such a spirit of real friendship and doesn't want to let his best friend down. At the same time, it seems to me that if he were really deeply interested in this girl he wouldn't be "too shy to show it.

If you want to be sure you are the chosen, however, then I suggest that you come right out and tell your friend that you think the girl likes him, and that if he wants to keep her interest, he should show a little more self-assurance. Then you might just as well tell him that if he doesn't do this, you will feel that everything is all right for you to take girl out yourself.

As for how you will feel if you lose her, she might finally prefer you anyhow, and if not, somebody else will come along whom you'll like just as well or even better. You don't think so now, but that really is the way things work when boys and girls are growing up.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going out with a boy for about three months whom I like very much, and I was sure he liked me. I do not like to have to don't go out with boys very much.

The other night this boy said he wanted to quit me and go with another girl. He said that she wasn't a nice girl and that he didn't love her or even respect her, but that he preferred that kind, and that I was too good for him. He also told me that some day when he had learned how to be a good boy he would come back to me; that he never would me to be his kind but to always stay like I am.

Why is it you can't be good and popular, too? I would rather stay at home and be a "good girl." Do you think I should go back with this boy when he comes back, or would I ever be safe with him again? I am a discouraged girl.

B. D.

Dear B.D.:

The answer to your first question is, that lots of girls are both popular and good-natured. If a girl is uncompromising and fun to be with, she can be good and like herself, and respect her self, but she won't force herself to like them in order to do what she knows is not right for you. You may not believe it now, but some day when you grow older that this true. So do not think you have to choose between staying at home all the time and being a tough girl.

As for this particular boy, you are much better off without him than with him. No boy who has the attitude of this one is a good friend for a girl. Instead of waiting for him to come back, let him gradually fade out of your mind by going out with as many friends as possible and having lots if interests. Before you know it, you won't miss him at all, and in the end you will be glad he showed his true colors.

SENTRY JUSTIFIED

Singapore, May 28 — (Reuters) — Pte. K. A. Fisher, a British sentry, was justified in shooting W. R. Evans, Canadian-born mining engineer from Cardiff, Wales, when the latter refused to stop his car on orders, a coroner ruled today.

He returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Evans, 35, was born in Regina, Sask. He went to England as a child, studied at the University of Sheffield, and went to Malaya in 1930.

Petal Colors for Wool Toppers

Not only the loose but shapely mer fashions, the colors lend themselves just as handsomely to typical hot weather evening clothes.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Thoughtful guests shot with these who are invited to a tea

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At several teas given in private houses, which I have attended, I have noticed that the ladies who pour tea seem to take their politeness for granted. Even when they are not pouring they sit in state and apparently feel no responsibility for sociability among the guests.

Yet these are people who at other times are very chatty and sociable. Should they not, as co-hostesses, help to make things pleasant for the guests? Sometimes there are periods when they are not at all busy. Are we guests committing a breach of etiquette in trying to chat with them, when we happen to be sitting or standing right beside them?

Lois S.

Good for you. . . this is an excellent question for you to point up for the consideration of all of us! My thought is that these ladies who graciously pour at tea-parties are not so much to blame for their seeming lack of sociability as we guests are for not taking enough initiative, thought to "draw nigh" to chat with them. Unless someone stands by them, or sits by them and starts a conversation, they just can't do much about chatting with the guests. I'm sure they don't want to "sit in state", but when guests arrive to be served, they must be graciously and conscientiously on the alert to serve them, and when they are not busy they are anchored to their posts. And they'll always be grateful to any guest who "comes to visit" a while!

Three kinds of soup cups

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Exactly what is a "soup cup"? Has it a definite size? Is it the same as a bouillon cup?

Althea M.

There are three kinds of cups that can be used for serving soup.

(1) The standard soup cup, which is exactly like a 2-handled teacup, and has a matching saucer. This is the kind of soup cup that is referred to as a "bouillon cup".

(2) The soup cup with the wide bowl is called a "cream soup", and this is between a soup cup and a rimmed soup plate. This cup is sold with a matching saucer. It is used for cream soups, chowders and so forth, for luncheon and for informal dinner service.

(3) The pottery bowls, usually made with a cover and usually will be dragged down and will weaken. The woman who has a habit of sniffing is the one who will have a smooth complexion until the autumn of life—unless, if she respects the laws of health, eats wisely, breathes deeply and gets sufficient sleep.

of overware (often of French or Italian pottery); they hold about twice as much as the usual soup cup. They are particularly practical for the hostess who cooks as well as waitress and hostess, and very appropriate and useful for buffet service.

Form an envelope and save with flowers for funeral at church

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When funeral flowers are sent to the church, how should they be addressed . . . that is, what form should be given to the florist?

2. Should a message be written on the card enclosed with the flowers?

V. L.

1. The envelope containing the card should be addressed to:

The funeral of Mrs. Arthur Robinson Faith Church

(with address, if necessary)

2. Only the sender's name is on the card. . . no message. The card may be a visiting-card or a plain white card supplied by the florist.

Engagement announcement when fiance's parents are separated

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know the proper way to announce our engagement. My fiance's parents are separated, each lives in a different city, and both are Catholics.

A. B.

The engagement announcement might read:

"Mr. and Mrs. George Martin Browne, of 340 Pleasant Street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Adelaide Marie Browne, to Mr. William Paul Wentworth, son of Mrs. Arthur Peter Morrison, of Denver, Colorado, and Mr. Morrison of San Antonio, Texas."

Fashion Flashes

A MAJOR fashion just now is the cost of crisp fabric. A good version is in wool and rayon mills, done on modified pyramid lines with tiny mandarin collar, jewelled buttons and a gay plaid taffeta lining. Very new in grey that goes nicely with every color.

NOVELTIES abound in toppers just coming into the shops, with fabrics such as white linen, and white corduroy in the fabric line up. White linen, with small collar and deep turn-back cuffs of rich black satin ottoman, makes a handsome topper with softened shoulders, oval jet buttons for the high-placed closing, and huge hamilla pockets with curved, arrow-shaped borders.

RARE BEAUTY is well expressed in a new lingerie collection imported from France and Italy. Black chiffon, with a deep black lace hem, makes a handsome slip, pin-pointed all over with confetti dots of black satin.

IT'S NICE to possess a well-rounded wardrobe of good fabric gloves—from double cotton, through pique and silk shantung, to nylon— to see one smartly through the summer. A good glove is done in navy or black cotton. Cuffs are formed of a white pique band that slips through bars of the glove fabric, for an effect like a London "bobby's" arm-band.

IT ISN'T EASY to resist treating oneself to a fine leather bag, with such a wealth of good designs available just now. Bamboo beige calf is used for an elongated clutch-bag, piped and lined with navy blue calf. There's a slip handle at back.

PLENTY OF USES, we would say, for a handsome, perfectly tailored jacket of fine white tweed, embellished with an embroidered crest-emblem in red, navy and gold thread. Three-button closing with whitehorn buttons, well seaming at the pockets, and thin silk lining are other features.

SECRET AMAZES FRIENDS!

"Out of the blue . . . !

"I certainly stole the show the other day when I told my friends the secret of my washing—the whitest in the neighbourhood. Just swish Reckitt's Blue through the rinse," I said, 'and out of the blue comes the whitest wash.' Reckitt's Blue costs so little and makes such a big difference."

B-98

Desirable For Daytime

A DRESS of beige rayon sheer, a good daytime choice, cleverly utilities graduated folds to add interest to the otherwise pencil-slim skirt. This turn-back tabs at the back are of black silk bengaline, to make for the always interesting color scheme of beige and black. Similar detail is repeated at the sleeves highlighted with glittery rhinestone buttons. The small stand-up collar is held closed by a little loop on the inside. This model is fine for now and right on into spring as one of those smartly simple dresses that fit well into almost any daytime occasion.

BEAUTY

Facial Exercises.

In youth the flesh on the face is firm and smooth because the underlying muscles are normal and resilient, forming a strong background for the skin. In later years, however, the delicate fibres begin to weaken, tissues sag; the cutaneous is covering, being too large for the under-padding, falls into fine lines.

Some beauticians believe that muscles can be strengthened by facial exercises so they put the beauty customers through a course of exercises before giving them a complexion treatment. The movements they recommend are simple enough. Any woman who fears that she is no longer within touch of her youth might try them.

One is an imitation yawn. Throw the head backward, open the mouth wide, and bring the lower jaw up again slowly. You will notice that this will have a flattening effect upon a budding spare chin. The fibres of the throat will be brought into action, insuring against fiddle strings, the bane of many middle-aged women.

Holding the jaws far apart, endeavor to bring your lips together. This is recommended for the elderly sisters who find that tiny up-and-down lines are appearing along the border of the upper lip.

There is a special exercise for the woman who has lines from nostrils to lip ends. She must purse the lips tightly together; then, still keeping them closed, endeavor to do a broad grin. This movement has a favorable effect upon sagging tissues along the line of the jaw. Follow with an exaggerated smiling expression that brings the lip ends upward.

The girl whose pet peeve is hollow cheeks will fill them out by puckering her lips and blowing. Before doing this she must paint her face with a heavy cream, and place fingers and thumbs outspread over her cheeks, lifting the flesh with a circling movement that draws out the trumpeter's muscles. She will help along the good work by drinking a quart of rich milk a day. Milk isn't just a beverage it is a nourishing food, and the thin-faced girl usually needs more than she consumes.

Whether or not the tissues of the older woman will sag depends, to a considerabel extent, upon the habitual expression. If lip ends droop, the cheek muscles

WEST HUNTINGDON

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

West Huntingdon — Members of the United Church here set a new record on Sunday when, instead of having the annual anniversary service in the Autumn, when most of the churches are having anniversaries, thus causing considerable confusion, the people here held a most inspiring and successful service on Sunday last, with both morning and evening services being conducted by Rev. Gordon McKenzie, Queenborough.

Mr. McKenzie brought fine, inspiring messages that were much appreciated by the large congregations. The choir under the leadership of Mrs. W. Grant, with Mrs. George Ashley as pianist, rendered several fine anthems and at the evening service Mrs. Grant contributed a solo.

Nicely Decorated

The church was suitably decorated with many potted plants and flowers.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hiebert landed Mr. and Mrs. Ken Thompson and Maureen, and Mrs. Robert Cox, all of Belleville; Miss Donna Gray, Miss Bessie Hollinger and Grant Davenport and H. T. Burks, of Fuller.

Mrs. Peter McInroy has returned home from Port Colborne where she spent the Winter with her daughter, Mrs. M. Longwell. On her return she received the sad news of the death of her sister, Mrs. D. Mr. W. Tanner, of Belleville, has purchased the dwelling on Front Street from Mr. Sid Elliott, and will take up residence in the very near future.

Endeavors' Class

The Endeavors' Class held their monthly meeting for May in the church on Thursday evening with a good attendance of members present. Mr. and Mrs. Don Spencer made arrangements for the fine evening's entertainment which consisted of musical selections and readings from friends from Mt. Pleasant. Those taking part were: solo by Mrs. Marguerite McMullen; duet by Mr. and Mrs. Ross Summers; piano solos by Miss Betty McConnell and readings by Mrs. Percy MacKlem.

Mount Pleasant is to be congratulated on having sent a variety of talented entertainers; their contribution to the program was greatly appreciated.

The guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Roscoe Robson, M.P.P.

Mr. Robson brought a most helpful message, dwelling on the attitude towards those in authority over us.

The appreciation of the class to those assisting on the program was voiced by Mr. Alex McCurdy. The president, Mrs. Mac Saries, was assisted in the worship service by Rev. M. Clarke offering prayer and Mr. Phillip Carr conducting the Scripture reading.

Mrs. Eric Summers was chairman for their part of the program. Following the benediction refreshments were served.

I.O.D.E. Studies Need For Migrant to Learn English

Saskatoon, Sask., May 20, (CP) — A recommendation urging that immigrants be required to learn English within a limited space of time today was placed before the annual meeting of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

It was presented by Miss D. E. Taylor, of Ottawa, who as immigration and naturalization convener reported on the Order's work with new Canadians during the year.

Miss Taylor said the I.O.D.E. has received letters from persons in different parts of Canada asking assistance in getting their relatives to join them in this country.

"Many of these letters were from resident Chinese who wanted to get their families free from communistic influence in China," she said.

"It is expected, however, that owing to new regulations in cost of passage and the requests of Canadian industry for men, that the number will be greatly increased in 1951," she said.

Since the end of the last war Canada had admitted 436,385 immigrants.

In New Brunswick, she noted, new arrivals were provided with adequate clothing when necessary, entertained in homes, taught English and Canadian home customs. Sponsors Education

I.O.D.E. Chapters of Quebec sponsored 2,000 immigrants in various ways. At the moment one was sponsoring three "displaced persons" for the child of a new Canadian.

Ontario reported 13 newcomers had joined the Order.

British Columbia was among the provinces recommending that some knowledge of the English language be required before the granting of government certificates.

Reports on the Order's endowment fund, the Commonwealth and Empire committee, also were heard at this afternoon's session.

An overview of the latter committee, Mrs. Charles Scott of Peterborough, Ont., told of the Order's overseas work and particularly what it has been doing in India.

One of the major efforts in this field during the year was the provision of money to help with the translation into Hindi of nurses' textbooks.

Mrs. H. H. Rimmer, of Toronto, presented the final report of the endowment fund which has reached its minimum goal of $200,000. However, she reported the fund will remain open for such new chapters that may wish to contribute "in securing the Order's security and financial independence."

Mrs. Laurence Grant, of Toronto, secretary of "Echoes", the Order's official publication, reported the magazine finished the year with a surplus of $2,911. Last year it had a deficit of $981.

Mrs. O. L. Robb, of Toronto, Publicity convener, noted that the wide distribution of publicity the Order received during the year was partly due to the singing of Queen Mary's carpet in the provinces.

FLYING SAUCER?

Overseas Countries May Get More Newsprint With Britain Receiving Much Larger Share

R.C.A.F. PROMOTION

Air Vice Marshal C. R. Dunlap, C.B.E., of Sydney Mines, N.S., presently Air Officer Commanding North West Air Command, has been appointed to the same position in the newly formed Air Defence Command with headquarters at St. Hubert, Que. The former Air Defence Group which has been raised to command status, will be responsible for the control of R.C.A.F. fighter squadrons located in Eastern Canada, as well as for regular and reserve radar aircraft control and warning activities. — Central Press Canadian.

Ottawa, May 29—(CP)—Two negotiations concerning newsprint—one deal just completed and the other expected to come up with an announcement in a day or so—seem to spell some relief for newsprint-short European countries.

Lord Layton, chairman of the British Newsprint Supply Company, announced yesterday in Montreal that an agreement has been reached with Canadian newsprint mills. Agreed on was "a program of supply to Great Britain during the next three years within the framework of Britain's long-term contracts which extend to 1958."

Well-informed quarters here estimate Britain likely will get about four or five times the 20,000 tons of newsprint she got from Canada in 1950. She may even get more in the following two years, dependent on world demand for Canadian newsprint.

But other overseas countries—France, India, Italy, Turkey—also want newsprint from Canada.

Their need may mean that emergency international allocation may be just around the corner for Canada's precious newsprint.

Informed officials report this may develop out of a Washington conference of 10 countries, now meeting the following two years dependent on world demand for Canadian newsprint.

But other overseas countries—France, India, Italy, Turkey—also want newsprint from Canada.

Their need may mean that emergency international allocation may be just around the corner for Canada's precious newsprint.

Informed officials report this may develop out of a Washington conference of 10 countries, now meeting the following two years dependent on world demand for Canadian newsprint.

One of the recommendations of the International Materials Conference, informants believe, will be that a small amount of newsprint taken from North American mills, be set aside to meet overseas shortages.

The allocation is old expected to be more than a small part of the 171,000-ton increase expected in Canadian newsprint production this year—from 5,270,000 tons to 5,450,000.

Informed quarters believe the supplies can be met without any direct government control over what Canadian or American publishers get from Canadian mills.

This move, however, is not likely to be the final solution to a steadily-increasing world shortage of newsprint and other controlled allocations may have to follow in later months.

Weary Fighters Standing Guard On Rim of Fire

Toronto, May 28—(CP)—Weary firefighters, aided by a cover of patrolling aircraft, stood guard along the 250-mile rim of a giant forest fire which they brought under control yesterday 60 miles south of the northern Ontario gold-mining town of Timmins.

Forest protection officials said the fire, which had crackled northward from Gogama district across almost 100,000 acres of pine, birch and slash, might break out again at a number of points unless the rain fell.

An inch of rain late Sunday and early Monday helped check the fire's advance, but flames continued to eat up yesterday under clear skies.

The weather office here forecast sunny, warm weather in the area today, with light winds.

"They're for a few days of warm weather now," a forecaster said. "It looks like more bad forest fire weather."

At last reports, however, all fires in the province were under control. A total of 23 were burning yesterday.

Damage in the Gogama-Timmins fire in its weekend race through scrub timber, jackpine and birch areas of birch and pine timber, where a similar fire burned 10 years ago and a children's camp aided the spread of the new one.

Although the Sunday night rain, together with scattered showers last night, reduced extreme fire danger, the danger of new blazes was still regarded by officials as "medium to high."

A travel ban in Cochrane and Timiskaming districts will remain in effect until conditions improve.

SHEEP KILLERS FALL TO HUNTERS' GUNS

The careers of two wolves which killed many sheep in Prince Edward County, Ont., ended when Conservation Officer Forrest Richardson, left, arrived with two trained wolf hounds. Previous efforts of local hunters had failed to find the killers. Those who were in on the kill pose with their trophies: Kneeling — Forrest Richardson, Cooper Dulmage, Frank Demore, Jack Tuttle and Harry Cowan. Standing — Elmer McConnell, Morris Tuttle and Herb Cowan. The hunters believe that a litter of young wolves is still at large and will become sheep killers next year. — Central Press Canadian.

ABDUCTION CHARGED

Mrs. Jean Dormer, 36-year-old Scottish war bride, is charged with the abduction of her daughters Diane, 12, and Lynn, 6, at right, from a New Brunswick convent. Her husband, a paper company official from Dalhousie, N.B., charged that Mrs. Dormer removed the girls from the convent and was preparing to sail for Scotland with them. Mr. Dormer is a Roman Catholic, his wife a Protestant. The other two children shown with their mother are: Susan, 2, left, and four-year-old Anthony. — (CP Photo.)

Profits From Opium Will Aid Communists in Indo-China

Saigon, Indo-China. (Reuters) —On the windy foothills of northwest Indo-China's forbidding mountains, old men with keen three-bladed knives are bending again over p red sea of poppies.

With a dexterity born of countless generations, the thin, wrinkled tribesmen from the country's more remote areas are cutting the blooms with tiny, neat incisions.

Their sons and daughters follow in their wake, collecting in little cups the dark brown sap that oozes from the incisions.

Production Illegal.

Today, opium production is illegal. The French, adhering to the 1946 Bangkok convention, have officially stopped buying. Theoretically, there will be neither opium smokers nor opium producers in Indo-China by 1953. But the drug drawn from this year's poppy crop will be vital to thousands of unregistered addicts and some smugglers.

The Communist-Viet, who pay an important role in the battle between the French union forces and the communist-led Vietminh (national resistance).

French reports indicate the Vietminh are doing all they can to collect a maximum opium harvest for sale to China and Thailand in exchange for arms.

The "opium problem", indeed, is said to be an essential factor in the "war of attrition" being waged in Indo-China by Vietminh leader Ho Chi-Minh.

Vietminh raiders and tax-collectors may get a large proportion of this year's opium crop. Also competing will be caravans now working for opium smuggling rings.

The black-market price for a pound of Indo-Chinese opium averages about $635—more than double what the French official opium monopoly is prepared to pay or has the right to demand. But the monopoly will be out of business this year because it is reported to have all the stock it needs to sell to its diminishing list of legal smokers until it is abolished in 1953.

Hard To Stop

Some opium from the remote northwest is carried once down the rivers hidden in lumber logs, stuffed in truck tires or by a dozen other means.

From the smuggler rings, it will find its way into the opium dens of every town and village. Huge amounts will find their way abroad to places like Hong Kong, Singapore and Japan, and eventually to American and European capitals.

In the northwest opium is one of the tribesmen's few ways of getting money with which to buy consumer goods. It is as natural a cash crop for him as rice.

Apart from the fact it is a serious offence to sell opium to a soldier, there appears to be little supervision over smoking in Indo-China.

Much of Indo-China's addiction is said to be engendered by the Japanese occupation in the Second World War. Then production was encouraged. Japanese officers made money from the traffic and used it to bribe spies and informers.

NUT GROWER, 93, SURVIVES FALL

Internationally known nut grower and vegetarian, 93-year-old George Corsan, broke his neck in two places in a 20-foot fall from a ladder on his 25-acre nut farm at Jallygton, Ont. Although seriously injured, Mr. Corsan, who is more active than many men half his age, objected strenuously against being taken to hospital. His only comment was: "I think I have strained my neck." — Central Press Canadian.

WANTS CUSTODY

Sydney, N. S., May 29 — (CP) — Charles Dorrner moved Monday to obtain custody of his children from his wife, Jane, who is bent on taking the tots to her native Scotland.

Police stopped the 36-year-old woman last Tuesday night before she would have boarded a train-Atlantic line en route to Edinburgh with the four children. Her husband, a Dalhousie, N. S., lumber executive, charged her with abduction.

The case was adjourned until today.

New Oil Refineries in Britain Will Sharply Reduce Imports

Fawley, England, May 28 (AP) — Britain and the United States have joined forces to push to completion Europe's biggest oil refinery six months ahead of schedule.

Representing an investment of £7,500,000 ($21,025,000), the project was started near here only two years ago by Anglo - American Oil Co., now newly - named Esso Petroleum Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. (N.J.).

Next October the refinery will be delivering 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline a day — well ahead of the January, 1952, deadline for the first phase of the project.

Its construction on a 450-acre site is a happy tale of Anglo-American co-operation. Only one per cent of the 1,000 employed on the project are Americans. They are the engineering supervisors.

The new refinery, which will produce 25 per cent of the refined output of the United Kingdom, will sharply reduce Britain's dollar expenditures for oil products.

Crude oil from the near east will feed it. This will obviate Britain's need to import more costly refined products from the U. S.

Fawley is only one of the new refineries sprouting up throughout Britain. In Fawley itself there was a pre-war refinery, also built by Esso, with a capacity of 900,000 tons a year. Its younger, bigger counterpart will, eventually, produce 6,000,000 tons a year.

Other post-war refineries are the Shell units at Stanlow and Shellhaven — designed to process on completion in 1953, 2,800,000 tons of crude oil a year each.

At Coryton, the American Vacuum Oil Company is building another one, to process 900,000 tons a year.

British imports of crude oil for refining were about one - sixth of total oil imports before the war. Now they represent 45 per cent. When the refineries now under construction are in full operation, practically no refined oil will be imported.

Large Cities Will Need Help If Atom Bombed

Ottawa, May 29 (CP)—Even large cities like Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver will need help from other cities if they are atom bombed, a civil defence expert said today.

"Even the largest urban area in Canada with thorough mobilization of local resources of personnel, supplies and facilities would require considerable assistance from other areas to deal with the problems created by an atomic burst," said Dr. K. C. Charron.

Dr. Charron is a member of the civil defence planning group of the Federal Health and Welfare Department.

He was one of a group of Canadian experts who gave prepared papers to civil defence officials before a national emergency or disaster in the 1951 biennial meeting of the Canadian Hospital Council.

Other speakers were Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, Civil Defence Co-ordinator; J. H. Roy, Superintendent of L'Hospital Ste. Luc, Montreal and Col. J. N. R. Crawford of the Defence Department.

Gen. Worthington said to build a civil defence organization requires time more than money.

Mr. Roy urged all hospitals—the council is a Federal of Hospital Associations across Canada —to "seriously devote themselves to a careful study of their resources and facilities" and specific directors are given hospitals for which might be expected from an atomic bomb explosion. In a city with a population of 10,000 a square mile, if a bomb fell without warning there would be 1,200 dead and 720 living casualties within a radius of a half-mile.

Japan's Merchant Marine Getting Back Into Business

Tokyo, May 29 — (AP) Japan's merchant marine is just about back on its sea legs.

Japanese vessels now are permitted to enter ports of 47 countries — 33 under blanket clearance and 14 for specific purposes.

Japan today has more ships and tonnage than she had at the end of the Second World War.

In 1945, she had 452 operable ocean — going vessels for 747,112 gross tons. On March 31, 1951, she had 702 vessels totalling 1,536,291 gross tons.

Col. Harold T. Miller, head of transportation for the American occupation force, said new services to North America are being arranged which, with others already in operation, will give Japanese ships access to almost all ports needed for well-rounded operations.

Four Major Tasks

Miller listed four major tasks faced by occupation officials concerned with Japan:

1. "We had to wipe out all elements of subsidy to Japanese shipowners — and make sure foreign competitors, who didn't want to see any competition with their ex government subsidies or government operation, would have no basis for complaint.

2. "We had to get ships into classifications to give international standards for safety at sea."

3. "We had to get Japan back into the liner service, which we did first with individual clearances."

4. "We had to see the resumption of berth term service into the major ports of the world."

Areas of Services

Berth, liner or common carrier service, following is their places and in this order: Okinawa, South America via Africa, Bangkok, India and Pakistan. Berth liner service also is primarily a freight service.

Next route granted probably will be to Indonesia.

The Japanese transportation ministry expects authorization of a regular liner service to southeast African ports shortly. Runs to the east and west coast of Africa are to be started shortly.

That transportation ministry estimated the shipping industry needs $198,333,333 this year for building, rehabilitating, refloating and purchasing vessels. Of this total, $121,666,667 has been raised.

Health Minister Widens Use Of Health Grants

Ottawa, May 29—(CP)—Health Minister Martin Monday announced a five-point program to widen the uses to which federal health grants may be applied, including hospitals, but because of restrictions, the entire annual amounts set aside have never been fully used.

The five changes:

1. To help increase the number of nurses in Canada, federal grants will be approved for the building of new residences at the rate of $500 for each bed.

2. A province, which has used up all its federal grants for one project but not for another, may switch the unused grant to some other "under certain circumstances."

3. The range of health services under which a general public health grant may be obtained will be widened.

4. Up to a maximum of $50,000, grants will be allowed for the building of combined laboratories in hospitals to provide diagnostic and public health laboratory service to patients.

5. Out-patient departments in hospitals will be included in the definition or a "community health centre," allowing federal grants for such construction.

Patrol Work by Royal Canadians Represents Breather for Regt. After Intensive Training Grind

By BILL BOSE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

West Sector, Korea, May 29 — (CP)—The Royal Canadian Regiment from London, Ont., carried out light patrols north of the 38th Parallel in Korea yesterday.

The action represented a breather after the intensive grind that was the unit's introduction to the Korean War.

The R. C. R. today received congratulations from Brig. John Rockingham, Commander of Canada's 25th Infantry Brigade.

"You've far exceeded the high expectations I had of your ability in operations," he said of the regiment's performance in clearing the Chinese from the last 15 miles of South Korea in its sector.

During one 36-hour period there were four battles. The three-day action of the brigade was a reunion of everything the Princess Patricias met during their three months of fighting in Korea. Flat, rolling, hilly and mountainous country. During the fighting the 25th had to fight for its objectives but towards the end there was no contact with the enemy.

The first action of the brigade was essentially a test of training and endurance. It passed with flying colors.

Complimenting the regiment, Brig. Rockingham said:

"The determination, thoroughness and speed you've shown in your first operation over the last three days has been magnificent. I know that against heavier opposition you'll be equally effective."

The brigade commander also had congratulations for the Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec, part of the force, which celebrated its 37th anniversary Sunday.

"I wish there many more successful anniversaries like yesterday's," he said. "Bonne chance, 22nd!"

Worlds for Morale

Delighted with the men's work, the brigader added that the action had "done worlds for morale. The men have never been prouder or more cheerful, and now they see the point of our long months of training."

The brigade first went into action last Friday. The diary would read this way for the first three days:

Friday, May 25 — Cleared a 2,000 - yard path through to Kachae where the first attack for 1st 'Pats was launched. It was the Lord Strathcona's led by Lieut. Lorne Glendinning of Vancouver first to the regiment's first rounds in Korea, supporting troops were Lieutenant - Col. Mac Jack Peterson, former mayor of St. Thomas, Ont. One member of the Royal Canadian Regiment was killed.

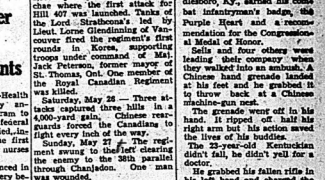
Saturday, May 26 — Three attacks captured three hills in a 4,000-yard gain. Chinese reinforcements forced the Canadians to fight every inch of the way.

Sunday, May 27 — The regiment swung to the left clearing the enemy to the 38th parallel through Chaejedon. One man was wounded.

NATIVE NAME

Amisk, a village in Alberta 140 miles southeast of Edmonton, was named after the Cree word for beaver.

"LOVE THY NEIGHBOR," IS U.N. POLICY



This wounded Chinese prisoner doesn't believe what's being told to him, judging from the expression on his face. He was probably told that if he fell into United Nations hands that his future would be of the utmost brevity. Yet he is being treated by a U.N. medical corps man with the same sympathy as would be given to the medic's own buddies. The policy of treating enemy wounded has continued despite the huge increase of red prisoners as communist forces fan northward. — Central Press Canadian.

LASHES IMPERIALISTS

Dr. Muzzafer Baqal, head of the National Front Party, the most powerful political organization in Iran, addresses a huge meeting of some 75,000 persons at which he virtually attacked America and the imperialists in general. This organization is credited with the government's decision to nationalize the oil resources of the country. The party and its affiliated parties assert they will stop at nothing short of complete government possession of the companies and uprooting of Anglo-American economic exploitation. — Central Press Canadian.

Kentuckian Gets Action He Craved Ends Up As War Hero

U.S. 7th Division, Korea, May 29.—(CP) — Pte. Kenneth W. Sells, sweating out 4 military police men in rear area, arrived action.

On May 20th., his best day in combat after he was transferred, he became a Korean war hero.

In 60 minutes of combat the tall, blond, soldier from Middlesboro, Ky., earned a Combat Infantryman's badge, the Purple Heart and a recommendation for the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Sells and four others were leading their company when they bumped into an ambush. A Chinese hand grenade landed at his feet and he pushed it to throw back at a Chinese machine-gun nest.

The grenade went off in his hand. It ripped off half his right arm but the soldier saved the lives of his buddies.

The 23-year-old Kentuckian didn't fall, he didn't yell for a doctor.

He grabbed his fallen rifle in his left hand and charged the machine-gun. A burst of fire knocked him down.

Then he got up, cradling the remains of his bloody right arm, and dashed off toward a medical officer while dodging gunfire.

FOREST FIRES RACE ACROSS NORTHERN ONTARIO

A pall of smoke hangs over hundreds of miles of northern Ontario as forest fires, raging through 80,000 acres of timber at Gogama, continue to spread. In all, 46 fires are blazing with little hope of stopping them without a heavy fall of rain. This air view at Lake Mattagami shows the second-growth timber falling before the flames' attack. Veteran fire-fighters say it is the fastest-moving fire they have ever seen. — Central Press Canadian.

Large Sums Spent On Many I.O.D.E. Welfare Projects

Saskatoon, Sask., May 29. (CP) —The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire raised $1,129,778 in the last year and turned over much of this sum to its welfare and education projects.

This was the story Mrs. F. L. Rothman of Toronto, today told the I.O.D.E. annual meeting in her report as honorary treasurer and convener of the finance committee.

She said the 911 chapters reporting spent $1,102,053 which went to swell the relief and special funds as well as to buy books.

The eight primary chapters in Yukon, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland raised $10,346 and spent $8,820 plus $2,052 not put through chapter books.

Mrs. Fiske Hanley, Ottawa, Dominion president, was re-elected by acclamation.

As convener of the I.O.D.E. Film committee, Mrs. Hugh Alan Wood of Toronto, reported an "appreciable increase" in the volume and variety of films released by order members and sponsored by them, in their communities.

She found evidence of a "awakening public interest" in good British films.

On children's films she said there were indications of increasing interest in New Brunswick, Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta.

"Those centres that do not have the children's film library indicate a marked interest in the selection of films for children . . . through their local film councils."

In her report as convener of the Empire and World Affairs committee Mrs. H. S. Angus, of Toronto, noted the "tremendous" range of topics used for chapter programs.

"It is only by inquiry and learning that we can equip ourselves for considered judgment on even local problems, not to mention the understanding necessary to protect our judgment from biased influences on wider issues."

Others presenting reports today included Mrs. S. E. Weld, of Toronto, convener of the Hospitality committee, and Mrs. J. D. Detwiler, of London, Ont., convener of Empire Day.

"Mass thinking becomes the important factor," said Mrs. Angus, the First War Memorial.

Three windless days or a heavy fall of rain would allow the estimated 1,000 firefighters to get the flames under control, according to provincial authorities. Plane loads of men are being transported from Timmins and other towns to dig trenches to stop the fire's progress. — Central Press Canadian.

Heroes of Raid On Reservoir Will be Honored

London, (CP)—The gallant R.A.F. crews of 19 Lancaster Bombers who in May 1943 shattered the vital Mohne reservoirs in Germany's industrial Ruhr Valley, will be honored with a memorial of their own.

It will take the form of an educational trust at Christ's Hospital School, near Horsham, Sussex, based on a gift of £10,000 ($30,000) from the distinguished British scientist B. N. Wallis.

During the war Mr. Wallis was assigned to special research on high explosives and for weeks before the dam-busters launched their attack worked with the crews in secret in the bending of a new-type aerial mine he had developed.

Declined Grant

Recently, Mr. Wallis was awarded the grant of £10,000 for his wartime researches. He declined, however, to accept any personal gain from the achievements of the airmen who carried out the Mohne raid and promptly turned over the cheque to the school of which he is the almoner.

The attack on the Westphalian reservoirs won the Victoria Cross for Wing Cmdr. G. P. Gibson, leader of the mission, but eight of the planes and 55 men failed to return. Gibson was killed later in the war.

Subsequent reconnaissance established that the reservoirs controlling two-thirds of the water storage capacity in the Ruhr had been put out of commission. The surrounding countryside was inundated, power stations and factories destroyed and mines flooded.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, then Secretary for Air, described the raid as "a most brilliant blow for the victory of the Allies."

Moisture Record Boosts Optimism Over Grain Belt

(By The Canadian Press)

The Prairie farmer wears a satisfied smile these days as he surveys his broad acres. Moisture reserves across the grain belt are generally good to excellent and conditions generally are favorable for heavy yields.

Throughout the winter and spring, precipitation has been more than adequate in Alberta and Saskatchewan and just a shade below normal in Manitoba. Alberta reported precipitation 36 per cent above normal, Saskatchewan had an excess of 29 per cent while the over-all picture in Manitoba showed a decrease of one per cent.

Moisture Increase

Statistics compiled by the meteorological division of the Department of Transport for the period from Aug. 1, 1950, to April 30, 1951, show precipitation was greatest in Southern Alberta where the increase over normal was 43 per cent. In the northern area of the province it was 19 per cent and in Central Alberta, 12 per cent.

Records for Saskatchewan were all on the right side of the ledger. In the southeast the increase over normal was 25 per cent, in the southwest, 15 per cent, and in the north, 19 per cent. Western Manitoba showed an increase of four per cent, but the eastern section of the province noted a deficiency of five per cent.

Generally favorable conditions prevailed during the first two weeks of May and seeding in most Prairie areas is well advanced.

Well Above Normal

After a comparatively dry fall, heavy snowfalls occurred over practically the whole of Alberta with excesses ranging as high as 100 per cent in the northern area during November and February. During the first four months of 1951 total precipitation in Central Alberta was 60 to 90 per cent above normal. The only deficiencies in Southern Alberta during the nine months under review were registered in August and September.

Heavy snow during the winter months and April rains were largely responsible for the good showing in southwestern and southeastern Saskatchewan. In northern districts the only deficiencies were reported in August and September, but October rainfall was twice the normal amount.

Precipitation in eastern Manitoba was less than normal during most of the nine-month period, but April rains made for a brighter picture. In western areas the best months were October and December when precipitation was about 30 per cent above normal.

HAVE TEMPORARY HOME

Des Moines, May 29 (AP)—A family of eight which slept and lived in an old model sedan for four days last week, now has a temporary home at the Northwestern Hotel here. Walter Korsen, father and head of the family, said the family was offered quarters by the hotel manager. The family moved to the hotel shortly after their plight became generally known through a news story.

FIRE'S TOLL

In the ten years 1940-49 fires in Canada cost the lives of 1,446 children, an average of 145 a year.

MUST SELL FURNITURE

Leeds, England, May 29—(Reuters)—The Princess Royal, sister of the King, must sell one of her furniture to help pay death duties for her husband, her agents said here last night.

Four years after the death of her husband, the sixth Earl of Harewood, the 54-year-old Princess will see some of her treasured possessions auctioned off next month.

The Earl was estimated to have left almost £1,000,000. Already one of the family homes and 14,000 acres of land have been sold.

CANADIAN SPORTS PARADE

A certain UN member nation has become famous for its use of the veto, but it may surprise some of us to realize that China is the only nation in the world which now consistently maintained a veto against recognizing soccer as the Universal Game. Although there are those in the world grants head-and-toe football this recognition, the sole exceptions being the United States, Mexico and ourselves. As far as Canada is concerned, however, there may be some changes made. Here is the soccer outlook for 1951.

"Five Man" Theme

As we hear it, there are five men responsible for the ever increasing interest in Canadian soccer. They are Arthur Arnold of Hamilton, chairman of the Ontario Football Association; Alex McGregor, secretary of the O.F.A.; Bill Sargent, secretary of the Association, All Steele, chairman of the Foreign Relations Board of the Dominion Football Association, and Maurice Hoeyman of Windsor, Ontario.

These five men form this promotion committee for the game. They plan to have soccer adopted in the high schools of Canada so that youngsters who have learned the game during their high school days can continue to play organized soccer right through to the senior game. If successful, the committee's plan will offer uninterrupted opportunity for the youngsters to become proficient in the game instead of having to forget soccer upon having public school.

To further the school plan, the committee is supplying a soccer coaching manual to high school physical departments throughout the Dominion. The manual offers a complete instructional course for the development of school soccer teams and covers every aspect of the ancient game.

Enter The British

A strong factor in the promotion of soccer in Canada will be the touring duties of the great English and Scottish teams. With no apparent difficulty, the matches easily outdraw opposition sports attractions though perhaps, to the extensive immigration to Canada of thousands of old countrymen and further thousands of New Canadians from soccer playgrounds in Europe.

Soccer enthusiasts should make note of the visit to Toronto on Friday June 5th of the famous Glasgow Celtic team, winners of the Scottish Cup. The Celtics will play the Ontario All Stars at the C.N.E. Stadium. Then, on Saturday June 16th, Varsity Stadium, Toronto, plays host when the Celtics clash with the great Fulham soccer team from England. Soccer is the mother of sports, great team play, and these matches should display the perfection of the professional art.

Ontario Soccer

This year, the Ontario soccer season extends from April 30th to September 30th, and the O.F.A. juggles no less than 21 leagues throughout the province, not to mention the extensive junior, juvenile and bantam leagues supervised by the ruling body. The Ontario Football Association, incidentally, is back in operation this season for the first time in 10 years. The provincial association vanished when the game hit an all time low 15 years ago but now, thanks to the tremendous interest being shown, the new soccer blood being injected to the Canadian game and the proposed "school" system, the revived O.F.A. can look forward to an unprecedented soccer boom.

We recall watching the Ontario All Stars playing Newcastle United, the crack English team, at Maple Leaf Stadium a few years ago. With the baseball Leafs at an all time low in popularity, we were amazed at the amazed crowd-size on the face of ball manager Del Bissonette as he watched a capacity audience filing into his home field for the first time that season.

"Holy smoke!" mumbled Del, "They must have moved the World Series to Toronto!"

It could be an omen for the future.

Chinese Reds Take Over Tibet In New Treaty

Tokyo, May 29 — (AP) — Communist China has announced with finality that it has signed over Tibet — under the guise of a treaty of "liberation."

The Peiping radio, in a broadcast heard here, said the Tibetans provide for red Chinese control of Tibet's national defence, foreign affairs and trade.

The Chinese red army invaded the Himalayan "roof — of — the — world" last October. Tibet's ragged troops were routed in eastern Tibet without putting up a major fight but the Chinese were unable to take Lhasa, the capital.

With his priestly government, the 17-year-old Dalai Lama Tibet's spiritual — temporal ruler — fled over the windy, snow-mantled passes from his capital at Lhasa to Yatung on the Indian border.

The Chinese didn't chase him. Instead, they set up a border government for Tibet in the neighbor Chinese province of Sikang. Then they set about arranging "peace" terms with a Tibetan delegation that pushed and pulled its way halfway to power — the rival Panchen Lama, who has also been in Tibet as far as is known.

The red treaty announced by Peiping radio promised to establish the Panchen Lama in power. But the broadcast failed to mention at a partition of Tibet. It also said the status and power of the Dalai Lama would continue unchanged.

How this was to be achieved was not explained.

The treaty provisions would place all the mountain country squarely under the communist thumb.

Briefs From Britain

Worthing, Sussex, England— (CP)—Radio Hatmery here to a surprise. Instead of "festival of Britain heard the announcer say "Piccadilly is a wonderful sight with all the lights blazing." But that moment the light here went out owing to a powerful failure.

London, (CP)—Billy Marin, a painter, worked non-stop for 35 hours to finish painting a sweet pavilion in time for the Festival of Britain. He admitted he was "just a bit tired".

Wellington, Somerset, England. (CP) — Spectators watching a track meet in chilly weather were amazed when a 19-year-old girl competed in several races—running in bare feet.

Sandown, Isle of Wight. (CP)— A wild duck was caught in a high-tide flooded house on the river with the duck still sitting on the eggs. A lighthouse keeper rescued the nest and the bird which had hatched a brood of eight.

Bury St. Edmunds, England— (CP)—An old silver rose bowl found on the town's dump was used as the trophy in the town's football challenge match. The cup is inscribed "supplementary estimates cup".

Tiptoe, Hampshire, England— (CP)—Those who raided a house here really tip-toed. Occupants who slept undisturbed found next day the intruders had taken time to boil and eat some eggs.

Oxford, England, (CP)—Eighty dockworkers will attend a class at one of the Oxford colleges. They have enrolled for lectures on history, science, economics and philosophy because they "feel we ought to learn".

Missed Severing Spinal Cord By Quarter-Inch

Toronto, May 29. (CP)—Physician [illegible] George Hebden Corson, Toronto neurosurgeon, termed medicine a "jumbled heap of ignorance", was in hospital against his wishes Monday for treatment of a broken neck. He was reported in "pretty good" condition despite a fracture similar to that suffered by a man hanged on the gallows.

The 54-year-old out-grower and vegetarian, whose wife said he likely would seek to convert his medical attendants to his meatless diet, fell 20 feet from a ladder while examining a tree Sunday on his suburban Islington farm. He was found by a man and refused to be taken to hospital until assured that the visit would be only for X-rays. He had been treated only once before by a doctor—for snake bite.

Dr. W. K. Fenton, attending physician, said the internationally-known surgeon suffered severing the spinal cord by a quarter-inch.

Mr. Corson had two fractures of the cervicular vertebra at the base of the skull but despite the extent of the injury, "I would say his condition is pretty good," said Dr. Fenton.

Dr. Fenton added that his patient will be in a cast for at least eight weeks. To almost any other person, he said, the injury would be fatal.

Mr. Corson, married for the third time last January in Florida, does not drink alcohol, has never smoked and lives on a sugarless diet. A believer in unit as a basic wood, he owns a 15-acre nut plantation in Florida, in addition to his 25-acre nut farm in Islington. He has experimented with 400 varieties of nuts.

Firemen Fail To Save Life

Battle Creek, Mich., May 29— (AP) —A 33-year-old mother died early today after firemen administered artificial respiration for 22 hours and a special iron lung was being rushed to her sickroom.

Mrs. Pauline Lineau, wife of a factory worker had suffered from rare myasthenia, a disease producing muscular weakness, for seven years. But her condition became critical after she underwent a caesarean and hernia operation Friday. The baby girl died a few hours after birth.

Saturday Mrs. Lineau had difficulty breathing. She was placed in an iron lung but its fattening around her throat nearly choked her and she had to be taken out.

So beginning about 2 a.m. Sunday, firemen started giving artificial respiration.

Meanwhile, the hospital looked for another respirator, which fastens with a chest clamp instead of a neckpiece. One was located at University Hospital in Ann Arbor, about 70 miles east of here. Police started it on a rush trip.

But Mrs. Lineau took a bad turn. She died as the iron lung was at Battle Creek's city limits.

DESERONTO

Deseronto — A successful field meet was recently held in Kingston at Queen's University track. The schools which were entered in the events were Athens, Bath, Belleville, Brockville, Deseronto, Gananoque, Kingston, Newboro, Sydenham and Westboro.

The competition was keen and to win the contestants had to be in the best of condition. Kingston the largest school entered, was the winner of the trophy and took a number of the prizes.

The contestants from Deseronto made an excellent show of ability, by winning prizes in most of the events they entered. In the senior class, Bill Crabbe came third in the pole vault, and Jack Edwards came third in the broad jump, where there was only a difference of eight inches between the first and third winners. Deseronto, handicapped by the lack of senior runners, managed to take third prize in the senior, mile relay race.

In the intermediate class, Dick Crabbe, after a long period of strenuous pole vaulting took first prize in the event. In the track events James Beyetto took second prize in the half mile race, and third prize in the quarter mile race. There was only one entry from Deseronto in the junior class, William Sexsmith, who was narrowly nosed out of the pole vault.

Other participants in the field day were Bruce Pennell, and Grant Venton who were both in the 100 yards clash and the senior mile relay race.

On the whole the field day was a success and Deseronto high school made a remarkable showing compared to the size of some of the other competing schools.

Bakelite Wins In Ninth Frame Over Cleaners

Belleville Bakelite came up with four runs in the top of the ninth, tieing last evening's six-all loosely played slugging match from Cleaner Combines 13-9. The Combines, who came from behind three times during the game went down in order in the ninth.

Youthful Earl Green went the route for the winners walking three, striking out 11, and giving up eight hits for nine runs. Jack Holmes started for the Cleaners and in seven innings walked three, struck out five and was nicked for nine hits and seven runs. Herald spent the rest of the way, walking two, striking out one, and surrendering four hits for six runs, to be charged with the loss.

Neither team gave its pitchers consistent support with a majority of the runs on both side's being unearned.

Bakelite opened the scoring with a single run in the first frame and added four more in the third with Grant Cook's triple with two aboard being the big blow.

Cleaners jumped back into the game in their end of the third with catcher De Rushia poling a mighty home run to centrefield with two men aboard. They evened the count in the fifth with a walk, an error, and Cal York's third double doing the damage.

Shortlived Lead

Cleaners took a shortlived lead in the sixth with Draycott singling home Holmes who had taken time on an error to second base.

Cleaners evened it up at 7-7 in the seventh with Young's triple scoring York who had singled.

Both sides took two more tallies in the eighth with Cleaner right-fielder Draycott saying his piece with a home run.

Two singles, two walks and two errors set up Bakelite with the winning margin in the ninth.

Cal York had a perfect night at the plate to lead the Cleaner slugging gang with two doubles and a single in four tries.

Gord Cook batted in six runs with three singles and a home run in six trips to lead the Bakelite batters.

Line ups:

Bakelite: Littlejohn 3b; G. Cook lf; Graham ss; E. Powers 1b; Burley 2b; Lawn rf; Peaver cf; R. Power c; Green p.

TIGERS WIN 16-9

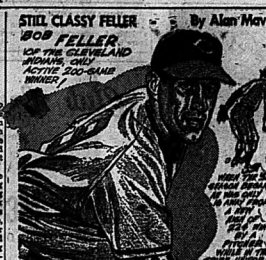
Hamilton, May 29 (CP)—Hamilton Tigers defeated Brampton Excelsiors 16-9 Monday night in their first home game of the Ontario Lacrosse Association season.

Tommy Love with four goals paced the Tigers, Jack Dorney scored three times. McDonald, Welch, Masters and Doyle tallied twice each and Digby once.

For Brampton, Sheppard, Steed and Caruso each got two goals and Ferri, Blakeley and Sulberland one apiece.

CAPTURES VULTURE

Lindsay, May 29 (CP)—Ambrose Farrell of nearby Kinmount received a shock Sunday when he discovered in a strange bird of enormous size in a wolf-trap he had set on his brother's farm. He took the bird to a game warden who said it was a vulture. Its wingspread measured five feet seven inches.



Charles, Maxim Ready To Go For Heavy Title

Chicago, May 29—(AP)—Ezzard Charles and Joe Maxim, both declaring they have reached the best condition of their fighting careers, match physical armor tomorrow night in a scheduled 15-round heavyweight title showdown at Chicago Stadium.

The scrap will mark Charles' eighth defence of his heavyweight championship in 29 months. It will be Maxim's first big bout since he displayed a surprising hard right to kayo England's Freddie Mills for the light-heavy crown 16 months ago.

Not since Georges Carpentier and Jack Dempsey met more than 25 years ago have kings of the light-heavy and heavyweight ranks tangled for the big title.

The barometer of odds is inclining downward from 5-3 favoring Charles to 8-5. The 29-year-old Cincinnati champion, 183 pounds, who has won 70 fights, 45 by knockouts, is expected to be favored over the year-old Maxim 3-1 in ring time.

In 1943 Charles outpointed Maxim twice. On Feb. 28, 1949, he took a split 15-round decision from Maxim at Cincinnati—an outcome that Kearns has always violently questioned.

Both Charles and Maxim have come through two months of rigorous training without so much as a nose bleed and are in prime shape.

'Chiselers' Win Bowl-O-Drome Annual Tourney

Walter Moore's "Chiselers" of the Belleville Major 'A' League, won the Bowl-O-Drome Annual Bowling Tournament with an aggregate team score of 3627. The Chiselers, who entered twice also took second prize money with a score of 3577.

Belleville Golf, Major 'A' champions, had to be satisfied with third place with a score of 3549 with Kirkwood Cigars taking fourth spot with a 3385.

In the men's doubles series, Maurice Reid and Walter Moore came up with a score of 1630 to take first prize. Followed in order, Joe Legault and R. Saylor, 1603; M. Callaghan, Jr., and J. Callaghan 1530 and Wally Dingman and Maurice Reid, 1500.

Cec Hardwick won the singles top money with a neat 902 followed by M. Reid with scores of 837 and 823. Walter Moore was fourth with 818.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Moore walked off with the mixed doubles prize with a score of 1644, and also fourth money with a 1409. In second slot was Margaret Fairbairn and R. Saylor with 1464 and in third position Margaret Fairbairn and Maurice Reid with 1412.

LIFT IMPORT CONTROLS

Colombo, Ceylon, May 29 (Reuters) — Sir Oliver Goonetilleke, home affairs minister, said today Ceylon will lift import controls on all but a few dollar items within a few days" to curb the cost of living. He told the Chamber of Commerce the only alternative was a return to rationing and price control. But Ceylon has had enough of those controls, he added.

Faster Engines, Slicker Cars In Speed Race

Indianapolis, May 28—(AP)—Faster engines and sleeker automobiles, plus the lure of $200,000 in prizes produced the swiftest of all fields for the 500-mile race tomorrow at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Speeding of the 33 drivers to qualify, Walt Faulkner of Long Beach, Calif., did his 10-mile qualifying test in 1:34.872 miles an hour, and the slowest, Bill Mackey of Indianapolis, did 131.478. Twenty of the cars that qualified in 1950 were slower than that.

The qualifying average was 128.879, compared to 121.044 in 1950.

If there are any favorites in this speed-saturated field they are Chet Miller and Duke Nalon. Making up the novice team in cars that reputedly cost $150,000 each, Offenhauser Mighty regarded are Johnny Parsons, the 1950 winner; Mauri Rose, twice a winner and holder of an additional, co-championship, and, of course, the Tiny Faulkner.

The weather was chilly and blustery for yesterday's final qualifying runs and remained so Sunday by rain—but the forecast for tomorrow was fair with only occasional clouds. Race drivers dread wind that often whips the tiny cars out of control, and the race would be halted if rain makes the track slick.

This race is a struggle and hazardous pursuit of fame and money. Only the first 15 cars—and this year 33 others were shut out. Their owners spent thousands and got nothing. The cheapest car racing probably costs $25,000, and shipping costs, plus gasoline tires, and a pit crew mean even a qualifying run cost an additional several thousand.

Only the winner can hope for substantial rewards—perhaps $50,000 to $75,000. Second, Willie Shaw, a three-time winner and now its speedway president, says victory should be worth $150,000 to any enterprising man—advertisements, endorsements, appearances, and so forth.

Overwhelming the drivers is the ever-present threat of death. Since the track opened in 1909, 42 persons have been killed competing both drivers and spectators.

The top pitcher continued to be New York's undefeated Eddie Lopat, adding another victory for and 8-0 record. Boston's Maurice McDermott moved into a tie with Vic Raschi of New York for the strikeout lead at 41.

AT THE McCARTHY — Glenn Ford and Anne Baxter in an intimate scene from "Follow the Sun," opening Wednesday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Dennis O'Keefe and June Havoc also have important roles in this exciting 20th. Century-Fox picture.

AT THE BELLE — In Technicolor — Errol Flynn, popular star of swash-buckling, devil-may-care roles, has a tailor-made part in M.G.M.'s "Kim," fascinating story of romance, adventure and intrigue, starring Dean Stockwell and Paul Lukas. "Kim" is closing at the Belle Theatre tonight.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Macbeth" to Open at Capitol Theatre Wednesday for a Two Day Engagement Only

"Macbeth," Orson Welles' motion picture production of Shakespeare's immortal drama, which has played a series of special engagements in a few key cities, begins an engagement in Belleville on Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre, playing at popular prices. The film will be seen daily Wednesday and Thursday at 2.00, 7.35 and 9.45 p. m.

Adapted by Welles to appeal to all moviegoers rather than Shakespeare enthusiasts alone, this Mercury Production of "Macbeth" vividly highlights the stark drama of clashing armies, murder and moral disintegration of a man and wife goaded by ruthless ambition. Stormy scenes the stage cannot encompass are portrayed with thrilling effect.

Welles stars as the usurper King Macbeth, lured to his doom by the mocking prophecies of three witches who spear to him on the storm-blasted heath. Unscrupulous Lady Macbeth, her first inspires him to thoughts of treason, is powerfully portrayed by top-ranking radio actress Jeanette Nolan in her first screen role. Important parts are played by Dan O'Herlihy, Roddy McDowall, Edgar Barrier and Alan Napier. The Chas. K. Feldman Group-Mercury Production was filmed at Republic Studios.

A group of select short subjects will also be shown.

JUDGMENT ON JUNE 29

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Wednesday, May 30

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Mixed vibrations with all interests and activities requiring mental alertness and a substantial amount of work highly favored. Artistic and personal items require more concentration.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Your Venus and the Moon caution about emotionalism, worrying if riches are not all granted. But on other hand, difficult tasks, unselfish deeds should bring new benefits.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Your Mercury in benefic aspect, so is Saturn, auguring for sound gains, achievement in your work and in other weighty problems. But sizable caution is urged in dispositions.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—A warning stands to hold emotions under control. Temptation may be to grouch or worry if everything does not run smoothly. Be your kindly self and you'll gain quickly and much.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Greatly up to you whether you receive full returns from efforts or fail to register. Industry, trades, mining, handling tools, machinery under fine rays. Be careful of accidents.

August 23 to September 22—(Virgo)—Encouraging rays for your talents, for mental work, best for teaching, study, research, authoring books, writing stories, etc. Be patient about personal matters, requests, others' ways.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Day can be helpful, interesting, particularly if you keep faithfully to urgent tasks and don't seek overmuch in personal credits. Then they will come. Fine period for labor.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Grand star rays for you now so do make the most of every worthy advantage, bit of advice or assistance that will aid sound interests. Be mindful of your obligations. Study to improve.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Jupiter all but other planets are auspicious and occupational duties, household affairs, familiar tasks especially can advance. Care in investments, loans, all money interests.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Saturn's rays friendly to industry, trades, railroading, transportation for useful purpose, and needs for home. Good day for a good you. Students, teachers, smile!

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—No time for hasty, unpremeditated decisions or nonimportant changes in personnel, methods or equipment. But do try for advancement and benefits in your work, useful activities.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Patience and thoughtfulness required for desired results but fine opportunity now for the intelligent thinker and planner for teaching, study, research, authoring books, writing stories, etc. Be patient about personal matters, requests, others' ways.

YOU BORN TODAY: Quick adaptability, keen perception and general sensibility that augurs strongly for high achievement. This, of course, if you are living a good life, true to your best characteristics. You could carry an avocation along with your daily occupation, for your mind is creative and busy. Always seek to improve, achieve. Be firm against worry, straining health, and keeping troubles too much to self. Confide in loved ones, a spiritual adviser. Keep fit for busy months ahead; pray daily.

CAMPBELLFORD

Police Checking All Motorists Under H.T.A.

Campbellford — Police of this district are at present engaged in a campaign to enforce traffic regulations on the streets of the municipality. Chief Constable George H. Hardy has set up check-points at strategic points on the main approaches to the town, for the purpose of checking on speeding and drivers' licenses. These checks have resulted in a number of charges being laid under the Highway Traffic Act involving speeding, faulty lights, faulty brakes, failure to stop at stop streets, driving while license under suspension, driving without license and having liquor illegally. A large number of charges are pending, and will be heard out in court, but many of the parties have settled out of court by paying fines.

Having received a number of complaints regarding the notes made by the motor vehicle inspectors, using the streets of the town for race tracks, police are going to clamp down on these offences. The chief said that while he hopes it will not be necessary to lay charges against the youths on their motorcycles, he would not hesitate to do so. The Highway Traffic Act covers this type of offence.

Little Benny's Note Book

I had a fierce dream last nite, and I woke up yelling. Hay, cut it out, hay, and somebody came in and lit the lite.

Boing pop is his pidjammas, and he sat on the edge of my bed saying, What's going on here?

I dreemed some grate big guy came walking rite at me breathin red sparks and pushing a big lawn mower, and it had a airplane propellers instead of regular blades, and they went around like lightning and sounded like machine guns, I said, and pop said, Fastnasty you-spoke up.

Yeh, but not rite away, I said. I started to run and this big guy kept running after me with his lawn mower, yelling, "Keep off the grass," and I yelled, "Stay, look out for my legs," and he said, "They're not legs, they're grass, and I warned you to keep off," and I could feel the air from the propellers on the back of my legs, and just then I actually did wake up, I said.

I knew it would, pop said, and I said, I know, pop, but I don't hardly want to go back to sleep again.

If you're worrying about how the dreem ended, you can relaxe, pop said. It must be an uncopyrighted dreem, because I had the same one myself, so I can tell how it ends. The big guy suddinly turns into an apple tree, and the lawn mower terns into a ladder leening agenst it, and the apples are all coated with mullasses candy, and you dont wake up till just exactly when you're about to stummick ake if you ate another apple, he said.

The result being I went rite back to sleep, and the dreem finished just like pop said, or alsa maybe I just remembered his discription.

Captures Groundhog

Ardent sportsmen are always on the lookout for new ways and means of cagbirding game. Saturday noon, Mr. and Mrs. Sid Martin looked out of their East window and saw at the edge of their garden, a size fat ground-hog, just delying them to come and get him. They discussed methods in which the culprit could be gotten at, of, or he would not harm their well-kept garden. Various ways were discussing whether to call their dog, Boxer, or to phone for Mr. Fowall, the village marksman, their daughter Carol, came running in to the house, and announced that she and Wanda, her kid sister, had captured the groundhog under a barbed barrage.

End of A Chapter

By Edwin Rutt

"I wouldn't know," said Alice. "I don't see much of him."

Carol Winner looked reflective. "Is also a very grand guy."

Carol Winner paused, a little reflectively, as if anxious for Alice Pine to accept his statement that Brent Hallock was "a fine guy."

"No doubt," Alice said shortly. "So why don't you ask how Muriel is doing, as well?"

Carol frowned. "Don't have to, Muriel always does all right."

"Chuck," Alice said "we're sort of bucking boxing. Any fool could see that things aren't—well, quite right here."

Carol frowned into his glass. "You're not asking me to tell you things are you?"

She bit her lip. She had been wrong in doing just that. "No. After all, you're Brent's friend and work for Muriel. It's hardly fair for us to discuss them."

"Gosh, we're virtuous." His head came back. "And who'd have thought it from the local scandal-mongers! But you're right. Only it's funny, shaking his head. "It stopped, somehow, after three, maybe, times."

Alice had the definite feeling that something bothered Chuck Winner and that he refrained from talking about it out of loyalty to Brent. She was feminine enough simultaneously to admire him and yet be keenly disappointed.

She said: "We'd better forget it." But she couldn't help adding: "Naturally, though, I've got a—a curiosity."

"Ah." Chuck pulled himself to his feet. "The stuff kills cats. Well, I'll be going. See you around, Alice."

A few days later Alice ran into Molly Tremayne in Tuilliver. "Hey, hello!" Molly's arms were crammed with packages. "I've been meaning to call you for more golf. How's everything at the Point?"

"Very well."

"Look," said Molly, "let's have a sandwich. I've been rushing around all morning and I'm starved."

Alice agreed and presently, after they had ordered in a tea room Molly said: "I say, Alice, let's still up to her neck in that book?"

"Just about."

Molly lit a cigaret. "Then it's hardly any use asking her to service a committee at the Garden club. They've made me chairman of the wretched thing and it's tough getting members who'll do any work. I'd like to ask Muriel. She gets things done."

"Well, Alice said doubtfully, "you could try."

"I ought to bother her," said Molly. "She's got enough to do to keep Brent in line."

Alice started slightly. "Does she?"

Molly gave her an incredulous look. "You've been here all this time and don't know that?"

"I didn't. I try to keep our relationship very businesslike. And the Hallock's are reticent about their own affairs."

Molly sniffed. "Brent would need to be his pit more than he could chew."

Maddeningly, just then, the waitress arrived with their order. Molly took a bite of her sandwich and measured cream into coffee.

"You were saying?" Alice prompted carefully.

"Oh, yes. The Hallocks. How much do you know about their background, Alice?"

"Very little. Only that Brent's a native here and Muriel isn't. She told me she came from Indiana originally. Didn't she work on a magazine in New York before they were married?"

"Yes." Molly nodded. "One Brent used to draw for. And it was his lucky day when he met her."

Alice didn't like to seem to be prying. She didn't feel that she should, when she was living with the Hallocks.

Alice threw caution to the winds. She had had enough of hints and innuendos. "I wish you'd tell me, Molly, anything you—oh, cats to. After all, I'm living there. And I can't help wondering about them."

Molly considered. "Well, Brent Hallock is all that's left—around here anyhow—of a family that practically settled this country-side. At one time, the Hallocks owned just about all of it. But that was generations ago. And that was generations ago. And that was generations ago. And" —she drank coffee—"the family's been on the downgrade for sure."

"You mean. . ."

"I mean they began peering into before I was born and that's long enough, God knows. Some of them moved away, of course. And those that stayed died off gradually. And, to cut it short, about 20 years ago there was only Jr. and branch of the Hallock family left here. That was Brent's father and mother, Brent and his brother Bill."

As Molly Tremayne paused in reciting the history of the Hallock family, Alice asked: "Was Brent's brother Bill the father of Rick—the little boy Brent and Muriel adopted?"

"Yes. Bill was the one that was killed three years ago in a plane crash. And old Jordan Hallock was Brent's father, and he wasn't worth a continental. Drank like a fish. But Jordan inherited the house on the Point and a few acres. Everything else had been dissipated by the time he grew up."

"So Brent inherited from Jordan?"

"No, he didn't. As I say, Jordan was no good. Wouldn't work, but were himself the sire of a country squire. And it caught up with him." Molly finished the sandwich, lit a cigaret. "Brent must have been about 13 years old when his father had to sell the Point and the old house with it. The old man took a licking too. It was one of those rehily old houses, big as a country club and rambling all over. But it was a white elephant. Still, the buyer didn't care. He was a New York stockbroker with lots of money."

"Which he lost in the depression?" Alice guessed.

Molly shook her head. "They said he actually made money during those dark days. But his wife died, there weren't any children and I suppose he lost interest. Anyhow, he went back to New York. But he put a fantastic price on the place. So fantastic that, for years, nobody would touch it. And there it stood, going to rack and ruin."

"Where had the Hallocks gone?"

"Hartford. Jordan took a job in a factory there and eventually died. I don't know what Brent and Bill did all that time. Matter of fact, I never saw Bill again. But Brent came back."

"Yes?" Privately, Alice was ashamed of her avid interest in Brent's history. Feeling as she did about him, it seemed totally unwarranted.

"He reappeared here some time after Pearl Harbor," Molly continued. "All tricked out in a captain's uniform and handsome as he'll get out. And some of us tried to be decent to him. To Muriel too. They'd just been married. And Brent was scarcely civil. They stayed at Tolliver Inn and others left after three weeks. While he was here, though, he bought the Point back. Rackety old house and all."

"Even at the crazy price?"

"According to rumor. Brent seems to have reached for it. He'd have had to. Land values were up and the Point's desirable."

"Then what?"

Brent went back to war. And left Muriel—she was just beginning her writing—in that barn of a house. But he did get her a servant."

"Sounds grim even with servant." Alice envisioned two women rattling around in a barracks-like building on the lonely Point.

"Must have been. But Muriel was a brick. She went at her writing hammer and tongs. Put it over too, in no time."

"Brent came home on his leaves, I suppose?" Alice said.

"Humph!" Molly snorted. "He did once or twice early in the war. But they sent him to the Pacific. We didn't"—she squinted—"see hide nor hair of Brent Hallock until the war had been over more than a year. You see, he got himself transferred to some outfit in the Japanese occupation. He didn't want to come home, if you ask me."

Alice frowned, "I can't imagine why."

"Who can? He finally got his discharge after Bill and his wife were killed, and there wasn't anybody else to take charge of their little boy, Rick. I'll say for Brent that he did his duty there."

Alice wanted to ask where Molly had gotten this information. But the question seemed un-important. And, doubtless, in this small community a person's life was an open book.

"Meanwhile," said Molly, Muriel made us like her. She took an interest in everything. Red Cross, Woman's Club and heaven knows what. And still found time for her work. Also, to tear down that old eyesore and ppt up a decent house, as soon as you could get building materials again. At her own expense too."

"Then the present house is really Muriel's?" Alice remembered that stormy scene when Sloan had started to cut down the apple tree over Brent's objections and at Muriel's orders.

But even at that time, she remembered, Brent had said, insistently, that "the land and what is on it is mine." The apple tree was his, then, but his stubborn attitude about allowing it to be cut down seemed somewhat childish to Alice.

"Every stick and stone of it. And that's about the size of it. Brent came back from the war, the youngster came, and there they are. But what Brent contributes, I wouldn't know."

"Well, he works constantly," Alice said, a little defensively perhaps.

Molly sniffed again. "You mean he wanders around with his painting paraphernalia, Brent couldn't work seriously and still hobnob half his time with that drunken Chuck Winer."

US Naval Blockade Of China Could Be Perilous--Sherman

Admiral Tells Committees Russia Might React Forcibly

Washington, May 30 — (AP)—Admiral Forrest Sherman testified today that Russia might forcibly oppose a United States naval blockade of red China.

The chief of naval operations added:

"The fact is that our allies have been unwilling to join in a naval blockade of China and have been slow to establish a tight economic blockade."

Sherman was testifying at the inquiry by the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees into the dismissal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur from his Far Eastern commands.

MacArthur wants freed for public advocacy a Korean War strategy embracing a naval blockade of China, bombing of red Chinese bases in Manchuria, and use of Chinese Nationalist troops on the mainland of Formosa.

Vulnerable to Blockade

Sherman said communist China is vulnerable to a naval blockade. He said, however, that if any action is opposed to the United States undertaking a blockade on its own.

Sherman added that if the United Nations should declare such a blockade, Russia probably would protest it as the soviets have respected the naval blockade of Korea. He added:

"If the United States should declare a blockade unilaterally—in certain ways we are sexual depravity condoned, and American writers lauded for their lascivious escape at a woman taking a shower." It said the shower originally was one of the high spots of the American play "Mr. Roberts" based on a novel by the late Thomas Heggen.

In the field of pornographic writing, the article said, there now are on sale here magazines of a type so harmful and decadent that it is impossible to use words strong enough in condemnation."

Miss Canada IV Sold Tuesday Without Fanfare

Woodstock, Ont., May 30 (CP) —Miss Canada IV, 30-foot temperamental racer that carried Canada's hopes for a world speed record, was sold yesterday without fanfare.

E. A. Wilson of Ingersoll, her owner, said Miss Canada was bought by a Canadian company. He declined to disclose the purchaser's price.

She was sold without her two Rolls-Royce Griffon engines, on loan from a British firm.

Sale of Miss Canada eight months after her patient pilot, Harold Wilson, retired from powerboat racing.

E. A. Wilson, father of Harold did not say if Miss Canada would be used for racing.

Miss Canada, built at a heavy cost, had a short life — lived and trouble-plagued.life.

Twice she was entered in the international Harmsworth race. She failed dismally both times.

Launched in 1950, the 30-foot beauty was a box to the 36-year-old Wilson, every time she entered a race.

Her last crack at the world's speedboat record was at Lake Picton, Ont., last October. She left Wilson burn with three engines in her specially-designed gearbox broke up.

Wilson also entered Miss Canada in the Gold Cup and Presidents Cup, both international events. She developed engine trouble both times.

When Miss Canada was hauled to shore after the last speed-record attempt at Picton, Wilson looked at her dejectedly and said: "We're licked."

Then he was on the suction block with little advertising.

GOVT. ACCUSED OF CURTAILING PRESS FREEDOM

Drew Attacks New High Postal Rates

Ottawa, May 30. (CP)—The government was accused in the Commons yesterday of proposing either by design or oversight, to curtail the dissemination of news and the freedom of the press by increasing postage rates on newspapers.

The charge was made as Progressive Conservatives opened an attack on a new and revised postal act—which proposes, among other things, to boost the mailing charges for newspapers and periodicals by about seven cent.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said nothing could be more likely to the circulation of newspapers at a time when democracy is threatened and urged the government to withdraw the legislation pending further study.

Joseph Noseworthy (CCF—York South) supported the CCF approval of the projected increase and said he thought the people generally would agree with which would bring newspapers and periodicals "closer to a point of paying their own way."

Postmaster - General Rinfret, piloting the measure, said the rates are not taxes, but fees charged for rendering a service. He said the Post Office increases rates to meet higher costs but, even with the new rates, it still would be carrying papers and periodicals at a loss.

The Bill later was given second reading, indicating approval of its principle.

Mr. Rinfret reported that the handling of newspapers and periodical cost the department $15,818,015 in the 1950-51 fiscal year, compared with a postage revenue of $2,920,963, leaving a deficit of nearly $12,000,000. The increases would bring in another $2,000,000 in revenue.

Could Reduce Letter Rate

He said the department would be able to reduce the letter rate for all parts of Canada to three cents from four if I collected enough to cover the deficit on newspapers and periodicals.

Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel), who opposed the Bill, said it leaves the rates unchanged for the time being, suggested the overburdening of the Post Office and every would be a retrograde step.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said he wondered whether the freedom of the press would be affected by the new rates. "I don't know how increase being proposed would affect some of the examples of the effect the new rates will have on newspapers:

A weekly with a circulation of 10,000 or more, averaging 45 pages each publication day, now pays a postal rate of 4 cents for each copy. The new rate will be eight cents. A daily paper with a 24-page average will find its rate boosted to $4.19 from $2.24.

The new regulations, he noted, also allow for subsidizing according levied on newspapers carrying more than 50 percent advertising in each publication. This would remove the incentive to retain at least 50 percent of space for news columns.

Missionary Says Enough Food Thrown Away to Feed 12 Chinese Cities

Kingston, May 30 (CP) —A United Church missionary said Tuesday night that enough is being thrown away in the United States and Canada to feed 12 Chinese cities.

Dr. H. W. Outerbridge of Toronto told the Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada.

"We burn or allow to rot enough food in an effort to stabilize prices that would feed 30,000,000 people who are starving in Asia."

Dr. Outerbridge, president of Western Japan College in Japan, said the problem of feeding the hungry millions of Asia should be met by the United Nations.

The people are turning to communism in the hope of getting food, he said.

Speaking of work in the mission fields, he said an organized attempt is being made to convince the Chinese that every missionary was a spy sent to "soften up" the Chinese.

When missionaries go back to China they should go as co-workers, not leaders, he said.

Rev. G. D. McLeod of All Peoples' Church, Hamilton, told his church had made great advances in bringing Christian education to the Japanese people.

Three churches are being organized in Hamilton for the benefit of new Canadians.

Communion service was held during the conference with Rev. Dr. H. A. Kent, president, in charge. He was assisted by Rev. W. E. Taylor, C.S.S., minister of the United Church here.

Rev. E. F. Swayne, retired missionary to Japan, conducted the memorial service.

He told delegates there is a great need of young men for the ministry.

"We need more young men to accept the call to the ministry rather than the voice of commerce."

Ridgway Says Allied Forces Have Inflicted 'Major, Severe Defeat' on Chinese, Koreans

Tokyo, May 30—(AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said today allied troops have inflicted a "major, severe defeat" on the Chinese and North Korean armies.

The supreme commander, back from a two-day trip to the war front, said United Nations troops had captured 10,000 red soldiers since the communists opened their first spring offensive April 22.

He praised the gallant United States 2nd division with attached French and Dutch units for his gallant stand in east-central Korea which turned the main communist blow.

And Ridgway warned that the reds have the power to strike again but he expressed confidence that his U. N. troops again could hold.

The supreme commander made it clear that the allied command is awaiting the full arrival of armor and air power in the communist theater.

It was Ridgway's first press conference.

Arctic Prince, 28-1 Shot, Wins Epsom Derby by Six Lengths in 33-Horse Field

Epsom, England, May 30—(AP): Jack Arctic Prince, a 28-1 outsider, sped to a six-length victory today in the 172nd and richest running of the famed Epsom Derby.

Second place went to Lord Milford's Sybil's Nephew by a head in a photo finish, with Signal Box, owned by Frank Dennis, third.

Ali Khan, winner of the 140-thousand guineas classic earlier this month, started as the 9-1 favorite, but finished out of the money.

A field of 33 horses started in 1 1-2 mile race, and the winner, owned by Joe McGrath, received a purse of $54,561.

Sybil's Nephew closed at 50 to 1 and Signal Box, 20 to 1.

One of the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes is based on the Derby.

Two French colts, Le Grand Ki and Nyangal, were sixth and seventh.

The field was reduced to 33 this morning when Johnny Remnant's reported lame and was scratched.

In fine weather and on a fine going rated "good", an estimated 1,000,000 Britons crowded historic Epsom Downs for the classic.

the bloodshed.

Ridgway said communist morale was breaking under the tremendous allied fire superiority, the staggering losses suffered by the reds, and the growing, severe shortage of food in communist-held areas.

"We have learned from prisoner-of-war reports that desertion has become definite and serious problem for the communists, well back into their rear areas.

"There must be a growing question in the minds of the Chinese and Korean troops as to the fairness of their leaders' motives."

The communists still could hurl into the war five Chinese armies "whose exact strength we do not know," Ridgway said.

The supreme commander made it clear that the allied command awaited the full arrival of armor and air power in the communist theater.

It was Ridgway's first press conference.

AIRLINE PILOT FLIES FIGHTER PLANE OVER POLE

Set for Final Dash To New York

Winnipeg, May 30 — (CP) — Charles Blair, flying non-stop from Fairbanks, Alaska, to New York, was expected to cross Lake Winnipeg at 11:22 a.m. (CDT), Department of Transport officials reported today.

Blair took off from Fairbanks at 6:26 a.m. and flashed through the Edmonton area at 10:13 a.m.

Officials said he was flying at 700 feet across the prairies, and estimated his speed at 400 miles an hour.

The converted Mustang fighter, heavily loaded with gasoline, was expected to cross Lakes Manitoba and then the southern end of Lake Winnipeg, about 10 miles from the Manitoba-Ontario border, at about 40 miles north of Winnipeg.

Fairbanks, Alaska, May 30— (AP)—A business-like man in a flying suit roared down the runway on top of the world yesterday to become the first pilot to fly a single-engined fighter across the North Pole.

Early today he was poised to try a non-stop flight to New York via eastern Alaska and Canada. Scheduled take-off time was 7 a.m. EDT.

The Pan American Airways Mustang fighter, No. 41, loaded 3,300 miles from Bardu, Norway, to Fairbanks, Alaska, in 16 hours and 27 minutes in "The Flying Gas Tank" — his flame-red converted mustang fighter plane. He did with 175 gallons of gasoline to spare.

Blair was much less excited than the throng which crowded Ladd Air Force base as his plane landed at 3:29 p.m. (6:29 p.m. EDT). Radio listening posts had been straining for word that he had topped the pole with his high speeding southward toward Fairbanks. Blair explained why there was no word.

"I could get the beam all right, but couldn't send. The transmitter was out of order."

So he quietly rode the beam into Fairbanks and landed with a simple 'flight," he said. "The plane performed perfectly and I flew exactly the course I planned to fly."

Some 3,000 letters he had flown across the pole from Norway were rushed to the Fairbanks post office for cancellation. Then he climbed aboard the plane, He's flying them to New York where they'll be auctioned off for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

He made the flight in daylight, "gaining on the clock."

"It's a funny thing. I left Norway at 4 in the afternoon of May 29 local time and I arrived there at 3:29 p.m. local time on the same day. I gained 12 minutes up there some place, I guess."

Rain and Heavy Fighting Bog Down Allied Spearheads

Canadians Attacking Under Heavy Red Artillery Fire

By OLEN CLEMENTS

Tokyo, May 30. (CP)—Heavy rains and determined reds fighting from water-filled holes slowed allied spearheads in communist Korea.

On the central front, a Canadian battalion captured a hill from a red battalion Tuesday night only to lose it to a Chinese counter-attack at dawn. The battle was still under way Wednesday night.

Canadian troops reported they fought under the heaviest Chinese artillery barrage since the allied counter-offensive opened. But the allies did grind out some gains.

Field dispatches reported United Nations troops had fought to within 12 miles of Kumhwa, communist base in Central Korea, and entered another crossroads above Inje on the East-Central front. Lt.-Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander, said the reds were severely defeated in their spring offensive but still 'were determined and capable of renewed all out battle.

Rainy Season Opens

Heavy rains swept most of the battlefront today, ushering in Korea's rainy season. Zero visibility cut allied air attacks to 126 sorties.

But troops, seizing the weather advantage, lashed back at U.N. supply lines on the east-central front. A communist attack cut South Korean defences on the Inje-Hyon road. Reds set up road blocks both sides of Inje, covering mined roads with bazooka, recoilless rifle and gun fire.

An American armored force fought through heavy fire and thick mud before seizing a strategic road junction six miles northeast of Inje. The area now represented a 1 1-2 mile gain for the day.

Allied resistance mounted steadily. The communists apparently were determined to make United Nations forces pay heavily for any further advance into North Korea. The communist radio in Peiping reported from Eighth Army headquarters.

Hope Abandoned For 62 Miners Buried by Blast

Essington, England, May 30—(AP) — All hope was abandoned today for 62 British coal miners buried 900 feet below ground yesterday by a violent explosion. The toll of the disaster, with the deaths of the 62, would reach 80, if included the attempt to save the entombed men.

"Though everything has been done and is still being done at the pit, there is now no hope of any of the entombed miners being alive," said Lord Hyndley, chairman of the National Coal Board. "This is the worst pit disaster we have had in the history of the National Coal Board."

The rescue work went on throughout the night, while a small cluster of relatives gathered quietly in the glare of the big spotlight at the pit head. Many of survivors, they were told, crowded and posted on the bulletin board there — but there were none this morning.

On the board was message from the King.

"The Queen and I," he said, "have learnt with deepest regret of the explosion at Essington colliery and of the severe loss of life. We send our heartfelt sympathy to all those who have lost loved ones in the disaster."

The explosions occurred in a winding tunnel about 1 1-4 miles from the deep vertical shaft leading to the surface. Mounds of rock and coal blocked the tunnel to the coal face where most of the men were working. Officials reported the explosion was usually was a rush of poisonous air.

Rescuers came with gas masks and walkie talkie radios clawed their way through the tunnel. They said their present rate of progress through the debris would mean the probably would not reach the missing men for another two days.

There were no emergency phones in the blast area where the men had been working, but no calls came from there.

If none of the 66 men are brought up by 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, then Lancashire will be Britain's worst coal mine disaster since 104 were killed at Senghenydd, Wales, in 1913. Last September 80 men died in a fire in a mine at Creswell.

Both admitted they came to see some pretty girls.

HOPE FOR RELIEF

Board Members Inspect New Laboratories

The laboratories, under the direction of the pathologist, Dr. H. Lusks, are a renovated part of the east wing and replace the laboratory facilities, which were situated in the west wing. Each department is now housed in a separate laboratory. The departments of histo-pathology, bacteriology, and haematology as well as director's office and blood bank are all centralized in the same area. The board members were shown intricate scientific equipment including an electric eye, a freezing machine for the examination of tissues removed at operations and many other highly scientific devices.

It was explained that the laboratories were recently inspected by an official of the Canadian Medical Association committee for approval of schools for laboratory training and agreement has been granted our Belleville General Hospital. A course in this school for laboratory technologists will be instituted in the near future and students will be trained to comply with the requirements of the Canadian Association of Laboratory Technologists, which operates by arrangement with the Canadian Medical Association. The implementation of the course will be effected in the fall.

Fox Pup Netted By Dog Catcher

City dog catcher Charles Thorn stepped out of his customary role yesterday when he helped Public School district he picked up not a dog — but of all things a red-coated fox cub.

But catching the fox puppy was not just as simple as it might seem. Every dog in the built up area was first noted three or four days ago and since that time Mr. Thorn had spent much of his spare time in trying to corral the little fellow. He was successful about yesterday afternoon.

In addition to the fox, the city dog catcher has three dogs in pound. They include a white male cocker spaniel, a white beagle hound and a male black spaniel.

PAY LAST TRIBUTE

Melbourne, May 30 (Reuters) — Crowds lined eight miles of streets in Melbourne's suburbs today to pay a last tribute to the country's first and only field marshal, Sir Thomas Blamey, former commander-in-chief of Australian military forces.

A flag-draped gun carriage bearing the coffin headed the cortege. Resting on it was a cushion carrying the field marshal's baton.

More than 3,500 troops led the mourners, who included the Governor-General, William J. McKell, Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies and other members of parliament.

Recreation Park At New Fire Hall Officially Opened

The new Firemen's Recreation Park on West Moira Street was officially opened last night in a blaze of bunting, "Booth", "Boyce" and three Belleville Recreation Commission. The mayor tossed a floater. Came the crack of wood on leather and the park was officially open.

Present at the opening ceremonies were Chairman Ref. Wardle of the Peewee Division of the Belleville Minor Baseball; Vice-President Don Lee of that organization. Chairman Al Davis of the Belleville Recreation Commission, Mrs. William Gander, another member of the commission; Fire-Chief Phil VanTassel, also of the Recreation Commission, Alderman William Argue, and Alderman Bob Boyce and Howard Booth.

Officials and dignitaries and guests were introduced over the Booth Radio and Television public address system prior to the ceremonies.

In a brief address Mayor Potter said "I hope everybody here is as happy as I am to see this beautiful setting and time I hope we have many more like it."

Tribute Paid Firemen

He paid special tribute to the fire department for the time and effort they have expended in readying a fine community project.

Fire Chief Vance spoke very briefly. He said "Every man on the city fire department deserves equal credit for the construction of these grounds."

Crowds of shouting excited kiddies and their parents thronged the baseball diamond, bordering the diamond and houses the playground equipment for the day. The proud members of Boyce's and Booth's Peewee squads appeared off on the first game of the season, and, the first played on the new grounds.

Swings and teeter-totters were packed with happy youngsters and Booth's merry-go-round with moppets who belong to Peewee teams had started operations on hand. They shouted and cheered as the two half-pint squads swung into action and on many a parent's happy face was that "That's my boy," look.

Many Weeks of Effort

From flag-tipped poles flutter-ed the Union Jack, the Canadian ensign and the Stars and Stripes.

The members of the city fire department who have put many weeks of time and effort into the project were perhaps among the proudest people present. And they should be. The splendid park with its modern equipment, up-to-date Peewee softball diamond, brand new backstop with the entire playing field enclosed by chain link fencing distinct credit to them and others who assisted.

The new park boasts a fine entrance west of the fire station proper while above the gate flanking the ground floor entrance to Park. Members of the department were a busy crew looking after their group sign lettering and painting them with soft drinks.

Everything was run off in an orderly manner. Spectators were requested to stay behind the fences leaving the playing field while wandering youngsters were promptly put back in place when their exuberance and excitement caused them to wander a bit.

It was a great night for the kiddies, the teams and the parents. Everybody had a good time and it was a fitting opening for a splendid community project.

Yes, the softball game. The Booth "Tee-Vees" proved a mite too strong for the Boyce "Buccaroos" and defeated them by a 17-7 score. "Red" Townsend and Cy Young who umpired the game gave their services gratis.

Higher Prices Help to Boost Cheese Output

Higher prices for cheese are believed to have been responsible for a greater production of cheese by factories in Eastern Edward county factories this year, according to statistics supplied by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Several factories in the above district have supported the increase production this year as compared with the output in last year.

The cheese factory picture in Northumberland county is not quite as bright with several plants not opening this year. Also milk supplies to the factory in many cases have been reduced owing to the greater number of calves being raised this year.

Cereal grains are looking well, but owing to the wet season more land will be sown to buckwheat this year. Rye is coming to head and looks better than last year. Corn planting is commencing and in Hastings it is reported that soy beans are being tried out on a few farms as a protein supplement.

"Conservation"

During the past years, many trees have been cut down and the farmers let the land drift away. Now it is necessary to carry on conservation because we need the soil. Conservation is saving and making good use of our lumber, minerals, wild animals, soil and water.

Nature preserves her resources by the leaves which fall down and keep the soil from blowing away. For many years man has cleared the forests, burned down the leaves and cutting the trees.

Our water supply comes from rain and snow. Grass stops the water for livestock and human beings.

The erosion agencies are wind and rain. The type of soil affected by wind is sandy soil. To stop erosion of this soil we can plant trees or sow a blader crop. The most dangerous place for erosion is on the steep hills. Water affects clay soil most. The climate also affects the rate of erosion. If we have short winters there is more erosion than if we have long winters. Where rain comes down in a heavy downpour it carries away the soil.

There are two types of erosion that is sheet and rill erosion. The latter is caused by water on hillside working down in small trickles. Gully erosion can be the water washing along the tracks made by wagon wheels.

There are several ways of controlling erosion. Contour ploughing we can plow around the hill rather than up or down it. In strip cropping we put the different crops in strips such as hay on grass. Hay tends to stop the water which runs freely from the grain. By-terracing, that is building wide banks across slopes, we may hold the water so that it soaks into the ground.

A farm pond can prove itself very useful. It provides a permanent supply of water for livestock. Waterfowl will nest there and fish placed in it should thrive if it is protected for a few years. This pond may also be used to irrigate land. It also provides a suitable spot for recreation.

A woodlot is a good investment which may be started on poor crop land or eroded hillsides. We should protect the seedlings by keeping cattle out. The wood which grows can be later used for farm purposes. With the trees and leaves holding the moisture, the farm woodlot provides one of the best means for many people to practise conservation.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 30 — (CP) — Prices climbed slowly but steadily as the week progressed on the stock market today.

Industrials attracted the most interest. Gains ranged from fractions to the $3.50 jump of Canada Cement. Papers joined the list with a solid column of plus signs and steels, utilities, agricultures, foods, textiles and manufacturing companies followed.

Metallic mines were lower and liquors, refining oils, banks and constructions were mixed.

Nickel issues led base metals higher following news of an increase in the price of nickel. International Nickel was up 1 7/8 and Falconbridge added $1. Waite Amulet, Steep Rock, Sherritt Gordon, Noranda and East Sullivan were numerous advances. United Keno Hill, Quemont and Consolidated Smelters slipped a little.

Western oils firmed.

Steel Town Buys Airport For a Buck

Trenton, N.S. (CP) —Thirty-six of this steel town's population of 3,000 turned out last night to vote on whether they wanted to buy an airport.

After carefully weighing the pros and cons of the deal, 35 voted in favor of buying the airstrip from the neighboring town of New Glasgow, six were against it, and two were undecided.

Now all Trenton has to do is dig down deep and produce one dollar, a solitary buck, and the airfield is all theirs. It was a real bargain.

Actually, the deal was made several months ago, but the citizens wanted to make it final with a standing vote.

It was a good bargain in more ways than one. Both towns figure it was worth a dollar to ease their troubled minds. For the past, two decades it had been a controversial issue over local ownership, rights and taxation problems.

The airport was started in the thirties by the Pictou County Aero Club. Most of the members were New Glasgow residents but it was built at Trenton, where the low flat land was more suitable.

When the proposition became too expensive for a private group, it was sold to the town of New Glasgow. That was when trouble began.

Federal expansion of the airport was proposed, but by that time Trenton had built a road around the airstrip. Enlargement of the base was impossible unless the road was removed.

Then New Glasgow put a tax bill into the laps of the New

Cheese Exchange To Elect Officers At Next Meeting

The election of officers of the new Belleville Cheese Exchange will be held next week, it was decided last evening at the second session of the exchange.

Mr. Charles Heath of the Ontario Marketing Board offered to notify the factory representatives of the coming election in order that all areas comprising the new exchange could be well represented.

Mr. Carr, interim chairman of the exchange, reconsidered that a representative of each of the five cheese boards incorporated in the new exchange should sit on the executive.

Interim secretary, Fred Mallory, stated that "Belleville does not wish to dominate this exchange." Other exchanges have formed an executive council and I think that such a council would be a good idea here."

In the business part of the session, 581 white cheese and 2545 colored cheese were sold at 36 cents a pound.

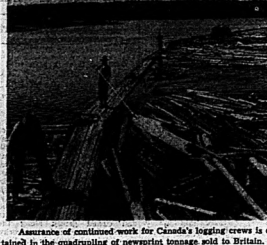
CANADA TO QUADRUPLE NEWSPRINT EXPORT



Assurance of continued work for Canada's logging crews is contained in the quadrupling of newsprint tonnage sold to Britain. The British government, with a better supply of dollar currency, has allowed the purchase of 80,000 tons of newsprint in 1951 and more in the following years. Newsprint companies here say the increase demand will not make controls necessary in Canada. — Central Press Canadian.

Committees on Equalization Estimates Named by Warden

With Warden Harry Coulter, reeve of Hungerford township in the chair, the second of four yearly meetings of Hastings County Council got under way in Shire Hall yesterday.

The meeting was the first held under the new procedure adopted in January whereby the council will hold four meetings yearly instead of the former January, June and December sessions. Meetings are now called at the discretion of the warden.

In a brief address to his council, the warden pointed out that the year had been a good one thus far with prospects of a bumper crop.

He complimented his committees and their respective chairmen on the co-operation given him and the work done since the January session. He paid special tribute to the House of Refuge Committee for an excellent job, and the superintendent Kenneth Yorke and Mrs. Yorke. The warden also complimented the finance committee on their fine work done in the decorations of the county courthouse and Shire Hall.

He pointed out that the current session would be a heavy one and asked the co-operation of all councillors.

Committees Named

The warden named his committees on estimates and equalization who will bring in their reports during the session. On the estimates committee are, Harold Wells, chairman, Verney Heath, Lee Grills, Ross Neal, Carmen Kleinsteuber, Charles Buskard, R. T. Adams, Cecil Ketcheson, Leslie MacLaren, Elmer Wood, Vincent Hagan, W. J. Davis, Clarke Rollins, Thomas Scott, T. W. Tryon, treasurer Ross Bailey, clerk Eric Denyes and the warden.

On the committee on equalization are: T. C. Graham, chairman Harry Morrow, Fred Mitchell, Percy Moore, Lindsay McKeown, B. J. Hunt, Jack McCoy, Fred Moorecroft, James Sprackett, M. A. Park, W. J. Alderson, Ray Hannah, Robert McWhirter, J. A. Kincaid, George Spencer, the clerk, treasurer and warden.

Approve Estimates

During the opening session, it was announced through communication from the Department of Highways that approval had been granted the county's estimate of $280,000 to be spent on roads and bridges.

Council concurred in a Wentworth County Council resolution requesting the government to revert to former procedure whereby a person or persons moving from one municipality would not come under the new municipality for direct relief until they have been gainfully employed for a period of twelve months.

This, it was pointed out, had been changed in 1950.

Deputy Reeve Bernard Hunt of Hungerford township presented a motion to council requesting that that part of Hungerford which is not included in the Centre Hastings High School Area be levied the same as those that were included, a rate or four mills.

Had To Go Through Council

Deputy Reeve Hunt stated that the matter had been taken before the High School District Board but were informed that body could do nothing until the matter came through the hands of county council.

County Clerk Denyes said he would have to draw up a rate and the matter will be discussed later in the session.

Rawdon township council's bylaw requesting detachment from the Central Hastings High School District was presented to council.

The township's petition stated that it was felt its needs would be better served if it was detached from the Central Hastings district, and coincided with Stirling in the new district.

Decision on the matter will be reached when the recommendation comes up for discussion under the committee on by-laws later in the session.

Council Assists Reforestation In Hastings

Recommendations for grants to county forests, reforestation school forestry competitions, and farm woodlot improvements highlighted a report of the Hastings County Agricultural Committee report presented to county council following an address on the above subjects by Zone Forester W. E. Edwards, Napanee, the committee recommended that a grant of $25 be given to Hastings county schools in county forestry competitions. In furtherance of this Mr. Edwards was authorized to go ahead with underplanting in the Birch Creek area and that 5,000 white pines be ordered for that project.

It was also recommended to council that the forester be authorized to investigate the purchase of ten acres enclosed by the railway and Lot two which joins the county forest in Elzevir plots.

Following discussion, it was agreed that a 1951 woodlot competition for farmers would do much to impress the public the value of a properly cared for woodlot. Subsequently the committee recommended that $200 be allotted for such a project and competition with $100 allotted for judging expenses and merit prizes of $50, $30 and $20.

Spoke on Grants

George Pollard, the report stated, addressed the committee on the Ontario Reforestation Act and asked that consideration be given to the increase in the grant for black spruce. Harry Rollins, Fred Denyes and Elmer Sandercock, M. L. A. spoke on behalf of the unallotted area in the Belleville Fair Board.

After the committee recommended that a grant of $250 be given to the British Empire Exhibition, it was paid as special prizes to county cheesemakers. A grant of $100 was to be given only if block cheese was shown and if that amount, $50 was to be used for special prizes in class. In the event block cheese is not shown the entry list is under five, the grant of $100 would not be given.

Grants Recommended

The committee recommended that grants of $150 be given to local fairs and $300 to the Belleville Exhibition.

Steady increases in junior work in the county was commended by A. O. Dalrymple, county agriculturist representative, the report stated.

At present there are 199 boys and girls between 12 and 20 in eleven clubs with 39 in forestry clubs; 13 in the potato club; 18 in the beef cattle grain club; 31 in the first year grain club; 16 in the first year sheep club; 90 in the Harmors; Madoc, Hungerford, Stirling and Belleville calf clubs. In addition to the girls competitive project during the winter months by approximately 100 girls in garden club this year. Active junior farmer clubs of older groups are in Madoc, Hungerford, Tyendinaga, Thurlow, Sidney and Rawdon.

Mr. Dalrymple stated that his assistant, Mr. Stone is being left in the county another year, and he felt his assistance will be a strong factor in increasing the number of juniors completing work this year.

Band Concert On Armouries Lawn Enjoyed

The Belleville Municipal Band presented the first of their series of summer concerts last evening on the Armouries lawn before a capable direction of Bandmaster Ted Robbins. The program was varied and interesting and was well appreciated by those in attendance. Marches, selections and overtures being intermingled with selections of a more popular nature. A feature of the audience was on hand, some taking advantage of the seating facilities provided by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, while others gathered near at the railing surrounding the armouries lawn or to sit in their cars and listen.

It has been decided that the next concert will also be presented on the armouries lawn. This will be in two weeks time, Tuesday evening June 12th.

If Motion Enforced Public Institutions Using Margarine Will Not Get County Grants

If a resolution concurred in by Hastings County Council at its opening session yesterday afternoon is enforced, public institutions within its jurisdiction will not use margarine, will not receive grants this year.

The council after lengthy discussion, two motions and one amendment, endorsed by a 14-12 standing vote the resolution placed before it for concurrence by the Ontario Concentrated Milk Producers' Association, which requests all county councils to refrain from giving grants to public institutions within their environs which use margarine.

Sharp discussion followed an early motion to the effect that no action be taken presented by Reeve Jack Kincaid, Madoc village.

Reeve Kincaid felt the matter should be left with the "margarine people. Somebody is passing the buck along to the county councils. There has been enough bickering in the county already over this matter. I move no action be taken," he said.

Committee Moved no Action

Previous to presentation to council, as a whole, the resolutions committee had moved "no action", it was pointed out.

Reeve Verny Heath, Rawdon township tried to bring matters to a head with an abrupt motion for concurrence.

He was supported by Reeve Lee Grills of Sidney who told council that he felt hospitals, etc. should have nothing but the best. He added that dairy farmers were suffering through the margarine business and agreed the resolution might have some good effect. "After all," he said, "butter is better than margarine."

Warden Harry Coulter, while he later expressed the opinion that the resolution could not be enforced, felt it was a step toward bringing back the attention of the public to butter.

"If something is not done about the butter situation," he added, "there will come a day when we will want butter and none will be available. Dairy lands are depleting rapidly and dairy farmers have the right to make a living as well as other people. I think this council should concur in the resolution."

Reeve Charles Buskard, Deloro said enough that he could on the depletion of dairy herds in the county was not because of the inroads of margarine but the fancy prices offered by American buyers.

"I would like to see some of you fellows milking cows with milk prices at $1.80 a hundred pounds when you can get $300 for a cow", commented Reeve Fred Moorecroft.

Reeve Theodore Tyron, Bancroft said that in the cities thousands of people who are depending on margarine today, because they cannot afford butter will have to eat dry bread, if this meatless goes through and margarine is barred."

What Does It Mean?

"Does this mean that if we find a pound of margarine at the Belleville Fair or any county fair that we cut off the award?" asked a northern member.

When margarine came to this motion, only 50 per cent of the sale of butter and margarine went to the dairy products, said Reeve Ross Neal, Deseronto. "There are a number of people there who are almost afraid to purchase butter. I wonder if sometime some time Intended a member fuel which sold at considerably less than gasoline, and the big oil companies came to us with a request like this, what our action would be?"

The question was placed before council and a second standing vote was necessary before the motion to concur carried by a 14-12 vote.

PRICES ARE HIGHER

We are not surprised that an American senator has been investigating wartime prices. On a recent visit to this country, he said that he had not dreamed that prices were so high, and that clothing, in particular, was on a much higher level than in his country.

A review of prices in the consumer field in the United States will bear out the senator's feelings, for the most part. Many commodities are just as expensive across the border as they are here. But enough of them are sufficiently low in price to make smuggling of small quantities across the border even more tempting.

For example, and as the senator says, certain types of clothing are much more reasonable. Men's suits shirts and trousers, sport shirts and dress shirts, in certain materials, are much more easily reached by the average pocketbook. American smokers are let down at only half the price that Canadians have to pay. A carton of cigarettes in most stores in New York sells for approximately $1.00 and the same quantity of cigarettes sells in Ontario for $4.00 with by far the greatest percentage of the extra revenue being made up of government tax.

Food prices on a consumer level do not seem to be any greater in the United States. Restaurant meals are much more expensive however. Jewelry is cheaper on the female side of the question. Dresses, particularly for summer and sports wear, are bargains for a Canadian shopper. Blouses and skirts, in femnine wear, are a prize range that no Canadian retailer could hope to crack. And the joy of a woman's life, nylon stockings, are as much as half a dollar cheaper per pair, and more.

Where does all this lead? It leads to holidays like Victoria Day when hundreds of Canadian cars moved across into the United States. It leads to a happy day for American merchants in states close to Canadian borders, for they advertise specials and hang signs "welcome to Canada." It leads to those same Canadians descending in droves on those stores, and to men and women wearing two, three and four layers of clothing back across the border.

The customs officials are almost helpless in the flood. They cannot be expected to look behind every spare tire and in every hubcap for cigarettes. They do not have the time to find out whether or not this man or that woman is wearing more clothing than he or she normally requires. The result is that for every person caught in the act of bringing across goods illegally, there are many more who get through.

Such smuggling is admittedly of a petty type. But it is also damaging because it is a flouting of the law. And it would appear that there can be no final solution, for much of the difference in price scales is accounted for by government policies which apply tariffs to goods. An Canadian manufacturer, under such a setup, the illegal activities will continue, because higher prices will remain a fact.

THE COMMUNISTS LOSE THEIR GRIP

The election results from Italy are reassuring. In a provincial balloting in which one-third of the nation voted, the communists have lost their grip on the northern end of the country. They suffered the worst beating they have had in five years, by losing the administration of five provincial capitals they had held since 1945.

The Christian Democrats, headed by Premier Alcide de Gasperi, and always a foe of the reds, took a heavy majority. The reds took only 164 of the provincial council seats, with the anti-communist bloc — composed of Christian Democrats, the Republicans, Liberals and anti-red Socialists—taking the majority. Their seats will number more than 335. The depth to which the victory extends is indicated by the fact that anti-communist forces will hold control over 22 provincial capitals, the seats of the control two, and three, as of writing, were still undecided.

The rest of Italy's elections will be held in the autumn, and it is hoped that the other parts of the country will take notice of the present vote and continue the trend. The victory is a source of confidence in the North Atlantic Pact, since de Gasperi has based his policies on NATO. He, along with other advanced thinkers in a wartorn Italy, has seen that the communists are out to make nothing but trouble for their people.

It now appears that many voters have realised the same thing. It is to be hoped that they are setting an example for the rest of their country.

PAINLESS EXTRACTION?

The plan to extract all the income taxes from employees at the source will meet with little immediate approval, but it may prove to be a better scheme in the long run. In these inflated dollar days, no one likes to see wages further cut by increased deductions, regardless of what they are for.

The new schedule provides for deductions amounting to one hundred per cent in some cases, thus leaving the individual free from encumbrances after April 1 casts its deadly shadow. It is now May 30, and next April is a long way away. Therefore, as we said before, it is unlikely there will be little immediate approval of the plan. But if it relieves the load of spring, when wives and other members of the family get the urge for new finery, then it may prove worthwhile.

A few days ago I watched a motion picture presentation of how the war-torned Guam to be a fighting base from which America inaugurated devastating assaults upon the Japanese.

In the days when that island was scarcely more than a huge expanse of wilderness, the Seabees, with their bulldozers and all the latest equipment for changing the face of the landscape, carved out of the wilderness into the most modern airfield in the world. Mackenzie's Column
Writer Against Muzzling Press On Communism

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Prime Minister Nehru of India declares that it would embarrass the government of all the world's statesmen and newspapers kept quiet for a few months.

That would seem to be pretty strong mustard. Still, one can understand Nehru's anxiety for peace, sitting as he does under the muzzles of Bolshevism's big guns on his northern border. There are times when silence is golden, and from his standpoint this may be one of them.

Generally speaking, however, the world is not in contact with the communism with the weapon of publicity. It is knowledge of what the communists are doing that will defeat it in the long run. This is no time to play ostrich in the face of communism as a global revolution.

Of course India has a special problem in that the red octopus is closing in about her. For instance, communist China has just negotiated a "friendship" pact here control over the kingdom of Tibet.

As this column has pointed out, the communists have designs on Tibet isn't of great military significance. However, this little land of mystery and lamas is like a powerful spotlight directed down on the plains of India. It is a strong point for propaganda purposes.

No Rank or Bluster

Red China has moved circumspectly and methodically in taking over Tibet. There has been no bluster. But neither has there been any concealment of the trend of events. Tibet is being reduced to virtual annexation of the little state of China.

The press saw all this coming. And many far eastern observers have held that she was the only country which might have prevented Peiping from carrying out this assumption of control in Tibet.

But India chose not to intervene. Whether this will be a matter of deep regret in the future, of course, no one remains to be seen. Certainly it is easy to interpret this Tibetan move as a significant step in the line almost the great Indian peninsula.

Nehru is right in saying that "we live in a perilous age". And India is in a particularly precarious position. She has a key role in holding her peace in the face of the hazards is for the future to reveal.

HOWS YOUR TIDAL AIR?

A reader says he believes his lung capacity, or as he expressed it, the "volumetric capacity" of his lungs, has increased at least 100 per cent since he began practicing belly breathing two years ago.

Watch that eyebrow, Penelope! Lest you betray your ignorance it might be well to consult Webster and learn that belch is the word for it and the only word that conveys the idea of natural breathing. Send 5c and stamped self-addressed envelope for the booklet How to Breathe. Read it and you will begin to understand why Belly Breathing is one of the seven keys to "Vim."

You should know by now what v-i-t-a means. It means preservation of the characteristics of youth etc., as set forth on p. 7 of another little lesson in the ways of health available to you on easy terms—The 7 Keys to Vita.

Speaking of the vital vital organs, oxygen is life itself and breathing is quite as essential as circulation. In fact, any disease calls the contribution of lungs and heart to life. As you know, the circulation in a given area may be completely arrested or shut off for many seconds or even a minute or so without loss of life; but if the supply of oxygen is shut off for more than a few seconds some cells die or degenerate beyond repair, and vital parts, notably functioning cells in the central nervous system.

The first effect of belly breathing efficiency has increased since he acquired the habit of practicing deep breathing for, say, half a dozen inflations each day. Then, of course, the vital capacity has scarcely doubled.

By actual measurements made by physiologists, the adult male determined that in ordinary quiet breathing he exhaled approximately 30 cubic inches at each exhalation of air flows in and out of the lungs of a man of average size, the inhalations ordinarily have the same breathing capacity as men. Indeed the 3,000 cubic inch respirometers is a little more than a pint.

This flow of air when one is at rest and paying no attention to breathing is known as "tidal air." Then by the deepest possible inspiration an adult may take in an additional 100 cubic centimeters (about 3½ pints) of air, called "complemental air." Resting lungs and supplemental air one can breathe out, by a forcible effort, the same amount of air (1800 c. c.) above the tidal air; and this is called "supplemental air." Even after these three quantities gives the lung capacity of the vital capacity, as it is usually called.

But after the most forcible expiration of the supplemental air the lungs are not entirely collapsed or empty. There still remains perhaps 1000 c. c. (over a quart) of air in the lungs—called "residual air."

The reader, who evidently thinks, goes on to say:

Can it be possible that the automatic function of breathing is slipping? As a large part of the population in this soft age, to the extent that the stimulum supplied under the old habitable the constant oxygen supply of cells and tissues is not met, and that this oxygen want accounts for (1) low metabolism, (2) accumulation of incompletely burned or oxidized by-products, (3) thrombosos in various portions of the body.

Maybe this reader has something there.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Quaint Notion

Is it a good habit stretching your arms out at intervals during the day. The girls at work seem to think it helps them. — Reader (Miss P. E.)

Answer—Yes. It would be fine if all the girls at work paused for a minute or two and rolled their head pressing down on the floor mid-forenoon and mid-afternoon. For further particulars send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on somersaults.

Drunk Sobered

You told about giving enormous doses of caffeine to a man with delirium tremens when you were an intern. My dad was a doctor, and I can still see how this was carried into his office as emergency case of sun stroke. Dad feared it was enough to kill the man, but in a few minutes the man sat up and walked out and down the street as sober as a (A. D. Knight)

Answer—Virtually the equivalent dose of strychnine (alkaloid of nux vomica) is sometimes given with good effect for that purpose.

Moles

Information concerning moles or can-cating moles? — Reader.

Answer—Most cosmetic results obtained by obliterating moles with solidified carbon dioxide, electrolysis and electrodessication. I see about destruction of moles plus skin chemical means—a job for a physician. Send 5c and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet Cosmetic Blemishes.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE GREAT MASTERS

No matter how people flock to art that is termed "modern," I note that no one apparently dares to sell the old masters. Their prices are still priceless and will remain forever so. Oh, a millionaire may buy one now and then for a million or so, but even that does not express the real value of the paintings of a few masterpiece in art.

Great art is something immortal for it has within it the hidden heart of the master who created it. In one sense it is created only by a very great artist, Alphonse Legros, a Frenchman who once lectured on this subject because France didn't appreciate him. The picture is the peasant woman, and it is only partially finished—apparently—yet it is finished—for the soul of the artist is in it. It is a daily inspiration to me, and to many who have seen it. It is as priceless though it cost a very small sum many years ago.

The great Masters took time to paint or sculpture. Most of them died poor, but never richexcepting in the treasures they bequeathed to the world and to posterity's love of beauty. How would you start to appraise a painting by a Rembrandt, a Vermeer, or a Goya?

I have said that "no work of art is really ever finished. They only stop at good places." How true that is now and always. I collected the examples of etchings done by a selected group whom I had appealed to me. I learned that the 'first states" were usually the best ones, for the artists usually should have stopped with that one, rather than continuing to work over the plate. The best story seemed told in the first words from the lips of the first state.

Study the drawings of the great Masters and you will note the simplicity, power, and movement of their drawings. They were usually drawn to be translated later into paintings. The late Frenchman Renoir was a very great painter, but I have always liked his drawings best for their simplicity, power and message. He did wonders with a few lines and little shading. Study the Great Masters sought for beauty and permanence.

Leads The Pack

On Monday morning, police reported a truck piled top high to squeeze under the town bridge entering Dufferin St. at the north way. The transport, loaded down with wet hides, was seen on highway 33 to Carrying Place, down the narrow front road and over the low bridge at Glen Ross. Clearance of the bridge is 13 feet four inches but improvement regulations call only for a 13 foot allowance.

Lodged a bellidese on a float wedged against the top of the span and had to be backed off and lowered before moving on.

Bike Rider Injured

More Drivers Join Strike In Britain

London, May 30. (Reuters)—More truck drivers joined the three-day strike of Britain's state-owned road haulers today to deliver scores of essential goods and food war being held up all over the country.

The number of drivers to join the protest against "pirates" road-patrols went up from 12,000 yesterday to 18,836 today. Altogether 241 depots were affected.

Labor Minister Alfred Robens will meet representatives of the Transport Union and the road haulage, executive, the industry's directing board, today in an effort to halt the strike.

New recruits to the walkout were the truck drivers bringing supplies to London's Billingsgate fish market, causing a fish shortage by Friday.

Porters at the capital's fruit and vegetable markets are reported to be refusing to unload state-owned vehicles out of sympathy for the truck drivers.

Strikers today decided to continue their picket lines until further guidance from the strike committee.

The strike began at midnight Sunday in protest against the road patrols, which are to ensure efficiency.

Police State Woman Murdered In Apartment

Montreal, May 30 — (CP)— Police said today that 23-year-old Mrs. Roland Genest was murdered in her east-end apartment last night. Her charred body was found on a blazing mattress by firemen.

Lieut. Russell Senecal of the homicide squad said that an autopsy revealed the womanslied of multiple skull fractures, "probably inflicted by blows from a small instrument like a hammer."

Dr. Rosario Fontaine and Dr. Jean-Marie Roussell, who performed the autopsy, said no trace of carbon dioxide was found in the woman's blood stream, indicating that she was dead when the fire started in her apartment.

A big man coroner's court jury was sworn in after the autopsy to hear evidence presented by the medico-legal experts and police.

Firemen were called to her home after a baby-sitter in an adjoining apartment smelled smoke.

The fire-fighters broke into the third-floor apartment and found a mattress-burning. They did not see the body until they had threw the mattress in the bathtub to extinguish the flames.

Police were called in when blood smears were found on the pillow and the woman's face.

Her 28-year-old husband, an employee of the Montreal Transportation Commission, knew about the hoax since the discovery of the body.

COUNCIL APPROVES

Toronto, May 30 — (CP) Toronto city council Monday unanimously approved a resolution calling for development of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project "with or without the assistance of the government of the United States."

The council said Ontario Hydro Commission authorities should be allowed to work with New York State on "immediate harnessing of the St. Lawrence River."

Army and Navy Squad Edges Batawa by 2-1

In a Bay of Quinte Soccer League game played at Batawa last night Belleville Army and Navy edged the Batawa outfit by two goals to one. The exchanges were fairly even throughout with the Belleville lads eventually from end to end. There was no scoring in the first half although Batawa had more scoring opportunities than the visitors. However, due to some brilliant goalstanding by Lionel Blaker in the nets the score remained unchanged on the part of the Bata forwards they were not able to capitalize on their advantage.

Belleville got the first goal from a penalty about 20 minutes from time by Gemmel who followed up with a second goal a couple of minutes later, Batawa tried hard to reduce the leeway without success but were awarded a penalty two minutes from time, which were converted by Hamilton.

Referee: Les Digby.

In the other B. of Q.S.L. game scheduled last night, 8 RD and Picton Gunners tied with four goals each. Picton was leading by four goals to one at one stage of the game but let the Airmen recover. Heron with three and Foster were the marksmen for the Gunners with Loutit, 2, Whyte and Manley tallying for the Depot. Jack Jones was the referee for this game.

A.Y.P.A. Closes Leadership Training Course

The last in a series of three meetings on Leadership Training, sponsored by the Diocesan Council of the Anglican Young People's Association, was held on Friday at Madoc, with a good attendance from the district churches. The convener of Leadership Training for the diocese, Rev. H. C. Secker, was chairman and conducted a short sing-song, before the meeting was formerly opened by Rev. H. Hill, chaplain of the Diocesan A.Y.P.A.

Mr. Hill was introduced by the chairman as the special speaker. Mr. Hill, who spent a year doing post-graduate work at Cambridge University, gave an interesting summary of his experiences with the hop pickers of southern England. In company with other students and members of the Franciscan Order, he lived with the pickers and did evangelistic work among them. He spoke of Brother Edward, a retired clergyman who inaugurated this great work of love among the Christ-faith during the period of hop picking. The work of Bishop Walter Carey and his village evangelists was also touched upon. Pictures of his work taken by Mr. Hill were shown.

The speaker emphasized the need for more witness for Christ and the church among the youth of the nation.

Diocesan A.Y.P.A. Councils

Canon Creeggan and Miss Jean Green of Belleville conducted a discussion regarding the different councils of the A.Y.P.A. with a view to the formation of a local council. This was done by means of questions and answers. The names of the various councils and their duties were explained. The main purpose of a local council is to see that the individual branches come together for fellowship and mutual help in the understanding of, and the working out of the program of the association.

The election of officers was held and resulted as follows: president, Miss Jean Green, Belleville; vice president, Miss Enid Coombs, Stirling; secretary, Miss Ruth Dentford, Madoc; treasurer, Janet Wright, Stirling; chaplain, Rev. T. Harvey Good, Madoc.

The officers of this group, known as the Local Council A.Y.P.A. of Hastings and Prince Edward Deaneries", will appoint other members from parishes not represented, to work on the executive. They will decide on the date for the first regular meeting in the fall, when a constitution will be adopted.

The rector of Madoc, Rev. T. H. Good, closed the meeting with prayer, and the ladies of the W.A. served refreshments.

Welfare State, Good or Bad? Topic of Study

"The Welfare State — Is It Good or "Bad?" was the topic for study and discussion by the Women's Guild of Tabernacle United Church at the regular monthly meeting held at the home of Miss J. Tickell, Church Street, on Monday evening.

A worship service, conducted by Mrs. M. D. Rusk dealing with "Others" led constructively into the program theme, which was handled by Mrs. H. C. Coulter and Mrs. A. Wilker.

Until the beginning of this century the state was thought of as protection by means of the army and police only. Gradually this idea has been expanding so that the state is looked to for conditions of disease, ignorance, unemployment and the care of dependents such as children, widows, aged persons and persons with physical and mental disability.

Responsibilities Shared

At first municipalities were wholly responsible for these, then provincial governments began to share and more recently federal authority. All political parties agree that the principle but differ in methods of assuming such responsibilities.

Many millions of dollars are needed to pay for these "free" services. Who pays? The people pay it and we are the government. Are "needs" being considered? Are we being headed toward collectivism? Is the administration of these services wasteful? Will a welfare state tend to undermine personal initiative?

Lively discussion on these and similar questions brought out much information about unemployment insurance, preventive medicine, public health, child care, and dependents' allowance already legislated for in Canada.

Burden Shared

It was pointed out that such services should not be left to the whim of economic charity but the cost should be borne equally by all through taxation. It is a urgent task to overcome ignorance, idleness, disease, squalor and poverty and these problems may have to be complicated to avoid abuse and exploitation, but we are on the right road in spite of many difficulties of administration. Every Canadian citizen must use his mind on the balance between the benefits to be derived from welfare state activities as against the risks involved and his personal obligations in the form of income taxes.

Ted Hurst and Mr. George B. McNally, of Belleville, the ushers.

The reception was held at Golden Acres Inn, where the guests were received by the bride's mother wearing pale blue lace over crepe, with navy and pink accessories with corsage of pink roses, carnations and white stocks. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was gowned in navy with navy and white accessories and corsage of pink roses, pink carnations and white stocks to which adiantum fern.

The happy couple left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and points west, the bride wearing a navy crepe dress, with navy and white accessories and corsage of lily-of-the-valley and Johanna Hill roses. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Richardson will reside in Belleville.

I.O.D.E. Serves As Help Agency Through World

Saskatoon, Sask., (CP) — In dollars-and-cents value alone, Canada's 21,000-member Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire last year shipped $31,267 worth of clothing and bedding and $32,217 in food to Britain.

"These figures don't include the $46,619 in goods distributed throughout Europe," Mrs. Rose Mc-Lell the story of the numerous little services contributed by women in the I.O.D.E. chapters across Canada toward the well-being of persons in other countries.

Mrs. K. I. G. Drope of Toronto, the order's post-war service convener, reported to the I.O.D.E. annual meeting that the organization's post-war service work in money and kind during the year totalled $176,863.

The committee feels the people of Great Britain and certain countries are still in need of assistance.

"In what better way can we fight communism in far-off lands than by sharing with those who are less fortunate and suffering because of this deadly foe," said Mrs. Drope.

In Austria, Italy, Greece and British-occupied Germany, the British Save The Children Fund had distributed on behalf of the I.O.D.E. used and new clothing and bedding worth $46,619.

At the order's request the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Families Association of Great Britain had undertaken to supply the Canadian Women's Club with clothing for Canadian veterans and their families living in Britain.

Used as Specified

In conclusion Mrs. Drope said that every dollar given to the I.O.D.E. national funds for a specific purpose is used "in its entirety" for that purpose.

A picture of I.O.D.E. work in the order of that committee, Mrs. C. V. Mulligan, Toronto.

In all the order contributed $232,832 in money and goods for welfare in Canada. This didn't even count the work done during the Winnipeg flood a year ago. At that time the I.O.D.E. was recognized as the medium for clothing and bedding distribution. Goods to an estimated value of $300,000 were handled.

Mrs. Mulligan Re-Elected

Mrs. Mulligan said that with the increase in living costs more persons would require such assistance as the order could give.

Mrs. G. G. Sinclair of Toronto, over-seas delegates an idea of the number of visits members of the order have made to veterans hospitals in the last year.

"One province alone — and by no means the largest — reported 11,248 visits made during the year," she said in her report of the ex-service personnel committee.

Hospital Drive For $250,000 Is Op[illegible] P.E.

Picton—This week will see the opening of a drive to secure $250,000 by public subscription. The amount secured will go to pend future plans for expansion of Prince Edward County hospital here. Should the full amount be forthcoming, an entirely new institution will be built, since sufficient money is available to finance the remainder of such a project. If this amount is not secured, it is planned to build a modern wing which would be the start of a new building.

Hospital Board members met Monday night and decided to open a campaign. This follows a discussion at a previous meeting at which the great need of more accommodation was stressed. The board does not plan to do any definite building until the campaign is concluded.

EXCELLENT FISHING

Excellent fishing is reported in all Prince Edward County waters and there are many tourists enjoying the sport. CAMPBELLFORD

Barney McColl Guest Speaker At Rotary Club

Campbellford—The Campbellford Rotary Club held its regular Monday noon luncheon with four students of Grade XIII of the Campbellford High School as guests. These students were the winners in the Rotary essay contest conducted a few weeks ago, on the subject of the "United Nations." Winner of the contest, and guest speaker at the meeting, was Grant (Barney) MacColl, son of Rotarian past president N. Alex MacColl. Barney won as first prize, a trip to Ottawa to study government in the Citizenship Project sponsored by the Ottawa Rotary Club.

Florence Brown, Gwen McCulloch and Basil Darrah were the three runners up in the contest and also received a gift from the club, presented by Past President Owen Watson.

President-Elect Franklin Linton introduced the speaker and told a little of his background.

Tells of Trip

Barney first read his prize-winning essay to the club, and thanked the members for the opportunity to visit the capital city. He told many interesting highlights of the trip and of the several heads of Canada's government he had met. Photographs of many of these, taken by Barney during his four day visit, were passed among the members.

He said one thing that will always be in his mind regarding the trip was when he was presented with a certificate of Canadian citizenship by the Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent. He showed the certificate to the members, many of whom although they are Canadian citizens, have never seen a certificate of its kind before.

Friendly Reception

Speaking of his visit to Government House, Barney said the reception was warm and friendly. Visits to the National Research Council, the Mint, and other places of interest included the trip case which will never be forgotten, he said.

Rotarian W. A. Kingston thanked the speaker and President Arthur K. Louks presented Barney with a plaque as a memento of his talk to the local club. Many members said they hoped to have the youth back to another meeting to discuss the trip and his essay more fully, because of the fact the essay displayed some great literary talent and a wonderful understanding of present world conditions. A copy of the essay is being forwarded to the Chicago Rotary club, and a telephone call to enquire if Barney would speak at the Peterborough Rotary Club was received.

An inter-club meeting will be held at Batawa on Wednesday evening and a large number of members of the Campbellford club will attend. Rotarian Ross Richardson is organizing the local members for this trip.

End of A Chapter

By Edwin Pratt

At Molly Tremayne's mention of Chester Chase, Pine Point started to say that she had recently met the man, but didn't. After a feeling of disloyalty to Molly she had been keenly interested in Molly's story, but she did not want to hear more just now. There had been a little—well, too much of picking a man to pieces.

She looked at her watch, and uttered consternation. "Good heavens, Molly, I've got to fly. Muriel's expecting a mess of stuff from me this afternoon."

When she got home Muriel was on the lawn, in swimsuit and with a yellow cotton robe thrown over her shoulders.

"It's getting so darned hot," Muriel said, "that I'm flouting tradition—the one that says you can't swim before the Fourth of July."

"I'd love nothing better than to flaunt it with you," Alice said.

"Well, hurry and get into your suit!" Muriel waved past the low robe, dislodged, fell to the ground.

Muriel's eyes came up quickly, they traveled from Alice's face to her own left arm.

"Oh" Muriel said, caressing the muscle above the elbow. "Nasty, isn't it?"

"It's an awful bruise. How on earth—" Alice's voice trailed off.

"Get my own stupidity," Muriel said lightly. "The night of the storm I woke up and found the rain simply pouring into the bedroom. And when I went to close the window, I—I wasn't awake enough, I guess. Anyhow, I tripped and smacked into a dresser, good and hard."

Alice went inside to change. But she walked slowly.

Angry blue marks on white skin, spaced about an inch apart. Definitely, dressers did not have fingers.

Despite Alice's doubts and a heat wave that followed, Muriel seemed delighted to serve on Molly Tremayne's committee.

"Molly's promised to go easy on men," she told Alice. "And a little extra-curricular work never hurts."

On behalf of the Garden Club Muriel drove into Tolliver alone one evening. It had been a stifling day, the heat gripping Connecticut like a great moist hand. And the disappearance of the sun, going down after a last red wade to the beach. She did so, pulling off her bathing cap and shaking out her hair.

Brent Halleck waited quietly on the beach as Alice Pine shook out her hair. For once his eyes, gleaming in the half-light, did not appear sardonic. Instead, they seemed troubled.

"Sensible place to be tonight." He indicated the sea.

Alice picked up her towel. "I thought you were out somewhere."

He shrugged. "I did take a drive. But I hadn't any place to go. So I parked down at the end of the road and then"—he peered at her suddenly—"was that you singing?"

"Afraid so," She gave an embarrassed laugh. "If you call it singing when I can't carry a note."

"I liked it," Brent said.

She glanced at him quickly. But, behind his pipe, his face was serious.

A moment passed, with Brent puffing silently. Alice reached for her robe. "Well, I think I can sleep now."

He took the pipe from his mouth. "Don't go just yet, Alice."

"Why?" She was a little puzzled. His voice had been unusual. Almost—well, timid.

"Because I'd like to talk to you."

She hesitated, without understanding the hesitation. For days she had studiously avoided Brent

"I don't know if I should stay" she said doubtfully, "Muriel may be back. She may want me for something."

He laughed. "You don't know the Garden Club. When those females get together, they're good for half the night. Besides, what if Muriel is back? We could still talk, I suppose."

"All right." She sat down pulled on her sandals. "But not for long. What did you want to say to me?"

Brent stopped down by her. "I want to tell you something," he said slowly. "Then I'm going to ask a favor. But I don't know just how to do it either. I'm afraid it'll sound like doubletalk to you."

"Naturally, I don't understand. Why can't you just speak out?"

"This is one time when that's difficult. So I'll merely tell you even if it sounds trite, that the way a thing looks isn't necessarily the—the way it is."

"That is doubletalk," Alice said.

"Well, I warned you. And that's about as clear as I can be."

"What's worrying you Brent?" she asked, painstakingly.

"You in a way," he said surprisingly. "But if you're not worrying about anything, I'll skip it too."

She thought she understood. Brent was uncertain whether she knew the truth about what had happened in the hallway. And he was probing to find out.

Remembering, Alice felt a resurgence of her anger and disgust. For a moment she was on the point of accusing him; of pouring forth a torrent of blistering condemnation.

Unwittingly Brent forestalled a possible outburst by adding: "You won't understand this either. But I could use a little help about now, Alice."

Her eyes flashed to his. She was suspicious of Brent Halleck but tonight he seemed different. She had never known him in this subdued mood. Unconsciously she leaned closer to him.

"I'll be very glad to help you, Brent. Any way I can."

His fingers touched hers in the sand, but went away immediately.

"Thanks. You can, maybe, for rest of the time you're with Muriel."

"There's something you want me to do?"

"Yes." He sat up, hugging his knees. "You've been wonderful to young Rick, Alice. I don't tell you how much I appreciate it."

Coming from Brent, this should have sounded insincere. Somehow it didn't.

"But that's been a pleasure," Alice said. "I'm crazy about the child."

"Well, please go on being that way. I'm sorry I can't be more explicit. But sort of see to him will you?"

"Certainly. But we all will do that, yes?"

"No," said Brent. "I don't most of the time. I've been dickering for a job, Alice, for some time. Now it's come though. In Providence. That means I'll only be here weekends from now on."

"But why a job?" she asked in surprise. "Isn't your painting a full-time job?"

"Full-time, yes. But not fully compensated, Frankly, I haven't done so well since the war. And now"—a determined note came into his voice—"I've got to make money."

"But what kind of a job Brent?

"In Perkins and Grant, an advertising agency up there," he told her. "I'm to be an art director. Never did that before, but I'm hoping to get away with it."

ONLY FOUR HAD WATER

Whitby, May 30 (CP) — Only four of 60 thoroughbred dogs found locked in a Pickering township barn May 3 had water, Inspector Fred Thompson of the Toronto Humane Society said Tuesday.

Testifying at the trial of Mrs. M. H. Page of Toronto, charged with improper care of animals, Mr. Thompson said the dogs were "pretty pearly crazy" when he inspected the barn, about 14 miles west of Oshawa.

Magistrate F. C. Edge adjourned the hearing until Thursday to consider the arguments of defence counsel R. W. Macauley of Toronto, who said a conclusive case had not been proved.

India Reluctantly Beginning To Accept Birth Control For Limitation of Population

GOES TO KOREA, BUT VIA MOSCOW

Mrs. Nora Rodd of Windsor, Ont., is reported to be in Korea. But she took the route through Moscow and a delegate from the Canadian Congress of Women to investigate the report by Madame Dennis, North Korean minister of culture, that Korean women and children are suffering cruelties at the hands of U.N. troops. But while Mrs. Rodd is investigating in Korea, she and the Congress are being investigated at home. — Central Press Canadian.

MUST PAY SERVANTS

Tokyo, May 29. (AP)—Easy living for allied occupation personnel got a jolt today from Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters. The allied commander ordered housewives of the occupation to begin paying the salaries of their servants after July 1. These have been paid by the Japanese government since the surrender.

CHARGED WITH UTTERING

London, Ont., May 29 — (CP)— Two city constables and a detective sprinted two blocks in downtown London Monday before overtaking Franklin William Thomas, 18, of Peterborough.

Thomas was charged with uttering a forged document. He is alleged to have tried to cash a check in a downtown jewelry store and fled when the store manager became suspicious and called police.

New Delhi, May 30 — (Reuters) — India, "dazed by the recurrent threat of famine, is reluctantly beginning to accept the principle of birth control as a means of limiting its population.

Opinion, from the ministerial level downwards, is still strongly divided on whether birth control is morally desirable or economically practicable.

Some birth - control centres have been established by local municipal bodies. But the government has taken no initiative.

Ninety per cent of the people—the most prolific section the country's vast rural population—cannot be reached except by a full-scale government - run campaign. That would involve immense expense for propaganda, specialists and the free distribution of contraceptives.

During the last half - century India's population has increased by 34 per cent. The 1951 census puts the total at 356,880,000 compared with 235,500,000 for the equivalent area in 1901.

This one-sixth of the world's population lives on less than three per cent of the world's land surface.

Standard Abnormally Low

The standard of living, as a result, is abnormally low. The average annual per capita income in 1949 was about $54, compared with $773 in Britain, $1,433 in the United States and $308 in Russia.

Birth-control advocates argue Indian women are weakened by constant child-bearing from an early age.

There is no specific religious objection to birth control among Hindus or Moslems, such as there is among Roman Catholics.

Yet many Hindus have a deep-rooted dislike, springing in part from religious feelings, to the practice of it.

Government ministers themselves are not agreed on the advisability of a wide campaign.

Prime Minister Nehru has spoken in favor of birth control. But Health Minister Rajkumari Amrit Kaur, a Roman Catholic, has opposed it.

Nevertheless, birth control has made a start.

The All-India Women's Conference has issued directives to its 300 units all over India to concentrate on birth-control work this year.

King Will Not Make Planned Trip to Ireland

London, May 30 — (Reuters) — The King today decided not to make his planned weekend trip to Northern Ireland. Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret will carry out the program arranged for the visit.

The King has been confined to his room at Buckingham Palace with a mild attack of influenza. Today he missed the 172nd running of the Derby at Epsom.

After his doctors had visited the King today it was announced the 55-year-old monarch had not shaken off his attack of influenza and had decided, on the advice of his doctors, not to go to Northern Ireland.

The King's temperature still is described, the palace statement said.

Though the King is not going to Ireland the tight security measures imposed by the Northern Ireland police following recent Republican extremist activities will be maintained.

Restart police yesterday detained 13 suspected members of the Irish Republican army who are agitating for the union of the six northern counties — still part of the United Kingdom — with the Republic of Ireland.

GETS MOVIE JOB

Hollywood, May 29. (AP)—Actor Sterling Hayden, who last month confessed to the House of Representatives Un-American Activities committee that he was a communist, got a new movie job yesterday. He has the leading role in "Denver and Rio Grande", a railroad film scheduled for production next month. Hayden, a free-lance performer, thus becomes the first player to resume work in the movie industry after admitting red affiliations.

BODY EXHUMED

Vatican City, May 29. (Reuters) — The body of Pope Pius X who died in 1914, was exhumed in St. Peter's Basilica last night and prepared for his beatification Sunday. The body was taken from its tomb in the chapel of the resurrection in the Chapter Hall of the Sacristy. The body was placed in a crystal sarcophagus where it will remain for the beatification ceremonies.

Members Should Not Read Speeches During Debate

Ottawa, May 30 (CP) —Speaker Rene Macdonald Tuesday reminded members that they should not read prepared speeches during debates in the Commons.

"The Commons is not a debating society nor an assembly gathered to hear the reading of lengthy essays," said Mr. Macdonald.

At the same time, he made a ruling on a point raised last week by M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader. Mr. Macdonald agreed with Mr. Coldwell that irregular use is being made of the rule covering questions of privilege.

The rule should not be used to draw attention to the winning of athletic championships or to the winning of honors by particular persons or groups. It should not be used to draw attention to groups of school children or others visiting in the galleries.

Fifty Indians Used to Mop-Up Huge Forest Fire

Timmins, May 30 (CP) —Fifty bush-wise Indians moved into the Gogama district of Northern Ontario Tuesday to tackle the hazardous "mopping up" of a 55,000-acre forest fire that burned out of control for nearly a week.

At the same time, as fire hazards lessened across the province, Lands Minister Harold Scott announced the opening of the vast northeastern districts of Timiskaming and Cochrane, closed since last week when some 50 fires burned in Ontario.

The Gogama fire, burning in birch-pine timber along a 250-mile perimeter, has not yet been fully under control.

The Indians are being used to douse those small fires ahead of the main outbreak. Armed with axes, shovels and portable pumps, they were dropped from helicopters with instructions to put out the fire and find their own way back to civilization.

Two Gunmen Miss Larger Haul By Coming Early

Mitchell, Ont., May 30—(CP)— If the two gunmen who robbed the Bank of Commerce here had arrived a little earlier or a little later than they did, their loot might have been much higher.

The young robbers, with colored bandanas over their faces escaped with between $8,000 and $9,000 from three tellers cages which they scooped into a paper bag.

Police road blocks were thrown up in the area around this town 15 miles north of Stratford.

The robbers were unable to enter the vault because of quick action by bank manager A. G. McDougall, who came through the bank's rear door just as the gunmen entered with drawn revolvers.

He ducked into the vault and closed the inner door.

Minutes after the thieves fled in a late-model blue car, James C. Douglas, express delivery man, arrived with a money shipment. Douglas said he might have come on the scene when the bandits were there if he hadn't made an earlier delivery out of his way from the railway station to the bank.

The hold-up was over in five minutes. Tellers pasted pair forced five male employees to lie on the floor and seven women to line up against a wall while they went through cash drawers of the three cages. The drawers were locked in a fourth cage and were not opened. No scustomers were in the bank at the time.

SEEKS TO PART COMPANY

Hollywood, May 29. (AP)—Robert Rossen, Academy award-winning director wanted for questioning by the House of Representatives Un-American Activities committee, seeks to part company with his Columbia Pictures Studio.

Daily Variety, motion picture trade journal, reported that Rossen is in Mexico and wants to set up an independent movie company there.

COUPLE DRAW TICKET

Toronto, May 29. (CP)—A young Toronto couple stand a chance of winning $150,000 in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes. Mr. and Mrs. Doug Terry said they have been notified by cable that they hold a ticket on Zucchero—a 20-to-1 shot. They will receive at least $1,200 for having the ticket drawn.

Bibles Put Out For Readers

Montreal — (CP) — Many persons who have used the entrance corridor to St. James United Church in midtown Montreal as a shelter from wind and rain, recently have noticed a glass case set up in the interior.

Underneath the glass are three Bibles, one in English, another in French, the third in Yiddish. The unusual display has attracted considerable attention because of the combination of the languages.

There have been many queries as to the "why" of the display. The answer is simply that St. James Church and its minister, Rev. Dr. T. E. McLennan, think that giving the passerby an opportunity to read a page of Scripture does a lot of good.

All three Bibles are opened at the same page. The pages are usually turned twice weekly.

Who knows whether the casual glance at the open Bible page might give a man or a woman the "spiritual lift" that turns a puzzled existence into a positive life?

Calgarian Owns Odd Bicycle 'Built for Four'

Calgary — (CP) — Most people have heard of the "bicycle built for two," immortalized in song and grandfather's day. But not so many have heard of a "bicycle built for four."

This relic reposes in the Calgary shed of Matt R. Wolthuis, a middle-aged man who has never known any other work except that of building, repairing or riding bicycles.

Matt fabricated the bicycle built for four from an old bicycle shop that went out of business many years ago.

At least eight feet long, it requires some nerve and experience to pilot it. Apparently added weight makes it considerably more difficult to steer than the ordinary kind. Four novices riding it might run into a lot of grief.

Matt, who has worked in his store for most of the 33 years since he emigrated from Holland, also has an 1880 bicycle, popularly called the "Penny-Farthing" for its boy-day. Its front wheel is almost five feet in diameter, while the rear wheel is only about 18 inches. The wheels are less than an inch thick.

The pioneer bicycle man occasionally rides this monster. But he has a better purpose for it. Publicity-wise, he exhibits the Penny-Farthing in front of his shop as an eye-catcher for prospective customers.

Matt never got rich, but he did achieve happiness with the bicycle, his first love.

He is particularly proud also of his assistant, Fred Anderson, believed the first man ever to cross Canada on a bicycle.

He accomplished this feat in June, 1948, covering the 4,500 miles from Vancouver to Sydney, N.S., in 25 days.

Art Principal Returns to Easel

Toronto — (CP) — The retirement this year of Fred S. Haines as principal of the Ontario College of Art will not mean his retirement as an artist.

Mr. Haines, who in 18 years as principal has seen the school's enrolment grow from 136 to more than 600 students, is looking forward to "painting professionally" again in his studio in suburban Thornhill.

Born in 1880, he was recognized as a talented student when he won the medal in figure painting at the Fine Arts Academy in Antwerp, Belgium. Since then his paintings, which feature landscapes and farm scenes, have appeared in many art galleries.

His artistic taste has been felt not only by his pupils, but by the public who have seen the exhibits of the Canadian National Exhibition and the Toronto Art Gallery, of which he was curator for some time.

Painting will not occupy all of his time from now on. He is a member of a flute club, containing players of assorted ages, and for some time has headed his own woodwind quintet, which plays for its own enjoyment in his Thornhill studio.

Many bridge players are like chips in a whirlpool. I refer to those who keep going in circles. They change every few years and then back again to where they started.

Take the case of when a double is for takeout. You can hear a difference of opinion about even by one author. But there is only one basic set of rules for determining it.

A double is for takeout if partner has not yet bid or doubled, if the bid is not more than three in suit or more than one no-trump.

If made at the first opportunity. Otherwise it is for penalty.

You are sitting west with this hand:

♥K 7
♦A K J 2
♣Q 7 5

The bidding has gone like this:

South	West	North	East
1 H	Dbl	2 H	Pass
Pass	Dbl	3 H	Pass
Pass	Dbl	Pass	3 S
4 H	Dbl

Your first double was for takeout. It was made at your first opportunity. Partner had not yet bid. The bid is not more than three in a suit. It said partner to bid if no bid intervenes.

Your second double is for takeout. Partner had not yet bid and the bid was not more than three in a suit. Your third double is for takeout. Partner has not yet bid. The bid is not more than three.

Your fourth double is for penalty. For two reasons. Partner had already bid. The opponent bid was more than three in a suit. This is for penalty, therefore, saying you can defeat the contract.

If partner had bid in the first round, your second double would have been for penalty. Or if north had jumped at once to four hearts.

Know your double and keep out of trouble.

Ottawa, May 30 (CP)—Rapidly approaching full strength, units of Canada's 27th Brigade, being raised primarily for service in Europe, will be moving into training centres soon, an army spokesman said Tuesday.

Latest reports are that 5,539 men have been recruited for service with the 27th.

Between 5,500 and 6,000 men are needed for the brigade group, but the recruiting drive which opened May 7 will continue indefinitely, the spokesman said.

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 30 — (AP) — You hear it all over town—Hollywood is on the upbeat.

"We are clearly and unashamedly going after upbeat stories that entertain rather than depress the audience," a studio boss told me. "The pictures that are selling in the current market are those which bear no problems."

This means that the future films will place the accent on music, comedy and adventure. As the old Hollywood saying goes: "Let Western Union carry the message."

TV Blues

Maybe you don't think that the top comedians aren't knocking themselves out to appear at their best in television. Take the example of Edgar Bergen. He put so much time, effort and money into his last TV show that he figures he won't even show a profit on the deal. "In fact," he told me, "I don't think I lost $35."

Bergen has been putting his show on film and has found that is the most expensive way of doing TV.

The rumbles in the Jack Benny household are confirmed by friends. But the arguments have nothing to do with their marital felicity, which is as calm as ever. Mary just wants to give up her acting career; Jack doesn't want to.

If Mary wins out, it will be television's loss. She looked beautiful on her TV debut with Benny this month. And her comedy touch would be sorely missed on the air show . . .

Capsule Review

"The Guy Who Came Back" presents an arresting problem, but doesn't know how to solve it. It poses the question of what happens when a pro football star becomes too old to play the game.

POLITE STRANGER

London, May 30 — (Reuters) — A maid at the home of Mrs. Elsie Moss saw a strange man at the front of the drive and asked him what he was doing.

He said he thought he was in an apartment block and the maid directed him farther down the street.

The stranger apologized and left the house . . . with almost £500 of Mrs. Moss' jewelry.

CONVICTED OF ARSON

Brockville, May 30 — (CP)— A former volunteer fireman, James E. Annable, 30, of Prescott, was convicted Tuesday on a charge of arson arising from an outbreak of fire in Prescott during March. Decision was reserved on five other charges of arson. Annable was remanded in custody until June 12 for sentence on the first charge.

A SPLENDID JOB!

From where we stood in the new Fire [illegible] on West Moira Street last night we could see all of the proudest, 100 million nuggets, the shirt-sleeved fireman, Mayor Dick Foley and his Recreation Commission members or a flock of parents!

It was a red-letter night for the kids and the firemen too. The park, situated just behind the new fire station was officially opened and you couldn't blame Vance's blast and gold buchanan if they had a button or two off their shirt fronts. They had every reason to be proud for they have done a wonderful job in the construction of the park, and they deserve all the credit that comes their way.

Credit too, goes to Reg. Wardle, chairman of the Softball Peewee division who worked untiringly on the project, and President Don Lee of the Commercial Softball League. As far as the fire department goes, as Chief Vance put it in a brief speech, "every man on this fire department deserves equal credit."

And the boys were busier than the proverbial one-armed carpenter with the hives. They looked after a milling crowd of excited youngsters, lined them up and gave them lemonade and whatnot.

The new park, with its flag-topped posts, proud bunting waving in the breeze, with brand new fences surrounding the entrance and snow-fence enclosing the diamond with the brand new backstop, is a distinct credit to community effort and will be a possession to the city's fire department. Parents of the district have no need for worry now for the new "Vance's Stadium" will be a haven for the kiddies with its swings and teeter-totters and the boys in blue to look after them. A great big vote of thanks should be passed by the city in general and the district in particular to the Men o' Vance and all others who assisted in the project.

And remember, this can be repeated in other parts of the city. Parks like the new firemens' project can be created if the good folks of the various districts co-operation with the Recreation Commission get together and decide on a similar plan of action.

* * *

This has been evidenced in the fine recreation park constructed by the Canadian National Railways Athletic Association. As President George Foster once told us, "A resident of this district came to me and handed me a check for $50. for the park."

"What's this for?" asked George.

"It's worth it," replied the donor, "just only for the kiddies the peace of mind. I was always worried stiff when I turned out of my driveway with my car that one or two youngsters would dart out in front of me. Since your park has been in operation, I don't see the youngsters on the street any more."

Not only will the new "Vance Stadium" provide recreation for the kiddies of the district and a playing spot for the Softball Peewee League, but it will play an important part in developing the softball stars of the future. Captain "Wazzy" O'Brien and Coach Cuthana told us last night prior to the game between Bayne and Scotia, that they had been pleasantly surprised at the talent that is being developed in these half-pint players. In fact, if you were there you could see that for yourselves. We saw many a great play and some potential stars in action. It is a grand thing. Remember it is "not the size of the dog as the size of the fight in the dog".

The columnar orchids go to Gerald Vance and his fine firemen crew; to Reg Wardle; Don Lee and others who made this fine park a reality and a boon to the youngsters and parents of their district.

DOING FINE WORK!

Gary Schreiber added further laurels to an imposing track and field record on Saturday. He tied for the senior individual championship at the inter-school meet between the formerly Collegiate and St. Michael's College. Sharing the honors was another St. Mike's athlete Bob Sabourin. Gary won the 220 and 440 events and placed second in the 100 - yard dash. His times were, for the 220, 23.2 seconds and the 440, 53.3 seconds.

While it is too early in the season to form any definite opinion of the strength of the various clubs, it would appear from the scores in general that the teams have a fairly equal distribution of power.

All scores with the exception of one thus far have been fairly close with a one-run margin deciding the issue in some of the games. The schedule is a fairly tight one and within a couple of weeks the teams should be reaching their form. Then, perhaps we shall see what we shall see. In the meantime all managers and coaches are shuffling their rounds, doing some player arithmetic, addition and subtraction, that is, in an effort to produce strong aggregations.

Tonight six of the teams swing into action with Kingston at Picton; Napanee at Batawa and Smith's Falls at Brockville. And the results may bring some change in the standings. The Kingston Frontenacs cannot leap into the league lead with a win over Picton with Smith's Falls reaching a second-place tie with the Redmen if they can pull out a win over Brockville.

In the meantime Coach Pat Wilson is drilling his Redmen chorges hard in practice grinds. He is taking no chances on Saturday night's game with the Batawa Shoemen and there will probably be some important changes in the line-up over that which played last Saturday against Picton.

Bob Lemon Barely Misses Chance to Become Sixth Hurler to Pitch Perfect Game

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A mighty home-run blast by Vic Wertz, the only hit, yesterday cost Bob Lemon an opportunity to join the six pitching immortals who have hurled perfect no-hit no-run major-league games.

In twirling a brilliant 2-1 victory over Detroit in to day's lone contest preceding today's holiday doubleheaders, the ace Cleveland righthander yielded a four-bagger to Wertz in the eighth inning.

Big Vic was the only Tiger base-runner. Lemon did not walk or hit a batter. The Indians made no errors behind him.

Until Wertz came to bat, Lemon mowed down 21 consecutive batters. He threw a strike past the Tiger slugger first to face him in the eighth. The next pitch landed in the upper right field stands.

"It was a slider," Lemon groaned after the game. "It wasn't high. It wasn't low. It was just right—for him."

Had Lemon been able to get past Wertz he would have become the first pitcher to hurl a perfect game in 29 years. The last such spotless performance was turned in by Charley Robertson, who whipped of all people the Tigers 2-0 April 30, 1922.

Although hundreds have come within one safety of pitching a hitless game, only nine have lost their no-hitter by tossing a home run ball.

Lemon's one-hitter was the fifth of the season in the majors. It was the first Bob ever hurled although he pitched a no-hitter against the same Tigers in Briggs Stadium June 30, 1948.

In winning his fourth game against five defeats, Lemon fanned seven. Al Rosen batted in both Cleveland runs, one with a double. The Tribe got six hits off Bob Cain and reliefer Hal White. It was Cain's fourth loss against two victories.

Brantford Red Sox and Kitchener Legionnaires stepped up a notch last night in the senior intercounty baseball league standings.

The Sox scored a 2-1 victory over the Negro Leafs at Guelph while Legionnaires edged London Majors 8-7 at Kitchener.

The two wins enabled Kitchener and Brantford to move past London into second place, tied a full game back of the league-leading Waterloo Tigers.

Action in half a game behind the second-place teams, Galt is another game back of London, while Guelph, with a single victory against seven losses, is in sixth and winless St. tomas Legion in seventh.

Ezzard Charles Rules Favorite To Retain Title

Chicago, May 30—(AP)—Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati is established favorite to retain his heavyweight boxing championship tonight in Chicago Stadium against challenger Joe Maxim, the sleek light-heavy king.

Despite the rarity of new champions battling and the promise of a lively brawl from the start, the turnout may number only 7,000 to 10,000 with a gross gate of less than $100,000.

More than 20 million persons will see and hear the scheduled 15-round title showdown on television and radio (CBS). The bout begins at 8 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time).

They are to weigh in at noon (EST). Charles is expected to scale 185; Maxim 181.

A brewery has assured financial success for the international Boxing Club show by paying $100,000 for TV rights. Charles' share will be 40 per cent of the net receipts and television payment. Maxim will get 20 per cent of both.

Charles, 30, generally favored to defend successfully his heavyweight crown for the eighth time in 22 months because he has defeated Maxim in three previous meetings. Twice in 12-rounders back in 1942 the Cincinnati Negro outpointed the 24-year-old Italian, and he won a split 15-round decision in his home town 27 months ago.

The first two fights should be discounted since both men had barely emerged from the amateur ranks at that time.

The bout in Cincinnati is important for Maxim led the first 12 rounds and it took a closing flurry by Charles to capture votes of the two judges. The referee gave the decision to Maxim.

It was no secret that the outcome was a relief to the I. B. C. which previously had arranged for Charles to meet Jersey Joe Walcott in Chicago in the summer of 1949 for the heavyweight title vacated by Joe Louis. Maxim had not been considered seriously in the plans.

500-Mile Race At Indianapolis Ready to Start

Indianapolis, May 30—(AP)—A new army of drivers, equipped on the dirty grandstand tracks and the short, short ovals, will invade the 2½-mile bowl of shrewd veterans today in the 35th running of the 500-mile auto classic at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

The starting gun will go at 11 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time), with a warm, cloudy day forecast.

Only 11 second-stringers lineup that already has produced seven 10-mile qualification trials faster than the old record.

Bill Holland's 1949 record for the full 500 miles, a record after an hour, was almost certain to fall if the weather held good and there were no accidents.

Holland wasn't in the lineup to produce the record. The Hoosier veteran was under suspension from the American Automobile Association for competing in a non-AAA sanctioned race last fall.

America's most patient sports crowd—expected to watch more than four hours of exciting time-killing outside the gates for hours and even days—was expected to approach a record. If it did the record is, the speedway has never sold, but the general guess is 150,000 plus.

Mauri Rose of South Bend, Ind., 1941 winner, and Duke Nalon of Sherman Oaks, Calif., the popular favorite, and "Rose is always the man to beat!"

Mauri won in 1941 and 1948 and missed the victory in 1941 as relief driver for Floyd Davis. Wilbur Shaw and Louie Meyer are the only other three-time winners.

Parnelli Jones, last year's rain-shortened race, in his second start.

FRANKFORD

Campbellford Wins Opener From Locals 10-3

Frankford—Frankford Merchants opened the current softball season in Campbellford Monday night and won 10-3 in a well-balanced Campbellford Club. Manager Gilbert Gilmore reports that Campbellford looks like the best team that town has turned out since the beginning of the league. West pitched good ball, and was never in serious danger at any time during the game, although Frankford stranded numerous runners on base paths. "Letty" Reid worked for Frankford and pitched brilliant ball, striking out 11. The fact that the Frankford defence allowed seven unearned runs turned what would have been a remarkably close game into a rout. Best bit of the night was Jack Cousineau's single to deep centre. The Merchants next game will be with Trenton on Tuesday, Friday evening.

Wooler Trent Valley softball team won their home opener by edging Stirling 5-4 in a thriller, which was decided in the final frame. Details on the line are not available, but fans inform us that it was one of the best games seen in Wooler in many times. McColl and Stacey were the Wooler battery with big Barney whirling 14 Stirling batsmen. Rogers and Wright worked for Stirling. Rogers getting five of the strikeout route. Stirling lad throughout the other part of the game, but couldn't hold the powerful Wooler sluggers.

Harness Racing Back in Toronto On July 7th

Toronto, May 30—(CP)—Big-time harness-racing returns to Toronto Saturday, July 7, when Thorncliffe Raceway opens its second season. This year's program calls for 48 days of racing which, with one brief pause, will continue through Labor Day.

Thorncliffe officials announce that they received a record total of 926 entries for their 21 early-closing events, an average of 44 horses per race for the 21 races. In their inaugural season, they received a total of 820 entries for 22 early-losing events.

The racing strip, regarded by harnessmen as one of the fastest half-mile tracks in North America is being re-graded under the supervision of J. S. Coates, the 87-year-old "Wizard of Goshen" who also designed the continent's outstanding courses.

The Canadian cup race—richest purse in the Canadian harness game—is scheduled for competition Friday, August 31, and has attracted a record field of 14 speedsters from the United States and Canada.

King May Get Shot at Title By Beating Savoie

(By The Canadian Press)

LT. Arthur King returns to his home city Toronto for a title bout with Ezzard Charles on Monday.

He may get a shot at the world's lightheavyweight title if he can win, loss or draw, he'll likely get the biggest purse of his fistic career.

So many requests for tickets poured into Promoter Frank Tunney after he announced arrangements for the tiff that he opened the box office at Maple Leaf Gardens two days earlier than usual. He predicts the gate may be over the $200,000.

Whether King will get a crack at the world title, possibly one that his Philadelphia stablemate, Joe Williams, no longer wears the laurels, depends immediately on Savoie.

Sonny Austin, Savoie's trainer, has announced that Savoie will try claim to the Canadian lightweight crown on June 4.

Joe Rindone of Boston, a 10-1 underdog, drew with Gene (Silent) Hairston, New York deaf mute, in what was expected to be a future boxing bout Tuesday night at Boston Garden. Rindone weighed 161, Hairston 160.

A crowd of 8,803 paid a gross gate of $25,161.

A man willing to back either a group or an individual unable to bear the cost of equipping a team, will be able to apply to the Ontario athletic commission for aid, Labor Minister Daley said Tuesday.

The labor minister said the commission, now under the jurisdiction of the department of Labor, will have $10,000 to draw upon to aid minor sports this year. Help will be directed to the younger groups in sports, particularly teams in the baseball and midget-age class.

Twenty countries have entered for the 1952 Olympic winter games in Oslo, The Norwegian Olympic committee said Tuesday.

A final entry of more than 30 countries is expected, with a total of about 1,000 competitors.

An 18-year-old lefthander whom they've never seen threw a baseball was signed by Cleveland Indians Tuesday for what they said is "the highest cash bonus ever paid any ball player."

He is Billy Joe Davidson, a pres-school pitcher from Ridge Military Academy near Winston-Salem, N. C.

Marsh Samuel, Indian public relations director, said Davidson got a bonus of "well over $100,000." That would top the $100,000 Pittsburgh Pirates are said to have paid pitcher Paul Pettit to sign.

Davidson rang up 13 victories in 15 starts as a semi-pro and prep pitcher. Often he struck out 20 and ranged up to 18 or 20 in a game.

At Pompton Lakes, N. J., Joe Louis said Tuesday he would like to crack a few ribs of the Chicago Maxim-Ezzard Charles heavyweight title fight.

The Brown Bomber, training for his June 13 fight with Lee Savold, expects to meet Charles in September if Ezzard wins. Louis, however, considers Maxim a strong underdog.

If Maxim wins, he must give Charles a return bout first.

President Dan Reeves of the Los Angeles Rams said Tuesday his professional football club is investigating the possibility of taking legal action against Winnipeg of the Western Canada Conference over the signing of the Ram's star tackle, Dick Huffman.

Similar action is being studied against Huffman himself, Reeves added. He pointed out, however, that the Bombers have received no official word from either Winnipeg or Huffman that the 250-pound, ex-Tennessee player has actually signed with the Canadians.

Reeves said the Rams, runner-up for the National Football League championship last year, held an option to retain their 1950 contract with Huffman and had exercised the option.

Ottawa Giants In Third Place Of Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

Red Hardy has joined the hyet again!

Last night the little righthanded ace of Ottawa Giants talled by an eyelash to record a no-hit victory over the second time this season as the Giants whipped Syracuse Chiefs 9-1.

Hardy was within one out of no-hit fame when rookie Vic Wertz shattered his dreams with a single through short. The Chiefs had scored in the second inning on a walk and error.

Hardy blanked Springfield 4-0 April 28 on one hit. Jack Wallace collected the lone safety, a single in the seventh. Hardy also has a two-hit shut-out among his four victories.

The Giants clubbed Jack Robinson and Buck Tanner for 10 hits with Hardy and Lorenzo Cabrera leading the way with two blows each. The victory enabled the Giants to tie the Chiefs for third place.

Montreal Royals retained their five game first-place margin over Rochester Red Wings. The Royals downed the springfield Cubs 6-2 while the Wings came from behind to nip Buffalo Bisons 10-8.

Tom Lasorda stopped the Cubs on six hits to post his fourth victory without a defeat. He lost his shutout in the ninth on an error, triple and single. Bobby Morgan, with a homer, double and single led Montreal's attack.

The Red Wings trailing 7-1 at one stage, scored five runs in the ninth inning to beat the Bisons. Kurt Krieger, fourth Red Wing hurler, won his own ball game with a three-run double in the big ninth.

Karl Drews, Baltimore righthander, also won his own game as the Orioles edged Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2. Drews belted a home run in the fifth inning to provide the Orioles with their margin of victory. Bill Glynn homered with one on in the second for the Orioles.

The Painters took the lead in the second frame and were never headed.

Howe and Hagerman used two singles and an error to count one run in the first inning and then were blanked through the sixth.

Ramsays used three singles, a double, two sacrifice bunts and an error to push over four runs in the second inning. A single by Glen Young, a double by Jack Whiting and a clean-up home run to tarf field by Vic Halsey added three more in the third. A walk, interference at the plate, two errors and two hits were worth 3 more tallies in the fourth as the Painters built up a 10-1 lead.

Howe and Hagerman scored two in the seventh and wound up with four in a belated rally in the 9th.

The Painters scored once in their end of the seventh and Claude Carr hammered his two runs in the eighth with a line drive home run to centrefield.

Fulham Tied By Montreal All-Star Team

Montreal, May 30 — (CP) — Goalie Stilla Sandrin turned in a spectacular performance as Montreal All Stars tied the Fulham English first division eleven 2-2 Tuesday night in an International soccer match before 4,500 at the Montreal baseball park.

The game was played on a wet field in intermittent rain.

The Montreal team took a 2-1 lead in the first half on goals by Bohden Klochnyk, right outside, and Johnny Sinclair, right inside.

Bedford Jezzard, centre forward, tallied Fulham's only goal of the half. Jimmy Bowie, right inside, scored the tying goal in the last half when Fulham had complete control of the play. Almost the identical one-half play was in the Montreal end.

Klochnyk booted his goal at the three-minute mark after taking a pass from Jack Moldahon. After 33 minutes Jezzard kicked a quarter shot that just crept under the crossbar.

Montreal's lineup up the Montreal All Stars was formed from seven local clubs.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 30 (AP)— Every time they have to turn on the lights in the middle of an afternoon ball game, there's a bit of discussion—sometimes a real rhubarb—about a club getting the "advantage" of better lighting. Besides, the lights don't make worth isn't a guy to protest about such things, but he's got to be equipped with some such device as Christopher Columbus' exposure meter to tell them just when the lights should be turned on. That's what Billy, "Of course I don't object any time they decide to turn on the lights. A man might get hurt there when its too dark."

WHY WE SAY

ETIQUETTE

Started by a gardener
A Scotch gardener was working on the estate of the Duke of Versailles for King Louis XIV began etiquette. He was annoyed by the many visitors who came to see the flowers, so he made up rules! (Qui Francais, Ecrivez!) Only those with the right phrase to walk. Thus, the right way of doing things became known as etiquette, or de-quette.

Wiarton Kind to Dogs

Wiarton, May 30 —(CP)— The town of Wiarton, 20 miles northwest of Owen Sound, has literally gone to the dogs.

Man's best friend won an informal election there, and now has the freedom of the town for the summer months.

The Wiarton Echo, the town's weekly newspaper, asked readers to indicate their views on a town by-law requiring dogs to be tied up during the summer months. The dogs won the election.

Monday night town council rescinded the by-law.

OUR TOWN

NIGHT OF COMBAT

My wife and I are stepping out this evening for a festive evening at one of the leading night clubs and I dread it.

It wouldn't be going at all if I had my way, I have a brand new shirt and I'd like nothing better than just to prop myself up in front of the open fire, kick off my shoes, open a bottle of ale and get a little of that quiet joy. George is the same way. He is the other husband in the case. He came right out with it and said he'd rather just stay home and read the funny papers. I'll say this for George, he has the manliness to admit it.

But the la[illegible] it tastes every once in awhile, they get to wonder if they're missing something. They get wistful and start throwing out little hints ("We haven't been out together for months") and pretty soon you feel the trap biting into your ankles.

Well, the beginning—the part where you're still in your own home and your right mind — is really quite pleasant.

You know how it is. Your wife goes into the bathroom and takes the curlers out of her hair and fusses around for an hour or so, humming tuneless little songs and doing heaven knows what. When she comes out she looks pretty darn wonderful, too, and you get a little excited. Not much, but a little.

Then you get dressed yourself. This takes about four minutes. You look pretty good, too. You look very good, matter fact. There's just nothing like a shave at night to bring out those clean chiselled features of yours.

After that the other couple comes by and you have one for the road. There's a smooth dance band on the radio. Lots of room for dancing. Plenty of ice available. If you could just stay right there you'd probably have a whale of a time.

But no, the Night Club is tooting its Pied Piper flute and like the Indians, you have your reservations. Everyone laughs gendarously at your little sally and you're off.

The Rat Race

If you wanted to analyze the thing, I suppose you could say that people go to night clubs to drink, dance, listen to popular music in colorful surroundings to dine. That would be a fair summary, wouldn't it?

The drinking you know about. The gay, sophisticated little old night club patron suddenly takes on the semblance of a yahoo from the Kentucky hills, pours rotting slugs while crouched furtively in the shelter of a table cloth, and salutes the grog with tepid ginger ale or lukewarm water, depending on his ability to catch a waiter's eye. I'd just as soon go climb into a box car and have a little canned heat as drink in a night club.

This ritual is performed on a section of floor presumably designed for a troupe of performing seals. Most dance floors are specially built to hold exactly one-tenth of the number of people who want to use them, but it is sometimes hard to decide if it's just a lively piece or if there really is a riot going on out there.

Under the swirling clouds of blue cigaret smoke, in the faint, dim light which night clubs affect in the interests of the customer's morals, a great congealed mass of humanity may be seen shuffling and pushing its way around a sort of corral in anti-clockwise migrations like a lot of lost souls trying to find escape into the daylight.

The art of dancing becomes merely a question of survival for one must be ever alert to avoid the elbow in the eye, head-on collisions at intersections and possibly fatal wounds from one of those night-blooming perennials who decides to "flit-and-flirt."

And the music! The music, by miracle of modern acoustics, consists wholly of a distant thumping of cannibal drums. This is a decided break, as anyone knows who has actually been within hearing range of a night club orchestra, I could make more music myself, with a comb and a piece of toilet paper.

For years I tried to figure out what this music sounded like and then one night, when I thought I was hard, it came to me. It sounded like an old victrola playing under water.

Now You Dine

The absolute height of the gracious living one encounters in a night club is the dinner, which brings us to the subject of chicken deep fried in embalming fluid.

It must be said to the credit of the waiters and waitresses that they are sensitive people who do their best to avoid meeting your eye when making delivery of this delicacy. If is usually found, lying there, after you've returned to your table from a number of sprints about the track.

I suspect that night club chefs all come from the same family and have the same secret recipes, like the Boole-Boole medicine men with the formula for shrinking human heads. Embalming fluid is merely my offhand guess. It may be one of a number of types of formaldehyde or astringent.

Whatever it is, the dreadful results of the chicken have a withered, puckered look and a taste that would scare off a hungry vulture. Reposing alongside this withered fowl is a soggy cold deck of "French fries" the size of railway ties.

The result of this prison camp repast, plus the burning taste of the alcohol in its most uncivilized form, the lungs gasping weakly from the effect of stale tobacco smoke, the leg muscles twitching from the human treadmill of the dance floor, produces a fortunate state of paralysis which permits the night club patron to survive even the shock of his check, which looks like an estimate for the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Gosh, I can hardly wait to get started.

HOBBY FAIR OPENED

Oshawa, May 30 — (CP) — The third annual hobby fair of Oshawa's Community Recreation Association was opened yesterday by Cecil F. Cannon, Deputy Minister of Education. Everything from ceramics to zoo lions is included in the fair.

Owen Sound Will Build Hospital If County Assists

Owen Sound, May 30—(CP)—If Grey county council agrees to assume its share of the cost of building an addition to the Owen Sound General and Marine Hospital, city council will approve the project without a vote of the ratepayers.

Mayor E. C. Sargent suggested this action at Monday's council meeting and the council agreed to it.

Ratepayers last Jan. 1 rejected a curtailed, million-dollar hospital expansion program by a narrow margin but at that time Grey county was not committed to assume a share of the cost of the project.

The hospital expansion program would cost $1,859,500 and would increase the hospital from 89 beds to 198 beds.

Government grants would total $759,500. Owen Sound's share would be $813,400 and Grey county's share $484,900. The remaining funds would be sought from Bruce county and other municipalities which use the hospital.

DO NOT HAVE TO RETURN

Washington, May 30 — (AP) — The United States Immigration Service said today it has no idea of forcing qualified Chinese students who have finished school work in the United States to return to unfriendly territory. A service official said the policy with respect to students who have been given internal security clearance is to provide permits for them to take jobs in the U. S. and so become self-sustaining.

Furious Attacks By Communists Halt UN Advances

Stiffest Fighting Takes Place on Western Sector

Other United Nations forces remained content of the 275-foot high Hwachon dam with comparative ease.

Step Through Mud

Across the 125-mile Korean front, allied forces slogged through the mud for slow gains or fought off sharp attacks.

Twelve red jets tried an attack on their own on U.S. B-29 Superfortrs. Eight F-86 Sabre jets cut in with the usual result — two Russian-type jets downed and one damaged. The B-29s, unharmed, went ahead with their bomb runs on a northwest Korea rail bridge.

The stiffest fighting swirled against American spearheads on the western and west-central fronts pointed at Chorwon, and around Iron Triangle on the east-central sector.

Chinese units pitched a fanatic counter-attack at dusk Wednesday against Americans in the hills around Yonchon, 12 miles southwest of Chorwon. The night-long battle the reds pushed the doughboys off the ridges and shoved them back 1,000 yards.

Regain Positions

At dawn Thursday the Americans leaped to the attack. By noon they had regained their positions on the road to Chorwon.

Front-line officers estimated at least two Chinese divisions stood between the Americans and the second threshold, 80 miles north of Seoul.

Yonchon itself, said AP correspondent John Randolph, is a no-man's land. American patrol by day, Chinese by night.

The Chinese started their first spring offensive prematurely April 22 to keep the allies away from Chorwon. At that time U.N. forces were four miles away.

Airlines Pilot Does Not Want Another Trip

New York, May 31—(AP)—In a single-engined plane, says to fly alone over the north pole Charles Blair, Jr., the first man the record trip was "awfully easy" but he doesn't want to do it again.

The 41-year-old airliner pilot flew across the top of the world Tuesday in his converted P-51 Mustang fighter plane, "The Flying Gas Tank." His 3,300-mile, non-stop flight from Bagdu, Norway, to Fairbanks, Alaska, took 10 hours and 27 minutes.

About eight hours later, Blair took off from Fairbanks and flew another 3,450 miles non-stop to New York, when he arrived after 8 hours and 31 minutes later at 4:40 EDT yesterday.

Blair, on vacation from his pilot's post with Pan-American World Airlines, said:

"It was awfully easy to fly across the top . . . I wouldn't want to do it again. Once is enough."

Blair mentioned no specific purpose of the polar flight, but admitted the United States Air Force is keenly interested in any operational experimental "dope" he picked up.

He told reporters he flew about 25,000 feet over the polar area and encountered temperatures as low as 25 degrees below zero.

He said his trim aircraft "performed beautifully" all the way, laden as it was with extra fuel tanks. His only trouble, he said, were a short radio blackout and a nosebleed.

Newsmen View New Construction For Hydro Power

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 31 — (CP) — Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission, Wednesday celebrated his 46th birthday by entertaining 50 newspaper men and women over the new 600,000-horsepower Hydro project under construction here.

Using spotlights for night work, construction gangs work around the clock on the service road.

The first step, the first contract was let for construction of the giant pressure tunnel under the city of Niagara Falls. Blasting has also begun on the canal into which the water will flow after the five-mile trip under ground through the tunnel.

When completed, the project, which will cost an estimated $157,000,000, will benefit Ontario with an additional 900,000 power to supply a city 1 1-2 times the size of Toronto.

US SEEKING WAYS TO UNDERMINE SOVIET STRENGTH

Trying to Approach Those Behind Curtain

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, May 31 (AP) — Although it is a hush-hush project, the United States is trying to develop new political weapons to strike directly at the sources of Russian power among peoples behind the iron curtain.

The latest assertion that this line of attack offers a way for the free world to seize the initiative in the conflict with communism—and holds the key to eventual victory without global war—comes from John Foster Dulles, Republican foreign policy adviser.

Dulles told a University of Arizona commencement audience at Tucson last night that "despotic societies, . seem hard and invulnerable, in reality, their inner life is corrupted by the excessive power of a few by fear and jealousy, and by the stifling of individual initiative and responsibility."

Dulles, one of State Secretary Dean Acheson's top advisers, said it may appear Russia's leaders have the capacity to carry on at present state of half-war indefinitely. Actually, he said, he is confident their ability to do so "could be greatly reduced" by skillfully applied pressures.

A somewhat similar view was expressed last week by President Truman in his foreign aid message to Congress.

Officials here are extremely reluctant to talk about measures which are being taken or may be taken to bring about disintegration of Soviet power of which Dulles spoke.

Dulles himself l. known to feel the free countries need a sort of counterpart of the international communist party—that is, some sort of political movement to work in their interest and promote their cause.

Whether such an agency might be created, or whether the same purpose could be achieved by closer organization of anti-communist forces in the free world and their underground affiliates apparently is still an open question.

Is Formosa Catch-Basin For U.S. Millions or Key To Defeat of Redism in Asia?

Editor's Note; An island one-third the size of Newfoundland is a big question mark in the Pacific. That island is Formosa and its leading citizen is Chiang Kai-Shek, one of the world's most controversial figures. His enemies say he leads a lost cause; his associates argue he's a good bet to drive communism from China.

By Frank H. King and Spencer Moosa

Taipeh, Formosa, May 31—(AP) —Formosa—is it just a catch-basin for American millions, or does it hold a key to the defeat of communism in Asia?

On this island while a fighting army of hundreds of thousands of men under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. They give the impression they are determined one day to return to their mainland home to battle their communists.

Whatever the answer to the riddle of Formosa, the less Generalissimo has refused to be written off in the war against world communism. In December, 1949, when Chiang fled to Formosa, the future of nationalist China seemed hopeless. But today few will dispute the possibility of a nationalist comeback.

What's important about this change in the fortunes of Chiang? A nationalist official put it this way: "Since the Red Sun-Tzung (the Chinese communist leader) have been our best allies."

The Korean war, President Truman's assignment of the United States 7th fleet to neutralize Formosa, the massive red intervention in Korea, and other international events have led to the uprising in nationalist prospects. Chiang's Formosan stronghold now seems on firmer footing than it ever has been.

The American-financed economic co-operation administration is spending $60,000,000 on Formosa in the current fiscal year. More is to go into military aid.

There is talk of a nationalist comeback with a big "if"—if it is conducted by a tight, honest efficient system of freeing a small part of the Chinese mainland from the communists and then, by the example of good government and freedom, spreading it through China.

The nationalists, from Chiang down, concede inefficiency and corruption were strong factors which caused their downfall on the mainland. They realize that only by being a lean, mean American aid will be coming in. Will it be used honestly and efficiently? That is the nationalist answer.

They hope to make Formosa a model province—and for the mainland if it is recovered. The cabinet has a planning board which speaks in terms of blueprints for future nationalist rule on the mainland.

The few Americans who have been here two years say Formosa still has a one-party (Chiang) regime. There is not more debate, discussions and political differences of opinion will be necessary. They say the recent municipal elections gave encouraging signs of development of this phase of government.

Prices Slashed by 36 Per Cent In Price War in N.Y. Stores

New York, May 31 (AP) — A wide-open price war flared with renewed vigor in big department stores here today.

Prices were slashed as much as 36 percent below those that existed Monday.

Macy's erected ropes to guide lines of customers to order-takers.

Mayors Request Social Service Burden be Lifted

Owen Sound, Ont., May 31 — (CP) — Mayor Hiram McCallum of Toronto, president of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves, today asked that the burden of providing social services be lifted from the municipalities' shoulders.

Delivering his presidential report to the opening of a three-day conference here, Mayor McCallum also called for a royal commission definition of municipal tax responsibilities. This, he said, would do away with the municipalities handling many taxes which could better be collected at the provincial or federal level.

"The costs of relief to municipalities never again should be a contributing factor in the financial instability of municipalities," he said. "Deficiencies in the social structure are the result of decisions that were stolen from his responsibility."

"After all," he said, "that would only be revealing our decisions to Canada."

Dr. Williamson left Africa last week to come here for the McGill University convocation, at which an honorary doctor of science degree was conferred upon him last Monday.

He said he wasn't sure when he would be returning to Africa, as "I've still got some business and a few old friends to meet."

SPECIAL HEALTH FOODS MAY BE SENT TO INDIA

Country Has Declined Two Offers of Wheat

Ottawa, May 31 (CP) — Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) told the government yesterday "time 's running out" for Canada when help to India's famine. He was advised in return that India has declined a second offer of Canadian low grade wheat, this time as an outright gift.

External Affairs Minister Pearson said the government now is examining the possibilities of sending special health foods and of diverting to India better-grade wheat earmarked for other countries.

No decisions have been reached, he said in the Commons, but both possibilities are under consideration. The minister also said the government would gladly help any private bodies desiring to send food or other supplies.

Mr. Graydon, seizing the lever of a government supply motion to raise the subject, said there is great anxiety in Western in Canada "as to whether we are missing a challenging opportunity" as a result of discussions with the Orient by failing to send relief to a country where millions might die of hunger.

Mr. Pearson, replying, recalled a first decline of Canada in an offer to send low-grade wheat as part of Canada's contribution under the Colombo Plan. A day or so ago, New Delhi declined a second offer, this time to make low grade wheat—the only kind now available without depriving regular customers—in exchange for deliveries—available free as a gift to be used in the famine areas without any connection with the Colombo Plan.

Not Good For Bread

In both cases, India's reply was that the wheat would rather wait and see if better-grade wheat becomes available this year when another crop is harvested. The low-grade wheat would not be suitable for the normal type of bread used in India, India, meanwhile, was counting on rice and other foods from "neighboring countries"to see her through.

The House of the discussion of the Indian situation to the two foreign affairs experts and debate on the government's policy to the bill to overhaul the post office act for the first time in years.

The big issue here revolved around charges of monopoly and alleged price fixing in opposition that patronage—rewards for loyalty" as a result of Liberal victories—is not dominant role in appointment of a lot of postmasters across the country.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) said he was "bitterly disappointed" that the new bill does not close "the patronage loophole." He said other opposition members said defeated Liberal candidates handle postal patronage in some ridings.

Diamond King Tells Reporters He Has No Time for Matrimony

Montreal, May 31 (CP) — Dr. John Williamson of Tanganyika, East Africa, may have a large share of the world's diamonds, but he says he would never have it to talk to him.

The former Montrealer who has called himself in his diamond empire of 3,000 natives, relented and granted a number of reporters an interview after he had been pursued for the last 48 hours.

He took the reporters by surprise. Instead of finding the diamond king a man surrounded by a diamond stick pin as big as a fist protruding from his tie, they found him a very wealthy man, embarrassed by the whole thing.

His manner was light as he answered numerous questions about his fabulous mining property which he said produced $1,750,000 worth of gems last year.

The 42-year-old geologist a native of Perth, Ont., in the Laurentian Mountains, left Montreal in 1934 to prospect for gold. He said then he never dreamed he'd be turned to diamonds.

After prospecting on his own, he discovered the Tanganyika property which jumped him into the millionaire category.

He seemed bored with city life and said that he found Montreal the boldest city—next to Calcutta—that he has ever been in.

"Tanganyika is my home now," he said.

At least it is for the next 10 years, that is the life of the mine, ing property expires. But there's little chance of his moving away a few years before that.

Company Official Digs First Sod For Huge Addition

50,000 Square Feet Will be Added to Production Space

Without any fanfare, Northern Electric started the wheels moving Wednesday which will, they hope, give them a new building and new production lines moving by October. The extension is the first step in the construction of the entire buildings, will add approximately 50,000 square feet to production space.

Actually, the firm has had expansion in mind for more than a year, but Fraser Fulton, manager of the local plant, said yesterday that the present plan was consolidated only one month ago. "It is a straight extension to plant facilities here," Mr. Fulton said.

Take 2 and3 ,

Mr. Fulton was unable to make a definite prediction as to the number of new employees the company would hire because of the expansion, but did say that there "would be a seasonable increase in staff." Also, exact costs of construction of the new plant are undetermined as yet.

Rush Construction

In order to get ahead with the construction, the contractor plans to work two days a week from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. and the other from 2 p.m. until dark. By that means much of the costs cannot be immediately determined, because overtime wages will boost them.

The building will be one-storey high, of brick and masonry construction, and will conform with the general lines set out by the existing plant. Chief reason for the expansion being laid out for Belleville was that the company "still likes the satisfactory quality of the labor we can get here."

In addition, Mr. Fulton said that the nature of the work to be carried on in the new plant is in line with present production. "It was natural"to the business that the expansion should be undertaken here," he said.

No Office Facilities

The addition will be attached to the west end of the present plant, and will contain no office facilities. The contractor will retain the firewall between the two in the construction.

"Various plans for expansion have been under consideration for more than a year," Mr. Fulton said, "and on May 1, this plan was consolidated.

"We're doing it under high pressure," he said.

Superintendent on the job for the Cape company is C. C. Gill, who at one time was stationed with the Royal Canadian Air Force at Trenton. With the Air Armament Squadron of the RCAF in 1940 at the Trenton station, he was stationed in the district for one year. He has not been back since that time. He had his own company until this time last year,

Funerals About Only Time Natives Of Marvial Valley in Haiti go Wild

London, May 31—(Reuters)—Natives of Marvial Valley in Haiti go wild when someone drops dead.

Funerals are about the only time young people can dance and make merry since that old black magic no longer is allowed to cast its spell.

A United Nations report released here by Haiti's government deplores the monotony of life following a government ban on voodoo, once almost a religion for them.

Now all the peasants can do is talk about magic, witchcraft and evil spirits. And they say hard times have come because the old gods are not worshipped any more.

Churches have clamped down on frigid discipline forbidding natives to smoke, dance, sing, drink or gamble. Young people are forced to enjoy their traditional dances only when there is a death in the village.

Demonic possession used to be a national pastime. Now it is believed voodoo gods enter body and pass on their characteristics.

Because there is nothing else to do and modern forms of education and fun are slow to make their way into the peasants in this Caribbean wildness still carry on lesser kinds of black magic in secret.

And because voodoo is officially frowned upon, a great amount of money is spent on the funeral stricken, eroded valley.

The United Nations report says: "A large number of peasants say openly that the droughts and poverty that afflict the country have come to punish them for neglecting the old gods."

With the suppression of voodoo and the end of devil-defying ceremonial, the report says, the "principal traditional method of dealing with all these powers of evil is breaking down."

"Some of the methods used by both Catholic and protestant churches to fight such notions may tend to perpetuate them in changed forms rather than to destroy them," the report concluded.

Infected Teeth Not to Blame View Expressed

Chicago, May 31 — (AP) — You're probably wrong if you blame infected teeth for your aches and pains.

That view was expressed today in an exhaustive study prepared by a University of Michigan dental and medical scientists for the American Dental Association.

The report said there is little, if any, scientific evidence to support the theory that removal of infected teeth will relieve arthritis, rheumatic heart disease, and kidney, eye or skin disorders.

The A.D.A. Journal devoted its entire issue to the report.

Hire Local Labor

Most of the labor on the construction job will be hired locally. "We hope to hire all the building trades locally," Mr. Gill said, "and as much as possible."

The rains came and washed out a seven-run Nanoose rally in the top of the sixth inning last evening to give Estawa a 6-6 tie in a COBL game played at Estawa.

Estawa came from behind to knot the count at six in the fifth and then with two away in the top of the 6th, with seven runs in for Nanoose, it rained so hard the game was called off.

Eighteen enumerators will commence making their rounds in the city tomorrow to start their job of enrolling some and compiling other information for the Federal Government. The date June 1 is the commencement of census-taking across Canada.

Belleville Girl Has Been Chosen Valedictorian

Jeanne Valleau, 16, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Valleau, live at 45 College Street, has been a patient in the sanatorium for the past 18 months.

During that time, she has completed her upper school, taking seven subjects. She had taken her middle course in Belleville before going to the sanatorium.

Miss Valleau is now ready for discharge, and is very pleased that this morning that she would be staying in Hamilton until the end of June in order to complete two extra courses in typing and shorthand before the time of being the best all-round student at the sanatorium school goes a prize.

Mrs. Valleau said that her daughter was originally scheduled to be in the sanatorium for five years of treatment, but the development and use of new drugs has greatly hastened her release time. That was the first good news, and the examination results are the second. "We're pretty proud of her," Mrs. Valleau said.

Students at the school are given instruction from teachers regularly engaged for the purpose, many of them while still in bed. They write the same Departmental Educational examinations as do students in provincial high schools.

High School Area Proposal Shelved for Another Year Decision of County Council

The proposed Bay of Quinte District High School Area which would join the city of Belleville and several of the surrounding townships for high school purposes, will not come into being for at least another year.

This was made definite Wednesday afternoon at county council when members passed a motion that no action be taken at this time to dissolve the present South Hastings High School district.

Reeve Fred Mitchell of Thurlow township, in presenting the motion said that council had had no previous knowledge of this matter and felt that it would not be advisable to take any action this year.

The council at its meeting Monday afternoon voted approval of the proposed Bay of Quinte district area and it remained but for county council to also give its sanction before the plan could come into being. The necessary by-laws have to be passed by the new organization of the area would have to wait for another year.

If the area had been formed it would have joined Belleville and the townships of Tyendinaga and Thurlow as well as part of Ameliasburg for high school purposes. Sidney had voted previously not to enter the area and this automatically excluded Frankford, although pupils from that village are now attending high school at Belleville.

There was now discussion regarding Mr. Mitchell's motion to take no action this year and there were no dissenting votes.

Equalized Assessment Remains Same as Last Year

Due to the fact that the re-assessment of township under the county assessor plan has not yet been completed there will be no change in the equalized assessment for municipalities in the county for 1952.

This was decided in county council this morning following recommendation from the equalization committee that the equalized assessment remain as it was for this year.

Reeve T. G. Graham of Tweed, acting as chairman of the committee, noted that it was not feasible to change the equalized assessment until the re-assessment of all townships and municipalities was completed.

"The committee is rather disappointed that the re-assessment will take so long, but as outlined by our assessor yesterday, it is a big job," he said.

He expressed the opinion that the results of recent development in county towns and in the three front townships, assessments of these municipalities would undoubtedly receive a considerable boost.

On the other hand two of the front three townships had lost assessment to the city through annexation. In the case of Thurlow township $225,000 in assessment was lost to Belleville through annexation.

Following is the equalized assessment for the various county municipalities:

Sidney	$2,839,600
Thurlow	3,654,800
Tyendinaga	1,648,000
Rawdon	1,935,300

Money Spent on Publicity Well Repaid Says Chairman

Money spent in publicizing the county of Hastings has been well repaid in the number of tourists who have visited the county, was the opinion expressed of Reeve Ross Neal of Deseronto, to the Thursday morning session of county council.

Reeve Neal's report as chairman of the publicity committee, Mr. Neal said that the main activity of his committee thus far this year had been the operation of a booth at the Canadian Sports Show.

Approximately 10,000 booklets "The Highlands of Hastings", had been distributed at the show and while it was difficult to accurately assess the results already a large number of inquiries had been received by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce which were co-incident to the Cleveland Sports Show.

He said he had many compliments from tourists with respect to accommodation and things found in Hastings and very few complaints.

In reference to this, however, he advised that resort owners could be their own publicity agents by taking care that the best accommodation possible was provided tourists and in seeing there was no over-charging.

In addition to the booklets distributed at the Cleveland show, the booklets had been made available at border crossing points and at tourist centres. "Publicity with respect to Hastings was continually going out from the Belleville Chamber of Commerce," he said.

Taximan Freed On Careless Driving Charge

Evidence that provincial police are still cracking down on speeding motorists was produced in county magistrate's court this morning when 17 charges of breaking the speed law graced the charge sheet. Many of the accused were not dealt with in court, having paid their fines prior to the session.

William A. Clare, taxi driver, was acquitted on a careless driving charge, when Magistrate T. Y. Wills said that the Crown had not established "beyond a reasonable doubt" that Clare had contravened the law.

Called as a witness for the Crown, Provincial Constable William Miller said that he had seen Clare's car in the north ditch of the Marshall Road on April 27, with its front bumper against a telephone pole. Clare's two passengers, Miss Elizabeth Johnston, and Miss Grace Price, both of Toronto, suffered no injuries.

Counsel Objects

During the course of the constable's testimony, defence counsel R. A. Pringle objected to his conclusion now being drawn by the witness, and when he asked to see Constable Miller's notebook, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan objected. Then the constable objected.

"I'm not sure that defence counsel has the right to read the constable's notebook," Mr. Donnan said.

"I most certainly have," Mr. Pringle replied.

"You don't have it because I gave the book to you," Constable Miller said. "I'd like it back."

"You'll only get it back when I'm ready to give it to you, and not before," Mr. Pringle said.

In defence of his actions, Clare said that he had felt his wheel go into the soft shoulder, and in an attempt to pull himself out of the ditch, had accelerated his speed. Instead, he just went farther into the ditch.

Magistrate Wills said that it appeared that Clare had been guilty of an error in judgment, but nothing else. He dismissed the charge.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 31 (CP) —Prices rolled upward in quiet trading as the session progressed on the stock market today.

Industrials chalked up advances ranging to more than $2. Papers, steels, agriculture, constructions, foods, refining oils, liquors and manufacturing companies showed a majority of advances. Retail stores, banks and textiles weakened. Despite a handful of good increases trading in the section was dull.

Calgary and Edmonton held the spotlight in western oils with a 1 3-8 jump.

Hudson Bay stood out in base metals with a $2.25 jump. Noranda was up $1.25, Consolidated Smelters $1.50, and the rest of the group netted fractions. Key issues ahead included East Sullivan, Cochenour-Willans, Normetal, Quemont and Waite Amulet.

Golds had little trend. Both senior producers and secondary golds showed gains and losses about balanced. Base metals were limited to small amount; and many issues were unchanged.

New County Home Will Not Be Ready Until September Council Told After Inspection

The new Hastings county old people's home will not be ready for occupancy until some time after September 1st, it was stated Wednesday afternoon at the Spring session of county council, by Reeve Lee Grills, Sidney township, chairman of the county home committee.

Following an inspection of the new home by members of council yesterday morning, Reeve Grills said it was his personal opinion the building would not be ready to move in until the above date.

"The contractor has set a schedule for completion by August 15th," he said, "but it is my own personal opinion that the building will not be ready until September. There is still a lot of work to do such as painting and other finish work and I think the whole three months will be needed."

Suggests New Name

The committee chairman noted there were roughly 100 men now working on the project at various jobs and extended an invitation to council members to visit the new building.

At the same time Mr. Grills asked what the new home was going to be called. He suggested that the name 'old people's home' may not be altogether appropriate. He asked that this matter be considered.

In his interim report of the Hastings County Home for the Aged, Reeve Lee Grills stated that the board had found it necessary to meet quite frequently due to changes in the job and for purchasing of furnishings and equipment for the new home.

Some Equipment Delivered

Beds and mattress had been purchased last year and have been delivered while this year tenders had been called for other equipment such as tables, chairs, office furniture, kitchen chairs and some hospital equipment. This equipment, except the latter has been purchased for delivery when needed.

Considerable time was now being given to roads and parking area in connection with the new home. The committee was attempting to alter the type of roadway where heavy traffic was not anticipated and thus cut down costs. Mr. Grills reported that in the opinion of the committee the workmanship and materials used in the construction of the new home was of the best and the county would be proud of the new home when it was finally completed.

Reeve Charles Buskard of Deseronto reminded council members that the 1952 convention of the Ontario county home boards was to be held in Belleville and stressed that preparations for the event could not commence too soon.

"What with registrations and other details to attend to I suggest that a committee be appointed to look after the matter," he said.

Plan Special Program

Reeve Grills noted that representatives of county home boards from all over the province would be in the city for the convention which would last several days. During that time the visitors would be taken on a tour of the city and other interesting points and a banquet would be tendered them.

Warden Harry Coulter congratulated delegates from this county who in 1949 had extended the invitation for the 1952 convention to be held in Belleville. The original invitation had been to hold this year's convention in the city but the new home would not have been completed and the date for the following year was then extended.

The committee appointed by Warden Coulter to look after arrangements for next year's convention included Chairman Lee Grills; former chairman Charles Buskard, Jack Kincaid of Madoc and the Warden.

Amendment Carries

Motivated by a resolution from Kent county council calling for a plebiscite with respect to whether daylight saving time was desirable, council approved of an amendment asking for the vote at the next general election. The amendment carried 16-13. There was a previous motion to take no action on the resolution.

A considerable discussion was heard on the matter during the morning session as members with opposite views on the subject expressed their opinion.

Following the afternoon vote one of the northern reeves summed the whole matter up by saying that "the only confusing part of the whole matter is that we don't know what we are voting for or."

Peter Higgins, assistant chief engineer with the Ontario Highways Department, addressed the session on recent changes with respect to the distribution of county road funds between rural and urban municipalities. He said the legislation was intended for more equitable distribution of these monies.

Two Requirements

The new regulations did two things, he said. First they required the county to enter into agreements with each urban municipality with respect to county road extension, and secondly, they required the county to make contributions toward the improvement of county road connecting links through urban municipalities, the contribution to be not less than 22 per cent of the estimated road levy paid by the urban municipality. The exception to this rule would be if less than the 25 per cent was actually spent.

Reeves with their own particular problems in mind fired several questions at the engineer, one of them being from Reeve of Bancroft who pointed out his village had no county road anywhere near it. Mr. Higgins noted that this placed Bancroft in an unfavorable position and the village should be entitled to consideration by the council.

A connecting link of a county road through an urban municipality was termed as being a link in a chain. If there was no connecting link so designated the existing link would be assumed to be the logical route connecting county roads.

Quite Generously Treated

"In our village the provincial highway is the connecting link. What happens in a case like this?" asked Harold Wells reeve of Stirling.

"I would say that Stirling is quite generously treated," was the reply to the accompaniment of laughter from other council members.

"But that is not the point," returned Reeve Wells, "I was merely asking for information."

Ross Neal, Deseronto, noted that instead of connecting links of county road, his town had "disconnecting" links. He wanted to know what could be done about having a connecting link designated. He was told his town could enter into an agreement with the county.

C.A.S. Work Explained

Mr. William Lockyer, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, and J. Fred Wilson, C.A.S. treasurer, addressed council regarding their organization.

Mr. Lockyer noted that the C.A.S. this year would spend roughly $22,000 of the county's money. The C.A.S. was expanding and consequently was spending more money.

Increased emphasis was being placed on preventive work, according to Mr. Lockyer. This was illustrated by the fact that although 39 children were made wards of the county last year, only six children were taken out of homes. The other 33 children had been born out of wedlock.

"Keeping a child from a home is the last thing to do," continued the speaker, "it is usually better economically is sound business."

92 New Cases

Ninety-two new cases, 37 of them from the county, had been brought to the attention of the C.A.S. last year. With but 33 children taken to wards, this illustrated the amount of preventive work being done by the organization.

President Fred Wilson stated that his organization appreciated the financial support of the county. The per diem rate of $1 per day took care of boarding costs, but preventive work was paid for by grants and donations, he said. One of the organization's greatest contributions was in this field.

No action was taken on a recommendation from the Reeve of Bancroft for an assistance grant of $300 for his village. The matter was deferred when it was pointed out by county treasurer Ross Bailey that the county could receive a 50 per cent subsidy on the grant if it was handled in a different manner.

Ask Compulsory Deduction

Council concurred in a resolution from Sidney Sinclair asking that it be made compulsory for hospitals to deduct 75 cents per day from the wages of old age pensioner patients. Some hospitals are now co-operative in the matter, but others are not, it was noted by county clerk Erle R. Dempsey. The resolution, if carried out, would make the deduction compulsory.

Concurrence was also given second resolution from the same county calling for the provincial government to assume 50 percent of the cost of Children's Aid Society work, and also calling for government maintenance grants to hospitals.

No action was taken on a resolution from Perth county calling on the government to institute some kind of insurance so that hospital costs would not prove a burden for the average person.

"The more social securities provided by the government, the better we will have to dip down and help pay for them," pointed out Reeve William Davis, as the motion was ordered filed.

No Action Taken

Neither was any action taken on another resolution from Perth county asking that county clerks cast lots in case of elections, this vote to be sealed and opened only when a recount was necessary. This would save embarrassment for the clerk it was felt.

Still another resolution called upon the government to allow grants on the purchase price of school sites, the same as for school buildings, was concurred in.

The county financial committee report was read by Chairman Harold Wells of Stirling. He listed the recreational work done in offices at the county court building this year, but pointed out that eaves-troughing was still badly needed for the court building. Reeve Lynch, also noted that painting of the building was also needed and if one was done the other should be done at the same time.

Reeve Davis wanted to know if copper troughing had been considered. He said this type of troughing would last three times as long. No action was taken on the matter.

MAY DELAY OPENING

Hamilton, May 31 — (CP) —A shortage of nurses may delay the opening of a new wing at the Hamilton General Hospital, Dr. J. E. B. Eagar, assistant superintendent, reported yesterday. The hospital Board of Governors will consider a plan to reduce the training course for nurses from 3 to two years to alleviate the shortage.

ISLAND DISAPPEARS

London, May 31 — (Reuters) — Britain's disappearing island has vanished again, a Colonial Office report said last night. The report said Falcon Island — one of the Tonga group — periodically submerges beneath the Pacific, then reappears again. It has pulled this trick out three times since it was discovered in 1877. Now it has gone again. It was last seen in 1949.

THE LAUGHTER IS SILENT

Argentinians must be laughing up their sleeves these days for it seems that their great dictator, Juan Peron, has been duped. And that is the only way that the people of Argentina can laugh . . . quietly, unobtrusively, so that no Peronista will hear. . . .

A few weeks ago, Senor Peron announced to the world that he had a scientist in his employ, one Dr. Ronald Richter, had discovered a new method of releasing atomic energy. Besides being an altogether new process, the discovery provided cheaper production and release of the energy, and Peron insisted that the role of atoms in wartime would be advanced in great strides.

Accordingly, Dr. Richter was praised by Peron. He was awarded the Peronist Medal of Merit, and placed on a pedestal as high as Peron himself. Flushed with the success of suppressing La Prensa, forecast that Argentina would now become a true world power, and that her advice would be sought by all nations. Truly, the sun was shining brightly in Argentina.

Alas, the bliss was shortlived. While American and other scientists discredited the account from the first, the Irish Peron insisted on its validity. Perhaps he knew that he had made a faux pas in awarding the medal, so he was determined that his dignity should not be spaired by a lying scientist. And so, in the face of scoffers no knew that the claim was false, he maintained the stat

He maintained it until recently, when a newspaper in o de Janeiro, still free because Peron's powers fortunately not extend into Brazil, told the shameful story. Dr. Richter was a quack and a liar. His life was inspired by a dream of having that Medal of Merit, and he was determined to have it, by hook or by crook. He got it by crook, making his claims to the atomic discovery, and Senor Peron was left holding the bag.

The antidote, the episode may seem of small stature. It inside the Argentine, the ridicule must be hard for an Evita Peron to take. There is nothing that will determine harsh rule like ridicule. Peron has muffled the press of his country, and he has suppressed some of subjects. But he will never destroy the sense of humor, d though free speech be curbed to a certain extent, he not still the chuckling lips of all his peons.

GRIM ADVICE

Probably the most poignant advice that can be given young men who contemplate a life of crime has been given by a youth who has died on a Canadian gallows. fore he was put to death, the 23-year-old British Columbian wrote a letter that should be taken to heart by every ly crimester in Canada.

This youngster's life hung because he slew two market ndeers in the course of robbing them. He paid an sensive debt to society, a debt that he started to owe hen he was just a child. He states that his career got tarted when he quit the Boy Scouts. After that, it became easier to steal. Finally, he used violence with his ft, and came to the end of the trail.

We have heard much in these past few years of ueille and adult delinquents. We have read accounts of ng fights and gang wars. Parents have been accused letting their children run wild, with the result that irts have been filled with them. Some are saved by urch and school guidance where parental advice has ailed, but most are diverted from crime by courts of justice. It is hardly the fault of the courts; they cannot, a day when many young men are appearing before them, expected to right in a few minutes or hours the wrongs t have been done a young mind and body by years of glect.

What a pity that a grim warning must be handed out a man hardly past his voting age. In his letter, he told e people that if they were going to play, they must pay it. They could not expect to go on breaking man's and d's laws with impunity, and the pursuit of such a career l lead to only one of two spots in the final analysis . . . ther dead, "Never be found around with guns knives," he said. "It never pays to be a tough guy." If every parent in this world could impress that message on every child who started to wander, many miseries ld be avoided.

THE 38th PARALLEL

The eternal problem of whether or not to cross the th parallel is receiving less attention in the latest United tions drive in Korea. Since MacArthur's removal from ce, more emphasis has been put on the Senate hearings the United States than on the actual war in Korea.

And this time, as before, the allied troops are going ad with their offensive, taking thousands of prisoners, d ramming deep into North Korea. In many sectors, the mmunists are in headlong flight. Where it will stop d how far the United Nations forces will pursue them, one seems to know.

THE THIRD PUTT

an Woodrow Wilson missed a putt,

Tut!"

an missing putts, exclaim:
"Oh, dear! Oh, dear!"
n commonly vulgar player,
though,
words no gentleman should en two putts quite enough should be not saddened, taking three.

n and like the ball to stop

Two feet from where I'd have it drop,
I've found when three I'm forced to take,
The third putt hardest is to make.

I am disturbed by missing putts,
But still I utter no "tut-tuts."
From me my comrades never hear
The golfing person's wail: "Oh, dear!"
I merely hang my head in shame,
But what I think I don't proclaim.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE DOOR

Not long ago I sat in the house of a friend and asked him casually, "What's behind that door over there? I've never seen you open it."

"I don't know," he replied. "I never have opened it. Some people have said their wife was a great treasure behind it. Others have warned me of a harsh, unpleasant experience if I try to look through it. And a few have insisted that there is real joy to be found behind it at all but an empty useless space. I've lived here for more than thirty years without opening it, and I don't suppose that I ever will."

This man was not, by normal standards, crazy. For the door about which I asked him was not an ordinary door, but the door in the Book that leads to religion. The answer he gave was the same answer that many people would have to give, if they were asked about their religion, for they have never really looked into it.

We would laugh at a man who lived beside a large, very beautiful lake but who had never been in it. We ought not to laugh at but to pity those who have never tried life's greatest source of spiritual power, of love and understanding, of happiness, joy and peace.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Whatever else may be wrong with the world, the packsack brand fences have gone. In the newest residential, there are no fences at all, not even little picket fences to keep the Scotch terrier could jump. It is hard to convey to the younger generation an idea of what the packsack fence was like only as little a while ago as the childhood of people who are now fifty.

Down in the olden and slightly derelict sections of our cities, you can still see the six-foot board fences that inevitably went with the back yards a generation ago. It is a gruesome sight to glance out a back window, in one of those residential blocks, and behold the whole block divided grimly by ugly, weathered fences into private and malancholy cells.

Yet that was the prompt and normal thing, fifty years ago. A man who builds a fence today would be considered queer.

There are two ways of looking upon this great change in our domestic behavior. The increasing cost of lumber has without question had something to do with it. In the days of the high board fences, the country was full of cheap pine. Today it would cost a pretty penny to put up such walls.

But there has been another important factor in the change. In the high board fence days, people had no place to go but home. There were no cars, no movies. A man's yard was his recreation centre. He could make himself a private garden, or he could play croquet or saw wood. People are able to escape their neighbors today with the greatest of ease—even by sitting indoors with radio or television. In the high board fence days, privacy in the yard had to have at least that much escape.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

SHINING WORDS

One of the city's high schools asked me to talk to the boys in their essay contest and I spent most of last night going through the entries, looking for clues to reflections on writing generally.

The winner wasn't hard to find. His little brother, Jimmy, is half, a single rose in the vegetable garden.

Writers are born, not made. In that respect it is very much like singing. You can take an ordinary voice— Margaret Truman's let's say and train it, cultivate it, discipline it. It is always an ordinary voice. Similarly, no amount of technique or trickery will make a writer if he lacks the gift.

There is, of course, a great deal of very bad writing that brings money and even some sort of transient fame. Few people can qualify as judges of writing, just as few can qualify as judges of figure skating. And, so, many writers succeed with what is really only a kind of elegance or, more frequently, simply vitality.

It had a terrific vitality example of this not so long ago. An aged gentleman, rubbing up against 85, bring you a manuscript. He had just sent me a bulky manuscript. His life story. He'd had no formal education, but he was interested in "writing" and wanted me to thanks for his efforts.

It was wonderful red meat. Carving it up would have been like having a butter knife tackle up the canvases of Grandmaw Moses. The old man had a story to tell, a long, long one at that, and a sharp eye for a scene and he told his story naturally, which is the one thing in a million of good writing. (Or good anything, for that matter.)

It was the same with the boy whose essay will win the contest. He's only 12, but he has a story yarn about a mountain climb with his dad. I don't think there was a word in it that was not perfectly aptly and easily to him. Indeed, if he turns to writing as a profession, this may be the best thing he'll ever do.

Without Fear

It may be too much to hope, but this essay contest suggests that maybe there's a new approach to writing in schools.

Most people in the writing business get it in the form that they learned at school. In my day there seemed to be a rather nasty conspiracy to make writing seem as difficult and unattractive as possible.

Words were something that might explode in your face, instead of magic little jewels on a necklace. Grammar was a wild and frightening tangle in which you were to pick your way carefully or get sucked under. The teacher invited you to walk a delicate wire over a pit of alligators, loaded down with a hundred balancing poles.

It shouldn't be that way. Writing is an exciting thing, full of joy and discoveries, not merely prepositions and split infinitives whatever the heck they are. I know of no better way to develop and test your own ideas of your own philosophy than to put them down in ink.

The teacher's approach, it seems to me, should be this: "Writing is one way, perhaps the best way, of expressing what's in you. Forget about the rules. They're worth knowing, but they shouldn't stand in your way as hurdles. You've got a clear track, it's as easy as walking and you'll be a better person for it."

Nobody ever said that to me and it will surprise me if it's being said to the new generation.

Writers, themselves, probably in self-defence, tend to make a great mystery and cult out of their gifts. Some of the most gigantic hoaxes in the trade band together in "literature groups" and assemble a private jargon that adds up to precisely nothing.

All this is beside the point. It's just a refinement of drawing pictures on clay walls. The old gentleman who brought me his life story in school, "writing by ear," came a good deal closer to the heart of the matter than many who write by instrument.

Words At Work

Writing for joy, or for the need to find self-expression, is a happy sort of thing to do and to watch. Like singing in the bath tub, it may come effortlessly and sound awful, but better than it really is.

Writing for a living has its rewards too. It is also hard work, as singing on the concert stage is hard work. But it's the sort of work that many of the best writers, or our times, has suggested that it is the hardest work in the world, in other words. In almost any sentence, certainly in any descriptive passage, you confront choice of words. Only one is the word that will get the idea ringing. Where the word "well" for example, comes about half the story and the word "fragrant" about all the rest of the story.

For this reason, no worthwhile writing is done without pain and without sweat in the brain. The man who prides himself on being a swift writer is never more than a surface skimmer. He is simply [illegible] writer I admire whose easy, polished style wasn't a product of agony.

I sometimes wonder how I ever got into the craft, considering my meagre equipment and the fact that I'm not a natural writer. But I never stop enjoying it and there is always hope that some day I will find words that are as natural as this school boy.

Project of U.N. Permanent Army Gains Momentum

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Exponents of peace will get encouragement from the indications that the proposal to create a permanent United Nations Army for global emergencies is receiving favorable attention.

This plan, which was put forward by the United States last year, has been brought up by the U. N. General Assembly after Russia had vetoed the proposal in the Security Council that the powers operate in the Assembly.

The idea back of this proposal was that the existence of such an army might deter communism from forcing its way through force, and that if the reds did continue aggressive tactics they would have a better defence ready.

Subject to approval of the project, there has been no further move to complete such an army. Warren R. Austin, chief U. S. delegate to the U. N., has announced that Washington will reveal the nature of its contribution to this United Nations global emergency force. With this lead, other countries may be expected to announce their own intentions.

The creation of such a U. N. army may well provide the best hope to succeed for the peace organization.

The idea of creating a U. N. army after an aggression has got under way — ras its obvious drawbacks. Under such a procedure some of the aggressor's neighbors which contribute troops to a U. N. army are bound to be put in a position where they are engaged in combat with a country impelled by powerful motives.

Contribution to a U. N. "standing army" far in advance of any such emergency would be the surest way of keeping the peace.

Personal Health Talks

THE PROBLEM OF SNORING

I know of no instance in which snoring was the cause of divorce, but a good many readers have told me that they contemplated seeking divorce if the snoring could not be stopped.

Dr. Louis Londin physician comes up with a unique suggestion, which forestalled the break-up of a marriage.

A recently married man came to the doctor complaining that he was afraid his marriage would fail because his snoring kept his wife awake so much that they had been forced to occupy separate cabins on their honeymoon.

Examination revealed no evidence of obstruction or disease in nose or throat. Lying on one side and wearing a gadget attached to the back of his pyjamas to keep him off his back failed to stop the snoring. Keeping the mouth closed by means of adhesive drawing the lips together failed to stop the snoring. Then the doctor remembered the statement that frequently occurs during general anesthesia when too much is allowed to drop, a tractor that is relieved immediately by hyperextension of the head (bending backward) they became well separated.

The doctor fitted the patient with a Thomas collar, a thick cotton padded collar sometimes used to support the spine where neck vertebrae are fractured or diseased. This was to hold the chin well up and keep the neck extended. It buckled on at the back.

It did the trick. Next day he reported it had been the first night his wife had been able to sleep. Subsequently the patient discarded the collar and merely slept on his back with a small cushion or pillow roll under the nape of the neck.

The couple lived happily ever after, and, I hope, voted the straight insert your own party ticket—who the heck can tell the difference anyway?

In case anybody gets the idea of putting this cushion or pillow on the market I shall refuse to permit use of my name. This is all I have to say about it. Help yourself—provided the publisher consents.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LOVE THE THING YOU DO

That which is the expression of our inner self is what moves us to make something out of life that is significant. Putting love into our daily work is what gives something of permanence to it, no matter how apparently unimportant it may seem to us.

Love the thing you do and you will make it beautiful, no matter what things. There will be an increasing interest, as well, to all you do. And you will feel the response of people about it. Love, in itself, is contagious. It has power to make us put it, it spreads and enriches everything it touches.

I know people who tell me they hate their work, and it is not difficult to understand why such people become critical, complaining, and most unhappy. It isn't what you do that counts most but how you do it. That workman who sings or whistles at his work is merely expressing the love in his heart, outwardly transformed.

Every one of us is happiest and most contented when we feel we are doing the one thing that calls us the greatest personal satisfaction, and which makes us most useful as a member of society. We are debtors in many ways to a multitude of other people, through the books some have written, or through the music many have composed, or merely because of the fine example they have set before us as public servants or historic characters.

We are influenced more than we ever realize by the acts and achievements of others. Fred W. H. Hudson, John Muir, John Burroughs, and Fabre, because each wrote a great story, gave their love into all his writings because he found love in all the earth, in animals, birds, mountains, insects, and indeed in everything! That's why millions delight to read their fascinating books year in and out—and always will.

Love the thing you do and people will love you. It works that way! Happy people attract happy people. Robert Henri, the American painter so loved his fellow men that people came from from what he said so enthusiastically, and had them published. I often read it to lift by own spirit. It's called "The Art Spirit."

Ferrying Planes in Peacetime, No. 6 R.D. Flight Busy as in War

Trenton (Special) — Ferry Flight of No. 6 Repair Depot R.C.A.F. is not on a wartime footing but it couldn't be much busier if it was.

Several months ago, the flight's biggest peacetime job was undertaken and three weeks ago, and tens of thousands of air miles later, the last of 100 Mustangs droned up to a stop on the tarmac here. This movement of high speed fighting ships bought outright from the U.S. government is the story of a successful ferry in mission unparalleled by the R.C.A.F. since the war came to an end.

In fact, however, it was just another accomplishment of Ferry Flight and a credit to an able commander, his competent pilots and hard working ground crews.

For the Commander, Squadron Leader C. C. McCarthy, D.S.O., D.F.C. and Bar, Ferry Flight presented few obstacles he hadn't had to cope with at other times during his brilliant career.

An American from St. James, Long Island, New York, "Joe" as he is called by fellow officers and civilian friends, came up to Canada in 1941 and joined the R.C.A.F. He proceeded overseas in due time and went on loan to an R.A.F. dam-buster squadron, taking part in such intrepid strikes as the surprise attack and crippling of Hitler's battleship Tirpitz, and as a pilot of one of Britain's prize Lancaster bombers, Squadron Leader McCarthy smashed at canals and dams and was among those who generally disrupted Nazi supply routes and communications on the continent.

So after hostilities were over, and the right man was needed to head the ferrying operations of Ferry Flight at the No. 6 Repair Depot, Squadron Leader McCarthy, who chose to make the Royal Canadian Air Force a career, was appointed on past performance.

You can't get Squadron Leader Joe, however, to talk much about himself. He maintains that the good record of Ferry Flight has been established by men like Flt. Lieut. A. A. Proctor (Winnipeg), 2nd in Command and Flt. Sergt. Alex Milne, another Winnipeg man, the NCO in charge of maintenance and ground crews. And the Squadron Leader looks fondly upon his permanent pilots and say others he is called upon to borrow from the other stations from operations to operation.

Then when the next big ferrying job came up, the Squadron Leader with his Ferry Flight was prepared and capable of bringing back 100 American built Texas (T-6) trainers on loan from the U[illegible] Government until Harvards could be produced here to meet demand.

Qualified experience gathered from the mass Mustang movement proved invaluable as flyers moved aircraft from bases deep down on the Gulf of Mexico and through the mountain passes from west coast depots.

Every known change in weather over short periods of time had been contended with. Ground crews had learned the knack of servicing planes that left California in 90 and 100 degrees of heat and landed in Canada only a few hours later in sub-zero temperatures.

They found that the grade of oil used in aircraft in the north during the winter worked well enough in desert heat and therefore eliminated the drawn out task of setting up special units at lubricant changing points along the 2,500 mile route.

Down on the Gulf, next to the beautiful blue waters of the Caribbean Sea, the ground crews ran into another headache. Painters that had been in mothballs had to be cleaned completely and their metal parts scraped and freed of corrosion collected from a salt air reaction.

Because the Flight was mainly interested in getting the aircraft back and delivering them all in one piece, servicing and re-fueling stop-offs were located at comparatively short intervals. Drop tanks were not employed since a hard bump on landing might lead to loss of aircraft.

The big Dakotas transporting the pilots and ground crews into the United States resembled flying quarter-master stores, for they carried both winter and summer garments to outfit the entire complement for two complete changes.

The Dakotas in this particular scheme are known as mother ships. Their work comprises hovering behind groups under move, picking up slow ones and constantly keeping a look out for anything unusual happening to any craft in the flight.

The group numbering as many as 10 aircraft in some moves, are responsible to a group leader on whose ability to plan and plot each trip on the way back depends the safety of the pilots and urgently needed machines. The decisions of the leaders are respected as final orders.

Although the ferrying of aircraft is all work and no play, pilots and ground crews found time to enjoy southern hospitality. In Hollywood, for instance, moving picture studios were thrown open and top name cinema officials acted as hosts.

Milford, Utah went all out. This entire population of this little railroad town of between 1,200 and 1,500 residents welcomed the Canadians with a full turn out of the Veterans of Foreign Wars band and a general civic tribute.

But the Ferry moves were not wholly without incident. A group of 10 T-6's had a narrow brush at Wichita Falls, Texas. They landed just ahead of a tornado which struck the town and wrecked havoc upon its buildings and inhabitants. As a matter of record, the flight was caught in high gusts and dogched by torrential rain as the pilots watched the destruction from aerial observation posts eight miles away.

Up until last Thursday, 46 T-6's had been ferried into Canada. That day another batch of pilots were dispatched to pick up most of the remainder.

And now the Ferry Flight can see an end to another great movement of planes, the eyes of the commander have switched to an even more important job — the task of ferrying T-33 jet trainers in from the U.S.

Squadron Leader McCarthy and his men come directly under No. 6 Repair Depot Commanding Officer, Group Captain S. A. Green, M.B.E.

DRAGGED COTTAGE AWAY

Ashland, Ore., May 31 (AP) — Flames from a burning cottage appeared certain to spread to a nearby restaurant yesterday. Then Dan Van Epps came along, driving his logging truck. He couldn't put out the fire, but he did the next best thing. With the help of bystanders he ran a log chain around the cottage, jumped back into the truck and dragged the house, flames and all, off to an open field.

ROISTERING SEAMEN VANISH

Baltimore, May 31 (AP) —The roistering seaman with a yen for strong drink is vanishing from the ships that sail our seas, says a man who tends to their shore needs. "I'm tired of hearing about sailors who drink," said Harry Nilsson, of the Norwegian Sailors' Home in Brooklyn, N.Y., at the spring conference of the Conference of Seamen's Agencies in the U.S. and Canada.

Attractive Spring Tea Sponsored by White Shrine of Jerusalem

Tall spikes of royal purple iris, lilacs, rosy-hued columbines, and snow-white sprays of Spirea Van Houtt, added their lovely fragrance to the spacious and hospitable home of Mrs. W. J. The popular home cooking table with its array of delicious baking was in the charge of Mrs. J. Godwin, assisted by Mrs. C. P. Blaker, Mrs. J. Ritchie, Mrs. S. Sillitoe and Mrs. M. W. Dickinson.

Variety Table

The Variety table proved an interesting and great success under the able management of Mrs. S. Sillitoe, with Mrs. W. A. Meeds and Mrs. E. A. Merson adding their capable assistance.

Mrs. W. A. Bowley acted as treasurer for the afternoon and Mrs. D. R. Mallory as welcoming hand work as publicity convener.

The success of the delightful tea was due to the ardent work of the convener, Mrs. R. Ketterer, assisted by Mrs. F. P. Moore and the excellent aid of the willing servers.

The wee tots were served with quantities of cool drinks and accompanied their mothers home well contented.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Sure Cure for Loneliness.

There is nothing in the world less bearable than loneliness! And there's probably nothing in the world that lonely people will find harder to believe than just that statement. Yet it is perfectly true. Let's take a practical look at this distressing malady and see.

The case I have in mind at the moment is that of a wife of 37 who says: "I am about the loneliest person in the world. I am married to a wonderful husband and have one darling child, and yet I am lonely. I want to make friends, yet I fear people. I lack confidence in myself and feel as though they don't want me around. I question myself about everything I do, asking myself if I have done the correct thing or made a fool of myself. I want to make and keep friends, but I am so lonely!"

Acquire Points of Contact

Now it is a very dreadful thing to convince this type of despairing aloneness. But it would be still more dreadful if nothing could be done about it. There certainly is a lot that can be done about it, however. What it takes is simply an intelligent effort on the part of the individual concerned to find out what qualities, skills or interests he has which he can use as points of contacts with others—and then to use these to help him out of his solitary Slough of Despond. Practically everybody has some such qualities to start with. If not, then they can be acquired.

So the first thing for our young wife to do—or any other who find themselves in a situation similar to hers—is to begin solving her problem by making an honest analysis of her assets, using the world "assets" to cover these "qualities, skills or interests" of which I have just been speaking.

What are your interests, Lonely Wife? What can you do well? What sort of disposition have you? One that makes you want to be of service to someone, or one that makes you unwilling to exert yourself in behalf of others? One of the very best ways to get over that sense of loneliness is to take part in some type of work that is helpful to other people. There is absorbing interest, for example, in becoming an aide in a hospital, and there is sore need for such these days. Veterans' hospitals are pleading for women who can help while away weary hours for the men by playing games with them, helping them engage in some handicraft or other activity, reading to them, writing letters for them. Perhaps this girl has some talents she can put to good use in such a way.

Join Some Organization

Once she has listed her interests, she should look about her for some organization to join whose program touches that interest. Does she like to cook? Let her join a cooking class at the Y.W.C.A. and learn some new tricks. Would she like to learn how to make her own clothes or hats? To weave, to make jewelry or become a good amateur photographer? Either at the Y or some place else she will find a class in any one of these— and people busy at them will become her friends.

Does she take an interest in the Parent-Teacher Association at the school her child attends? She can meet and make friends with many other young mothers that way.

These are only a very few of the things she might consider, and once she has started looking, she's certain to find plenty of others. And you can't beat doing things with people as a formula for finding congenial companions.

All things, she should stop the continual self-criticism that makes her keep questioning her behavior. If she simply acts naturally on any given occasion, without worrying about how any one else acts, she'll rarely go wrong.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

War was easy when it was fought in coconut trees.

The [illegible] of Tahiti merely climbed to the very top of the coconut palm and waited. The [illegible] their enemy perfectly concealed. The coconuts not only provided food and water for days but could be used as ammunition against any enemy who dared to approach within striking range.

Coconut trees bear fruit all year long. Coconut desserts, too, are always in season.

Crisp toasted coconut is combined with a smooth custard sauce and fresh orange segments in today's recipe. Custard sauce, when removed from the fire should only be thick enough to coat a spoon. Overcooking may curdle it. Vanilla or orange extract may be used in place of the sherry wine if desired.

Oranges with Cocoanut Custard Sauce—Serves 4-5.

4 large oranges
6 tablespoons sugar
1-8 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons flour
3 cups scalded milk
2 eggs well beaten
1-4 teaspoon sherry
1-2 cup shredded cocoanut

Cut the skin off the oranges with a sharp knife, removing all outer white membrane. Cut the fruit into segments. Or cut the oranges crosswise into 1-4 inch slices.

Combine the sugar, salt and flour in a mixing bowl. Mix well. Milk should be hot but not boiling. Stir the hot milk into the sugar mixture.

Stir the beaten eggs into the mixture. Strain mixture into top part of a double boiler over simmering water. Be sure the water does not boil. Cook and stir mixture constantly until slightly thickened.

Remove from fire. Pour into a cool container. When cool, stir in the sherry. Chill in the refrigerator until served.

Sprinkle the cocoanut in a shallow pie or cake pan. Place pan in a moderate over 375 degrees until cocoanut is light brown. Stir occasionally, to toast evenly.

Pour the custard sauce into serving dishes. Arrange orange segments over sauce. Top with toasted cocoanuts.

BEAUTY

Dress for teen-agers is standardized.

Wise mothers don't use an iron hand with young daughters these days. The method doesn't work. They endeavor, with love and tactful handling, to direct them in the way they should go. Youth teachers itself smarter than they always has; always will.

In some households there is conflict between mother and child concerning the clothes she should wear. The young girl should be permitted to state her preference and, if possible, her ideas should be accepted. She knows what the other kids are wearing, doesn't want to appear different from her companions. Many girls of fifteen have a keener dress sense than their mothers have, especially those mothers who haven't kept in step with the trend. At all costs, conflict should be avoided. Anything is better than losing the love of one's child.

It is the parents' job to try to understand this product of a twentieth century, not to be the shocked, hardhearted critic, wholly out of sympathy. To do this a child must be approached in a tolerant spirit, not a prejudiced one. Often it is very difficult to live with an adolescent, but maybe that is what your parents thought when you were young and gay—and probably heard.

On one subject a mother should be strict, even adamant; she should insist that young daughter take care of her clothes. She should see that she keeps her room neat and tidy, that she hangs up her coats and dresses, keeps her shoes in boxes, and puts her shoes on shoe trees.

The teen-agers' character is forming at the time, and a well-developed sense of order is a quality that oils the wheels of life. It makes any job easier, no matter what kind of work one does. The girl who lets her mother pick up after her will develop into a slovenly housekeeper later in life, and drive her husband frantic with her careless, extravagant ways.

The child must be taught to brush her hair; neglect of this duty in childhood may result in a thinned growth. The chi'd should decide its arrangement. If the family budget is ample and the child's hair is straight and stringy, an end-curl permanent will do no harm and will add to pleasing appearance.

Care of the teeth consists not only in correctly-accomplished brushing twice a day—the bristles should sweep away from the gums—but in a semi-annual visit to the dentist for examination, cleaning and any necessary repairs.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

White suits are the perfect attire solution for the men in summer weddings

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My wedding is to take place in June, early afternoon, in this Connecticut town. My wedding gown will be full-length white organdy, trimmed. We are having great difficulty in determining what the men in the wedding party should wear. They do not wish to wear regular formal dayattire, either cutaway coats or Oxford jackets. Do you think it would be proper, appropriate, for the men to wear summer flannels with white linen jackets? We think that this would be most comfortable and cool, and in keeping with the general overall wedding scheme.

M.

White suits for the men in the wedding party. . . white linen suits or of any other cool material . . . are, I think, the perfect solution for your afternoon wedding in June. White suits have become increasingly popular for summer weddings, and now are very often worn, not only at informal summer weddings, but very often too at large and formal summer weddings when the bride may wear a dress with a long train and a bridal veil. And in that beautiful New England town in which you are to be married, they would be perfect, and in charming harmony with your summery white organdy wedding dress. These white suits deserve their popularity . . . for they are cool and cool-looking, and men find them most comfortable.

Regretting wedding invitation on card enclosed

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Enclosed in a wedding invitation we have just received there is a card and an addressed, stamped envelope. If we are not able to accept this invitation, how and what should I write on the card?

E. W.

If on the card is engraved the reply you are to check . . . for example, "We will attend" or "We cannot attend," or a similar phrase . . . you simply cross off the phrase that does not apply to you, and sign the card.

But if a plan card is enclosed, you write:

Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson regret that they are unable to accept the very kind invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Bryant for Tuesday, the twelfth of June

TWO AIR BASES PUT ALL RUSSIA WIT HIN BOMBING RANGE OF U.S. PLANES

Drugstore Profits Sliced By Man's Hypnotism

Miami, Fla. — (AP) — A stranger walking into Ralph Pearson's drug store any night in the next week would be amazed to see the least, at some of the queer antics there.

What would you think, for instance, if you saw a man tying an imaginary warplane, another at the soda fountain kissing a woman who wasn't there, and a girl posed as the Statue of Liberty?

Regular customers are never surprised. They know it's just Pearson practising his hobby of hypnotism.

Besides having fun, Pearson accomplished a lot of good by putting people in trances. He has cured several of the smoking habit.

"I'm losing a lot of my cigaret business," he says. "But I don't mind. Most of the smokers I've cured are young people who shouldn't be smoking, anyway."

One schoolgirl told Pearson she hated school.

"I hypnotized her and quietly suggested while she was in a trance that school was a good thing and that she should enjoy it," he recalled.

"After I woke her up, I said, 'How's school going lately?'

"'Fine,' she said. 'I can't wait to go in the morning'."

Pearson cured another girl of biting her fingernails. Another stopped drinking coffee after one session with him.

A young man who was about to lose his job because he overslept every morning, now wakes up at 7 a.m. daily on the dot, Pearson claims.

"You had I can't hypnotize myself," the druggist added. "I stay up so late hypnotizing people, I'm too tired to get up in the mornings."

The druggist has attracted so much attention with his hypnotism, nobody watches the television set in his store any more.

"We'll either have to sell the store and go into the hypnotism business or stop this stuff," said Mrs. Pearson. "It's getting to be a three-ring circus around here."

Trenton Kiwanis Club Given Charter at Inter-Club Meet

Trenton (Special)—The Governor stressed that the charter he was about to present was not one of accomplishment but a franchise to opportunity.

When he clasped the hand of Gordon Davis, president of the new-born Trenton Kiwanis Club and handed him the official piece of parchment.

That was the scene which took place before 250 Kiwanians at the Quennesway Hotel here last night, when the Trenton Kiwanis Club became officially designated as Club 112 in Division No. 6 of the Kiwanis International organization. A large representation from the Lowville, N.Y. Club observed the ceremony.

Governor Ralph D. Steele, chief of Division No. 6 made the presentation of the charter.

Introducing Past Lieut.-Governor Bruce Lattimer, of Belleville a Past Lt. Governor revealed that Governor Steele was a former Mayor of Chatham and a keen community worker.

Governor Steele said it was both a pleasure and a privilege to welcome the Lowville Club members and their presence spoke volumes for the good fellowship in Kiwanis and the international relationship between the United States and Canada.

Auspicious Occasion

"This is a very auspicious occasion," he said, praising the Belleville Club for the work they had done organizing the Trenton club. He especially commended Past Lt. Governor Bruce Lattimer for playing an important part in laying the foundation of a club he wanted to see continue to grow. He pictured the 28 new Trenton Kiwanians as citizens who wanted to do something with their spare time besides waste it. He announced that he would be back in this district again this year officiating at the the charter night of two more clubs.

The Governor reviewed some of the services Kiwanis handled in the community. He mentioned Kiwanian Jimmy Fidler introducing "National Kids Day" and encouraged members to make suggestions and present new ideas in the interest of bettering the organization.

"Democracy rules in Kiwanis, the Governor declared, pointing out that every member was allowed to have his say.

Thanked for Assistance

In his remarks President Gordon Davis said that the 11th day of April was when the Trenton club first came into being and officers were appointed. He thanked the Belleville club for their assistance.

Presentation of the United States flag and the Union Jack were both colorful ceremonies. The Booneville, N.Y., club presented the Stars and Stripes, while the Oshawa Club presented the Canadian flag and pole.

Everett S. Fairman, president of the Belleville club officiated at the acceptance of ribbon presented by Governor Ralph Steele.

Many gifts were drawn for and distributed among the ladies and gentlemen holding lucky tickets. Clubs from all parts of the district sent gifts to the Trenton executive and members.

The Trenton club was sponsored by the Belleville club and the Belleville officers and directors who figured prominently were:

Lawson-Js Chairman

Vice-president Bill Lawson of the Trenton club acted as chairman of the evening. Mel. R. Osborne, LL-Governor, Division 6, was the toastmaster at the opening of the program.

Re-assessment of Townships Topic of Lengthy Discussion In County Council Session

Just how any increase in assessment as result of the re-assessment of townships in Hastings county may affect school grants, was the topic of considerable discussion by members of county council Wednesday afternoon.

The matter was brought up as result of the report of county assessor Harry Harrison who said that since his appointment earlier in the year he had found many inequalities in assessment in townships, which he had visited. He expected that the net result of re-assessment would be an increase in assessment for many townships.

Referring to inequalities in assessments Mr. Harrison said in one instance a property, which had recently sold for $9,000 was assessed for but $400. In another instance a property which sold in 1941 for $1,425 was assessed for $2,800. Many properties were not assessed at all, he had found.

Emphasis on Buildings

Mr. Harrison said the assessment act put emphasis on buildings rather than on land as it was buildings, which required road and other services which cost money. Re-assessment of telephone and telegraph companies especially in Sidney and in Thurlow, on a gross return basis, rather than on a mileage basis, was intended.

He emphasized that not a single township in Hastings was properly assessed. "But don't blame your assessor for that," he said. "His pay is low and is not adequate to do the job he is doing now."

He urged that hiring the right man for the assessing job at a salary for what the job is worth, would pay townships many times over.

Reeves Question

Reeve Lee Grills was first to broach the question of what an increased assessment might mean to school grants and asked whether the purpose of the re-assessment was to raise the assessment or to equalize.

In answer Mr. Harrison replied the thought was to equalize assessments across the province. "In most cases this would mean higher assessment, but not always," he said.

"Is that better for the county?" asked Mr. Grills. "At least it is fair," was Mr. Harrison's reply.

Reeve Elmer Wood of Huntingdon township, where re-assessment has already taking place wanting to know why thrift and initiative should be penalized. He noted that farms with electricity, bathrooms and furnaces were being given higher assessments than those without such conveniences. "I don't think it is fair to assess improvement," he said.

Drastically Increased

Assessments on small holdings in his township were being drastically increased, he pointed out. He cited one instance where a house and lot assessed at $400 had been increased to $2,700, and another assessed at $300 had been raised to $1,600. One farm assessed at $2,900 was raised to $4,100 and another assessed at $2,400 was raised to $4,300.

In reply Mr. Harrison pointed out that heating, lighting and plumbing increased the value of property, but this was but one factor in determining assessment. Other factors to be considered were location, present use, resale and rental value.

Some farms, he said were assessed too high, while others were far too low. None of them would sell for much more than the price of the buildings. Yet small holdings in the same relative area would sell for as much as the farms.

Designed to Raise Money

He noted that the assessment act was designed to raise the money to pay for services and if a small holder had a relatively low assessment he was "getting along" at the expense of his farmer neighbors.

"There are weaknesses in the act, yes," he noted, "but at least it is a start to remedy some of the wrongs of the past 50 years."

Reeve Theodore Tyron of Bancroft termed the threat of increased assessment a "heartsign" and said that the Department of Education would be pleased to see assessments increased and then say to a particular township that it no longer needed special school grants.

"Equalize the assessment yes, but not increase it too much because the cost of education is based on assessment, don't let's kid ourselves."

"I am glad you brought that up," replied Mr. Harrison. Some municipalities have become alarmed that increased assessment might mean reduced school grants. Assessment officials are much concerned on the point and are trying to get an agreement to the effect there will be no decrease in school grants."

Faraday reeve John Anderson noted that if farm taxes were too high nobody could work the farms. Also if tourist resorts were taxed to death, the tourists would be lost too.

The Bancroft reeve interjected a note of humour here when he suggested that something might be worked out along the line of income tax department operation. "In the case of a lumber mill they write it off in depreciation in five years, but after that the mill is still sawing lumber," he said.

To a question by Reeve Davis if re-assessment of all the townships could be completed this year, Mr. Harrison said it was utterly impossible, both being the case the old assessments would have to be carried over until all was re-assessed.

Might Affect Grants

Reeve Grills was afraid that a higher assessment would affect school grants but Mr. Harrison noted there was no grave danger if the assessment was on a two-per level. He noted that some municipalities had deliberately kept their assessment low to take advantage of school grants, "But they haven't been paying their share, let's be fair," he said.

Reeve Davis summed the matter of school grants up very nicely, however, when he noted that actual assessment and equalized assessment did not always correspond. Unless the equalized assessment was raised school grants would not be affected.

Reeve Clarke Rollins of Wollaston was afraid if wild lands were assessed too high there would be more properties turned back to the townships for taxes. If this was the case there would be an added burden on the other taxpayers.

Too High in Instances

Mr. Harrison said that some wild land was being assessed as low as 10 cents an acre and he felt that even this was too high in some instances. However, in other instances the assessment might be $1 an acre. All wood land was not wild land, he pointed out.

But Reeve Rollins had an answer for this. He doubted that in Hastings there was any merchantable timber left which could be taken out profitably.

To a question by Reeve Rollins if there was any possibility that the government might subsidize townships for re-assessment costs Mr. Harrison said there was little likelihood of this.

Report Adopted

Reeve Davis felt there should be a definite time or date set at which the municipalities should strive to complete re-assessment.

County Clerk Denyes asked if any change in the county equalization was recommended until all townships were re-assessed. Mr. Harrison replied he was making no recommendation but pointed out the equalization committee met every year and could do what it saw fit.

"But it is pretty hard to find anyone willing to increase their equalized assessment," pointed out Reeve Davis."

The report of the county assessor was adopted.

Seven Graduates Are Ordained At Conference

Kingston, May 31 (CP)—Seven theological graduates were ordained Wednesday night as ministers of the United Church of Canada.

The church's Bay of Quinte Conference also designated one woman a deaconess.

The new ministers are: Carman J. Beckel and Hartwell W. B. Hisey, Kingston; George Alfred Boyin, Brockville; Allan L. Borland, Indian River, Ont, Kenneth J. Lee, Greenbank, Ont., Alan Hayes McCuaig, Gananoque, Ont. and Robert K. Shorten, Foxboro, Ont.

The Deaconess is Marion Daniels of Orillia, Ont.

The conference approved a recommendation of the missionary and maintenance committee that charges in the conference voluntarily accept a 10-percent increase over the 1950 contributions as a goal. Rev. W. Harold Young, secretary of the Board of Colleges and Secondary Schools, said there will be a shortage of 125 ministers in the church after all recent graduates are placed on charges.

The conference was also urged to contribute to the extension fund of the church to meet the ever increasing demand for more churches.

Rev. A. E. Kewley, secretary of stewardship and every-member canvass, said that due to increased population there is urgent need for hundreds of new churches in all parts of Canada.

Hot Korean Sun Has Set Members of Princess Pats Thinking About Head-Gear

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, May 31 — (CP) — The Patricias are beginning to squint. It's the glare.

The hot Korean sun has set the battalion to thinking about headgear.

Unlike Italy, where the Canadian Army's beret was practical year-round wear, Korea lacks cover for the campaigner. The soldier manning a mountain position usually is on a bald, treeless ridge or spur. On the move there are few hedges, vines or trees for him to pause under.

Faces that don't tan are taking a beating, especially the noses. Lieut. John Pearson of Winnipeg, for instance, has to keep a piece of paper or a handkerchief over his whenever he stops in the sun.

So the Patricias are going to wear United States Army caps, a cross between a baseball cap and a locomotive engineer's with a 2½-inch peak.

Dust and rain are two other factors that figure in summer campaigning in Korea.

Dirt Two Inches Thick

Dirt roads, pulverized under military traffic, have been kept a floury two and three inches thick, almost take to the sky in dense opaque pillars of choking dust every time a jeep or truck passes over them.

So far the Italian campaign trick of wearing a neckerchief over the nose and mouth while driving has not caught on, although the occasional military policeman at an intersection uses one.

U. S. Army dust respirators, which strap over nose and mouth, are expected to be available shortly.

Meanwhile drivers have at least eye protection. Goggles equipped with polarized glass are plentiful, and they have cushioned pads that insulate the eyes.

While prolonged exposure to dust can produce the basic pulmonary complaints — and worse — that affect miners, it has been blamed already for a variety of ailments varying from headache, laryngitis and even dysentery.

Increasingly frequent rains settle the dust temporarily besides heralding the approach of the rainy season. First effect of the wet is to make the dusty surface be to pack it, like cement, and briefly there is a good road again. But as the fall continues, the texture softens into mud, and then grease into which the traffic tears deep ruts.

Getting Summer Clothes

Still in battle-dress and windpants — long since tattered and shredded under the wear of campaigning — the Patricias soon will be issued their summer clothing, Canadian - made bush gear that is light, comfortable and tough.

That will at least render more bearable the sultry, stuffy atmosphere that accompanies the rainy season. Their poncho - groundsheets will keep them dry.

The rains usually fall during June, July and August. Records indicate a peak period of continuous downfall during June, tapering down to brief, but intense, evening showers in August.

Again like Italy, the rains have sharp, and immediate, effect on river levels.

Time and again camps have been washed out. Established in fine weather on dry - looking river beds they have been flooded by torrents that storm down overnight.

The Patricias' rear headquarters look for flat riverbanks for their camps. Even so, a tentful of drivers under Sgt. Ian Selkirk of Trail, B.C., awoke one morning recently to find 10 inches of water under their camp cots.

Pte. Jim Rowland of Hamilton spotted his boots floating right - side - up at the far end of the tent, dry inside. Less fortunate were Cpl. Gordon Wilkins of Woodville, Ont., Pte. Clayton Gaunson, Chatham, Ont., Pte. Ola Deboit of Moose Jaw, and Pte. Raoul Lefranc of Ottawa, all of whose belongings were sodden.

COWS AVERAGE $446

Langstaffe, May 31 (CP) — A total of $38,775, for a general average of $446, was realized Wednesday on the sale of 87 head of purebred holsteins at the annual sale of young stock held by the Ontario Health Department.

The animals were from various hospital farms throughout the province.

Highest price was $685 paid by Harold E. May, Canandaigua, N.Y., for a bred heifer O.H.W.O. Dewdrop Pietje Finderne.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH

Blaina, Wales, May 31 (Reuters)—A 40-year-old mother and her three children, age 4, 10 and 19, were burned to death early today when a fire swept through a row of houses in this South Wales mining town. Her husband jumped from a bedroom window and was seriously injured.

France Allocated 3,000 Tons Of Newsprint

Washington, May 31—(CP)—France has been allocated 3,000 tons of Canadian and American newsprint to meet "conditions of exceptional urgency."

The allocation was made by a 13-country raw materials committee. It was the first action taken by a raw materials conference of 36 Marshall countries since it began meeting here Feb. 26. The committee has been studying means to help overseas countries facing a severe newsprint shortage.

In Montreal, an informed newsprint source said that any such allocation will have to be done by the governments concerned to be effective. The source said that the Canadian and American governments make such an allocation.

Before the allocation announcement was made known yesterday, Ottawa observers said that since Canada fills most of North America's newsprint needs, Canadian mills would be called upon to fulfill the overseas orders. They said the allocations were not expected to be large and probably would be no more than a small part of 171,000 tons Canada expected in Canadian newsprint production this year from 5,279,000 tons to 5,450,000 tons.

Other Countries Apply

Other countries besides France which have appealed for newsprint include Britain, Italy and Turkey.

The conference announcement did not say what the "conditions of exceptional urgency" were in France. Presumably the newsprint will help the French government reply to communist propaganda before the national elections June 17.

Officials said France has given permission to buy the newsprint immediately at "normal market prices."

Further emergency allocations will be made later, the statement indicated, after the committee has screened appeals from other western countries. The statement also said:

"The committee, however, has decided as a general policy that it would be impracticable to deal with further individual cases involving substantial quantities before the all-over newsprint position has been established following receipts of replies to questionnaires."

Sixty "interested" countries have been asked to provide information on their requirements by June 2.

THEIR PLEAS AREN'T IGNORED

West Sector, Korea, May 31—(CP)—At least 300 Chinese communist troops were killed on a sodden Korean battlefield Wednesday as Canadian troops abandoned two miles of newly-acquired terrain.

At nightfall both sides were still in contact in the hills in the Uchon area. Canadian casualties for the day were light.

Apparently determined that United Nations troops will not enter the Chorwon plains, to which the village of Chail, miles northeast of Ujongbu is the gateway, the enemy threw everything into the battle to oust them.

In this assault, the Chinese, attacking in hundreds, forced eastern Ontario troops by sheer weight of numbers to leave positions won just a few hours earlier.

No Fingerprints Revealed State Police Witnesses

Pembroke, Ont., May 31 (CP) —A room-by-room search of the home of cab driver Lloyd Barber after he was slain failed to reveal any fingerprints of the accused slayer, Lloyd R. Wyse, 35, of Golden Lake, Ont., police witnesses testified Wednesday.

Six witnesses testified as the preliminary hearing of a murder charge against the Golden Lake farmer opened. Nine more witnesses are expected to testify today, second day of the hearing. Wyse is charged with the murder April 13 of Barber in the cab driver's one-storey home at Killaloe, Ont., 25 miles southwest of here.

Deer-Hunting Permitted In South Ontario

Toronto, May 31—(CP)— For the first time in several years, deer-hunting will be permitted this year throughout southern Ontario as well as in the north.

The season in the south will run Nov. 5-17 inclusive.

Lands Minister Scott said Wednesday the general season was declared because southern Ontario is becoming over-populated with deer and farmers say they are a nuisance.

In one Waterloo county field, a herd of 50 deer had been seen. A herd of 30 had been spotted in Welland county and in other places similar large groups had been seen. Cedar swamps were over-browsed.

Previously in southern Ontario, there had been open seasons only at local request.

The hunting of moose, prohibited for two years, will be permitted again this fall but only to Ontario residents and in the area north of the northernmost transcontinental rail line.

The season will be late—Nov. 15 to Dec. 15—so that Indian hunters will be able to freeze the meat.

14 MINERS TRAPPED

Essen, Germany, May 31 (Reuters) — Fourteen miners were trapped underground and 29 injured in a gas explosion in the Heinrich Robert shaft at Herringen, near Hamm, today.

The management said there was little hope of rescuing the men.

The explosion occurred when miners were fighting an underground blaze.

SAFEST IN YEARS

Chicago, May 31 (AP) —Celebration of Memorial Day in the United States appears to have been the safest since the end of the Second World War.

The death toll in violent accidents—111—was one of the lowest for a single Memorial Day holiday in several years.

The 66 killed on the highways was far below the National Safety Council's estimate of 110.

Suave Fast-Talking Malik Returns as President U.N. Security Council for Month

ACTIVE

Mrs. George H. Stewart of Winnipeg, 72-year-old grandmother, was re-elected to a second two-year term as chairman of the all-Canadian committee of the Church of Christ at the biennial convention in Toronto. The first woman to hold the post, Mrs. Stewart says the work keeps her young. — (CP Photo.)

United Nations, N. Y., May 31—(AP) — The return of Russia's suave, fast-talking Jakob A. Malik tomorrow as president of the United Nations Security Council for one month raises these three questions:

1. Will Malik trot out a Russian or Chinese communist offer to talk about a cease-fire and peace in Korea?

2. Will he take the occasion to put before the council Iran's dispute with Britain over Iran's oil?

3. Will he resume his tactics of last August when he stymied the council for 31 days in the Korean situation?

The council chairmanship rotates each month according to the English alphabetical order of the member countries. Malik succeeds Selim Sarper of Turkey.

The Russian ended a long walk out last August by striding into the council chamber and taking the chair. He then refused to give a ruling on inviting a South Korean to the council table and the whole month passed in argument between Malik and western delegates.

This time Malik takes the chair with the U. N. forces in Korea definitely on the winning side, in contrast with the dark days of last August.

Neither Wants to Move First

It also has become fairly clear that U. N. forces presently in the field cannot push the communists out of Korea, and that the communists cannot drive the U. N. troops out. There has been speculation that someone would propose a peace conference or negotiations on a cease - fire to be followed by peace talks. The trouble is neither side wants to make the first move.

Malik this week denied persistent rumors that he or the Soviet Union had put out Korean peace feelers to the United States, directly or indirectly. Delegates speculated that his statement might be clearing the way for new attacks on the U. S. and U. N. policies in Korea during June.

Iran was the first case put before the Security Council in 1946, with Iran demanding that the Russians get out as called for in their agreement made during the Second World War. The Russians finally left in May 1946, but the Iranian case has been kept on the council worksheet all these years.

Iran and Britain have been having a dispute over the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and there have been some hints that the dispute might go before the council. The Russians have a decided interest in Iran, because it is right at their back door and near the centre of their oil industry. If they feel the situation is ripe, they may order Malik to start talking about Iran.

The council could, as has happened before, let the month pass without a meeting. There is no urgent business before it — unless Malik starts something.

HEAR WITH YOUR BIG TOE?

THE TRUTH ABOUT HEARING AIDS

There has been so much confusion lately about hearing aids that we are pretty sure that many people are confused. (We don't quite understand all we hear ourselves). We think that it's about time to clear the air.

Your hearing mechanism is in your head. You can no more hear through your wrist or elbow than you can through your big toe.

Every hearing aid consists of 2 units. One is the transmitter. This device picks up and amplifies sound waves and usually contains small batteries. All transmitters must be worn somewhere on the body.

Every hearing aid requires some type of receiver, or "button." This "button" must be in or behind the ear, although if your hearing loss permits, it can be concealed under your clothing or in the hair. An example of this is the Beltone Phantomold, which hides the receiver "button" under the clothing or in the hair, and transmits sound to the ear through clear plastic tubing.

With a Beltone, you can receive the best of hearing service. And we can help you conceal the aid, if you should be sensitive, and if your loss permits. Examples:

- Beltone's Phantomold — conducts sound to your ear with no "button" showing.
- Beltone's new outside microphone — no clothes noise. This outside microphone picks up sound without interference from clothing and completely eliminates clothes noise. This unit is contained in an attractive tie clasp for men or, a beautiful brooch for women. However, you must be a cord to the transmitter and to the hearing mechanism in the head.

Come in to our convenient location and let us consult with you about your hearing problems. Let us show you the Beltone foremost in hearing aid. Appointments arranged in your home if you wish. Write, phone or come in today.

Too Many Trivial Things Occupy Our Attention Club Meeting Told

"If you lost your memory in some distant part of the world, and you were without identification, you would be hard put to know who you were. I am speaking of the tragedy of nothingness," stated Dunsford Clubber Irwin, in addressing an "interesting" meeting of Rotarians from that Ontario held last evening at Dunsford.

"I don't believe that anyone is such a fatalistfiend that they don't have a niche to fill in life. Hundreds of millions in Asia go to bed hungry each night. Some people are congenitally incapable of thinking or expressing emotion. And yet—their importance can be summed up at life's end in the question, 'What did you live for or for?'

"I should now like to speak of the tragedy of nothingness," the speaker said.

Much Nonsense

"In recent years we have had more than a peanut up Pilate's nose. Take the Korean conflict for instance. There have been hundreds of minutes spent in the meetings of the United Nations dealing with the problem of disaster. Sir Culbertson has had his immortal thoughts on the bridge to a world that is crumbling around us. What of it?"

"There's been far too much gossip and too much nonsense," Mr. McTavish continued.

"There has been too much glamour and too many beauty contests. There is too much advertising and too many soap operas. Too many cars are given away for meaningless quiz contests. I am sick of it that I wouldn't drink a certain tea if it were given to me and I was paid for drinking it.

"What do you make of such a world? What do you make of a world with a policy of unconditional surrender, that five years later resents both its enemies and friends, former ally? The communist, at least is honest, in one thing he says he does not believe in God and acts accordingly, whereas we call ourselves Christians and do not practice Christianity.

"History has shown that preparation for war does not, nor has it ever, prevent it.

"We cannot utterly destroy a great country, because we may need it. We cannot destroy a people and neither can Russia destroy us."

In speaking of the growing enmity of war, Mr. McTavish pointed out that it cost the Caesars 75 cents to kill a man, and it cost the Allies in World War II, $30,000 to kill a man.

Grim Future

"I doubt if we can survive another war", he commented. "Preeminent contributor to civilization which will ruin business unless we can stop it. It was in fact caught in another depression Russia will just walk in and take us, not I am not too sure that maybe that isn't their strategy."

"Just the other day the U.S. Food Board stated that the present Korean conflict will maintain food prices in the U.S. through 1952. What do the Koreans think of that? How long will the Koreans want to go on being liberated. A friend told me recently that a survey of Koreans indicated that 98 per cent of the people do not care who runs the country as long as north and south are united and the white man leaves. And the day is not too distant when the white man will have to get out and leave Asia to the Asiatics".

"We must stop war," Mr. McTavish continued. "War has corrupted half the children of the world. It has been estimated that 85 million children in Europe do not know what school is, and that another 100 million are destitute."

PIONEER ACT

Wisconsin in 1934 was the first state of the United States to introduce unemployment compensation.

This crash involves 130 millions directly."

"We Rotarians have a motto of service," Mr. McTavish broke up. "And I think that we have had a greater chance to serve the spiritual values will emerge triumphant and justice will be meted out. Let us serve in that when the final question "What did you make of it?" is asked, devils and angels may answer, 'He hasn't lived for nothing.'"

Excellent entertainment was provided by many of the clubs taking part in the gathering.

General-chairman of the meeting that was attended by Rotarians from Kingston, Belleville, Picton, Colborne, Cobourg, Campbellford, Stirling, Trenton, Napanee, and Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, was Ken Griffiths.

Chinese Ready To Enter Tibet

Hong Kong, May 31 (Reuters) —Peiping radio said today Chinese communist troops in western Sikang province have completed preparations for entering Tibet.

The Chinese government published its 17-point pact with Tibet last Sunday under which Tibet agrees to "return to the motherland" and allow Chinese troops to enter the country and "consolidate the national defences."

Peiping radio's broadcast today added that the Chinese troops on the Tibetan frontier had cabled a report of their readiness to march to Chinese leader Mao Tse-Tung and his government.

(Reports reaching India from Tibet last October said that Chinese columns had crossed the frontier in force then and were camping in eastern Tibet.)

Council Members Request Better Telephone Service In Northern Part of County

A request that council take some action in an effort to see if better telephone communication could not be secured for the outlying districts in North Hastings, was heard at the Thursday morning session of Hastings county council.

Several of the northern reeves complained of the poor telephone service provided by certain private companies in the area. Anything council could do to assist in getting better service would be appreciated, it was said.

Reeve Clarke Rollins of Wollaston township introduced the subject, declaring that if it was desired to get an emergency message through at certain times, it would be far better to jump in a car and go to see the party personally.

"The exchanges are open only during certain hours and sometimes it is next to impossible to get calls through," he said.

Still Declares Deficit

Bancroft Reeve T. Tryon noted that the telephone company in his village had been granted permission to increase their rates on condition that operational profits were turned back to better the service.

"The result has been that the company has still declared a deficit and it doesn't look as though we are to get any improvement in the service."

Recent legislation provided that Mr. Hydro could investigate telephone service by private companies and he suggested that something along this line be recommended by council.

Bad For Years

Reeve W. J. Davis said the telephone service north of Bancroft, had been bad for years. From his place to Bancroft, a distance of 23 miles, it was often necessary to have calls repeated twice.

Reeve Ross Neal of Deseronto, enquired whether there had been any move to have the Bell Company take over the private companies.

To this Reeve Tryon replied that some of the private companies were willing for this but the Bancroft company was not willing to sell at a price agreeable to the Bell Company. "If Bell took over the Bancroft company, it would discard all present lines and equipment and install new," he said.

He added that the Bell company was not interested in acquiring separate private companies in the north if they could not purchase the Bancroft exchange.

No Action Taken

No immediate action on the matter was taken by council although the reeves interested said they would later draft a motion for presentation to council before the session concluded.

Requests for grants from the Madoc Memorial Centre, and also from the Tweed Parks Board for a grant to their park were received by council, the applications being turned over to the Ways and Means committee.

The South Hastings Educational Association also requested their regular grant with Public School Inspector R. H. Macklem outlining the activities of the association in promoting educational welfare in the district. "Music festivals conducted by the association and its work in conservation were particularly noteworthy," he said.

Two northern reeves also jumped on the land wagon with Reeve Clarke Rollins requesting a county grant for the North Hastings' Association, and Reeve Harold Wells, of Stirling, requesting a grant for the Centre Hastings' Association included his town. He was informed by Inspector Macklem that this was not the case.

Several routine by-laws were introduced, one from Reeve Verny Heath, of Rawdon, to detach the township of Rawdon and the village of Stirling from the Centre Hastings High School area. Spirited discussion on the by-law was heard during the morning session and was expected to continue for most of the afternoon session.

SOCCER EARLIEST STARTER

Things started hopping early in the month as the Eastern Ontario Intermediate Football League opened playing on the 5th. Jo-Jay of Colnia Section did not begin until the 23rd however. Belleville United held down second slot in the K. O. A. F. L. but the Army and Navy Vets and Northern Electrics are not farfar so well in the Bay of Quinte, bringing up the rear.

THANKS TO CENTURY CLUB

Thanks to the ingenuity of the "brain" who originated the Century Club we have gotten away to a decent start in the Central Ontario Baseball League both financially and on the playing field as well. The Century Club, for the information of newcomers, is a group of men, who have each contributed $100 toward the backing and maintenance of the Redmen, baseball variety. The Redmen are currently occupying a first place tie with a double win in as many starts. Coach Pat Wilson says that the boys will be ready for Batawa on Saturday so let's have as good or better turnout to the game than the last one.

Wally Best of the YMCA has been laboring for the cause of the pre-teen and bantam hardballers but he has not informed us yet just what the results have been.

OASA AFFILIATION GOOD FOR LEAGUE

Softball took a turn upward this year as both the International and Intermediate "A" leagues affiliated with the Ontario Amateur Softball Association. The entities both groups to send a representative into Provincial playoffs at the conclusion of our local schedule. This is the first time in several years that Belleville has been connected in any way with the OASA.

Originally five teams were scheduled to start in the Commercial "A" section but at the last minute Trenton pulled a fast one and dropped from the group. When we say the last minute we aren't just kidding either. Trenton were due to play against Glen Ray here on Saturday night but at midnight on Friday an official of the club phoned here to submit their withdrawal. This left the loop with only four teams and a schedule slightly awry. No changes have been made as yet but it has been proposed that each team schedule another home-and-home game with the other three.

Glen Ray Athletic Club under the management of Don McGrath held down the top slot with two wins in as many starts. Point Anne Comenimen have only played one game so far, coming up with a victory over Ramsey Paints who have a win and a loss to their credit. Morse and Hagerman bring up the rear having been defeated in both appearances thus far.

Although it is not on the schedule that we have here, Coach Marty Hollowell informs us that a hang-up game of softball will be played at the Alemite Field on Saturday night when Don McNevin's boys will play host to "Paddy" Maracle and the hardnosed Comenimen from Point Anne. Neither one of these teams has been defeated and according to all reports this should be a fourth-and-go affair.

Pee-Wee softball at 91's start on Tuesday night across the river at the rear of No. 2 Fire Hall with all the top brass taking part. Much credit is due to all of those who lent a hand in the preparation of the field.

GOLF AND TENNIS STARTED NICELY

Golfers and tennis players have been out since the first of the month limbering up all of those old rusty joints that rested since last season. We believe that the tennis started on Monday with the Quinte team journeying to Trenton. Golf, as an enthusiast will tell you broke the ice on Thursday last.

Memorial Day Tradition Makes Amazing Chicago White Sox Even-Bet to Win Loop Title

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The super-charged Chicago White Sox, a 30-to-1 shot in April, figure no worse than even money to win the American League pennant—based on Memorial Day barometers.

The Sox streaked to their 13th and 14th successive victories yesterday sweeping a holiday doubleheader from St. Louis Browns 5-3 and 8-1 before 34,604 fans. The St. Louis cleanup, coupled with Boston's two triumphs over New York, opened Chicago's first-place margin over the Yankees to five full games.

The Sox, idle today, begin a 12-game home stand against the eastern clubs tomorrow. They are only five shy of the league record of 19 straight victories, first set by themselves in 1906 and later tied by the Yankees in 1947.

Vern Stephens won the opener for the Red Sox, blasting a home run in the 11th inning for a 11-10 thriller. Stephens also batted in a couple in a five-run seventh inning rally that won the second game, 9-4 and increased Boston's league lead to 10 straight.

Cards Win Two

St. Louis Cardinals cut Brooklyn's National League lead to 1½ games with 4-3 and 7-3 triumphs over Pittsburgh as the Dodgers were held even in two games with Philadelphia. The Phillies came back to win the second game 9-5 behind Subba Church's 13-hit pitching after Don Newcombe had outpitched Robin Roberts 3-2 in the opener.

Memorial Day leaders during the last 50 years have held on to win the 27th time in the American League.

National League holiday leaders did not fare as well. Only 23 have gone on to win since 1901. Philadelphia is at midnight on Friday an official of the club phoned here to submit their withdrawal. This left the loop with only four teams and a schedule slightly awry. No changes have been made as yet but it has been proposed that each team schedule another home-and-home game with the other three.

Good Breeding Gave Arctic Prince Derby Triumph

Epsom, Surrey, England, May 31—(AP) — Experts who didn't pick Arctic Prince—and nobody did—said it was all obvious today: It was just a matter of good breeding that gave the blue-blooded Arctic Prince his derby triumph.

The Irish-bred horse by Prince Chevalier out of Arctic Sun had the finest parentage in the field, the experts agreed. They said the victory vindicated that old adage about class telling.

The 32 others who ran along at Epsom Downs yesterday ranged all the way down the pedigree line. There were some who weren't sure who their ancestors were.

But Arctic Prince's happy owner, Joe McGrath, a former Irish newsboy, said he was ready to do something now to give Ireland the greatest bloodstock stud in the British Isles.

British sports writers agreed McGrath may have one of those occasional super horses. They said Arctic Prince's win was so decisive that it would be surprising if he doesn't prove to be the champion of his age.

McGrath pocketed a record $34,-581 in prize money for the six-length triumph by his stout runner. How much more he made in betting his 20-to-1 shot the Irishman wouldn't say.

McGrath, who was introduced to Queen Elizabeth after the race, said it was a far different reception than the one he normally is accorded in Dublin.

A member of the Irish Republican Army at one time, he said, "my experiences in England were wholly in jails."

Sybil's Nephew was second in the race with Signal Box third. The favored Xi Ming finished out of the money.

Global Affairs Take Back Seat For Holiday

(By The Canadian Press)

Global affairs and war took a temporary back seat as millions of Britons and Americans turned out for the world of sport Wednesday.

In Britain it was Derby Day climaxed by the 172nd running of the premier English racing classic at historic Epsom Downs.

In the United States it was a national holiday—Memorial Day—and one of the biggest sports days of the year.

In brief this was the picture:

Epsom — Irish-bred Arctic Prince, a 33-to-1 shot won the derby by six lengths before more than 500,000 persons.

Indianapolis—a little known race-driver, Lee Wallard, won the annual 500-mile speedway race before more than 100,000 and set a record of 138.324 miles an hour.

Baseball—236,900 fans attended eight major-league doubleheaders and saw the Giants and Braves split two games at New York's Polo Grounds.

Jockey Sammy Luce has been barred for life and trainer Charles A. Grande suspended for six months in the doping-battery case, the Illinois Racing Board announced Wednesday.

A urine test of Ruthred, winner of the sixth race at Washington Park May 19, showed the presence of ephedrine, a stimulant, the board said. Later, a battery was found in Luce's trunk.

At Inglewood, Calif., famed Citation made a mighty effort to regain his winning ways Wednesday but the best he could do was run second, three lengths behind Be Fleet in the 1 1/16th mile $35,000 Argonaut handicap before a holiday throng of 30,000 at Hollywood Park.

It was the best the six-year-old hero of the Calumet Farm had achieved in four races this year.

At Elizabeth, N. J., James J. Parker, 190, Barrie, Ont., outpointed George Kaplan, 168, Brooklyn, in an eight-round feature bout Wednesday night.

At Providence, R. I., Fred Wilt Wednesday ran the fastest two miles ever in the United States when he was clocked in 8:46.5 in a special race at the Brown University track meet.

Wilt, a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, was nearly 12 seconds behind the world record of 8:42.8 set by Gunder Hagg at Stockholm in August, 1944.

Shaking off a goal scored against them in the first 30 seconds of play, Glasgow Celtics defeated the Kintracht at [illegible] team 3 to 1, in an international soccer match before 19,500 fans at Triborough Stadium, New York, Wednesday.

Buffalo Bisons On The Move In Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

After a shaky start, Buffalo Bisons are on the move in the International League baseball race.

They moved from seventh to fifth place in the standings on the strength of a double victory yesterday over the Rochester Red Wings, 4-3 and 7-1.

Reeling off seven double plays before a delighted audience of 7,886, the Bisons looked like a coming ball club.

The victories were all the more pleasing because they were scored at the expense of Rochester's two ace pitchers—Jack Pasholk, who had won five and lost one, and Ed Yuhas, who had gone into the second game with 26 1-3 scoreless innings.

Buffalo harled Baltimore and Toronto in the standings after those two teams divided a double header at Baltimore.

The Maple Leafs beat Baltimore in the first game 2-0 on John Hetki's pitching. But the Orioles came back to win the second game 6-4 on Howie Moss' three-run homer in the eighth.

Montreal Royals, meanwhile, lengthened their league lead over Rochester to seven games by beating last-place Springfield 8-5 and 7-5.

Syracuse Chiefs turned back Ottawa 6-3 in the seven-inning first game of a doubleheader at Syracuse, the second game halted after one inning by rain.

Lee Wallard Sets Fast Pace And Record to Win 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis Speedway

Indianapolis, May 31.—(AP)—Lee Wallard, winner of the 35th annual 500-mile auto race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, has made it a driving contest ever.

The post war theory of competing in the 500 is "conserve" and to drive steadily at a speed a little better than previous winning times, more or less ignoring the competition.

Wallard changed that in his first speedway victory. He pushed his hardest all the way yesterday to win at 126.244 miles an hour—almost five miles an hour faster than Bill Holland's 1949 record.

The 40-year-old Allentown, Pa., veteran treated the big race like a dirt track sprint.

It was the fourth straight running of the race without a fatality.

Mauri Rose of South Bend, Ind., trying to become the first man to win four times, wrecked at the northwest turn after 212½ miles. His car had a head and overturned. But he escaped with only scratches. Otherwise, there were only minor skids and spins.

Wallard went into the lead on the first lap. Cecil McGrath of Glendale, Calif., got into the spirit, and he and Wallard bitterly contested the lead for every turn for the next 50 miles.

Had Fastest Lap

Wallard took the $500 prize for the fastest lap in the race by averaging 128.922 miles an hour on his 32nd lap—faster than many of the qualifying trials.

Wallard won't know how much he won until the annual victory dinner tonight. Last year's first place was worth $37,458 and it should be closer to that this year.

Manuel Ayulo of Burbank, Calif., driving relief for McGrath, got the third wave of the checkered flag.

Henry Banks of Compton, Calif., national driving champ last year, finished for the first time in five speedway starts and took fourth.

Robert (Bimbo) Bobby Ball of Phoenix, Ariz., another newcomer to the speedway, was fifth. Andy Linden of Los Angeles was sixth.

First-timer Carl Forberg of Detroit was seventh and Duane Carter, also of Detroit, was eighth.

Heavy Hitting Deciding Factor In Two Games

(By The Canadian Press)

Heavy hitting proved the decisive factor in two Intercounty senior baseball games played last night as Waterloo Tigers strengthened their first-place position and Brantford Red Sox pulled out of a second-place tie with Kitchener Legionaires.

Alex Kwasnak, Waterloo playing-manager, smashed a ninth-inning homer with Bobby Schnurr on base to give his team a 5-4 win over the fourth-place London Majors in London.

Four of Brantford's 10 hits went for extra bases in a 6-3 win over fifth-place Galt Terriers before the season's largest crowd in Galt.

In a replay of a postponed Niagara Senior League game, St. Catharines Stags took their fifth consecutive victory—an 8-4 decision over Niagara Falls Fords.

ASK WORKERS TO STRIKE

Roubaix, France, May 31 (Reuters) — Cotton-mill bosses here Wednesday asked their workers to strike.

Seven months ago the mill adopted a co-operative system, paying employees 50 percent of the profits in the form of a monthly wage bonus.

The French treasury this week insisted on social security payments being made by both the company and workers on the bonuses and sent a bill for 15,000,000 francs (£42,000).

The company asked employees to organize a protest strike.

Ezzard Charles Retains Title Easy Win Over Joey Maxim

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

Chicago, May 31 (AP) — Ezzard Charles, heavyweight champion of the world, is positive light-heavyweight champion Joey Maxim wants no more ring traffic with him.

Maxim is of the same opinion, too, after absorbing a one-sided trimming by Charles at the Chicago Stadium last night. It was their fourth engagement with Charles winner of them all.

Charles, making the eighth defence of his crown, won the unanimous verdict of referee Frank Gilmer, two judges and the bored approval of 7,235 spectators in pulling Maxim for 15 rounds.

Despite the poor crowd, Charles pocketed a $62,167.50 paycheck, thanks to a $100,000 television purse, Maxim got $31,073 for his losing effort.

At the finish Maxim was a reeling, tired, exhausted fighter. His right eye was swelling shut and he was bleeding from a cut under the eye and above it. Charles was unmarked, and breathing no harder than if he had a brisk drill.

Maxim's counters were feeble and he clinched continously. He seemed to be on the verge of collapse several times, but gamely remained on his feet until the final gong. He was treated with oxygen intermittently for 10 minutes in the dressing room after the fight and appeared to be in an exhausted condition.

Will Risk Title

Crestfallen Maxim now is scheduled to risk his 175-pound title against Cincinnati's Bob Satterfield in the Stadium June 27. But there was no guarantee by 49 day of whether he would recuperate sufficiently to fulfill that engagement.

Charles, in repulsing Maxim's feeble bid for heavyweight honors, hit the jack-pot as champion by his victory. The Cincinnati Negro now has defended more than leading rival—Joe Louis, the former champion; Jersey Joe Walcott and now Maxim, the light-heavyweight champion.

Speaking of Walcott, Charles' next defence will be against ag-ing-Jersey Joe at Pittsburgh July 18.

Since there was only an eight-ounce difference in the weight of Charles and Maxim—182 to 181 1-3—Maxim's followers had anticipated a rousing battle last night.

Hurt in Opener

But Maxim was hurt in the opening round and failed to untrack himself thereafter.

He was a slow, lumpy boxer. He could neither punch effectively nor slug toe-to-toe with Charles. He was an easy, wide-open target throughout and Charles blasted him with punches he gamely absorbed.

Maxim's best showing was in the ninth round. He smashed a hard right to Charles' jaw and then repeated with two hard rights to the same spot. Charles said he was not hurt by the punches, but he seemed to be befuddled by Joey's sudden, furious attack.

Charles admitted he was gunning for a knockout from the start, but didn't have the ammunition.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting — Vern Stephens, Red Sox, connecting five games with homer in 151 binning, 11-10; sent Boston ahead for keeps with bases loaded single in second game, 9-4 sweep over Yankees.

A sound basic system of bridge bidding needs few exceptions. Those who inject too many exceptions are experimenting. And many of these experiments are never as good as the original system.

Take double. The word double is used for two purposes. One is to say you can defeat the contract, a penalty double. One is to ask partner to bid something; a takeout double.

A double is for takeout if (1) partner has made no bid, or double or redouble; (2) the bid is not more than three in a suit or more than one no-trump; (3) made at the first opportunity.

Thus, if a double is made by an opening bidder immediately after his partner has passed, it is for takeout. All the conditions for a takeout double exist in this situation.

This means that a penalty double applies only under conditions that are not like these. However, this does not mean that experts stay put there. They try twisting the word into double talk.

One exception fostered by some experts is this: If opener starts with one no-trump, his double is for penalty even if partner has passed his opening bid. I most certainly disagree with this.

There was the deal you see here:

NORTH
♠10 8 3
♥8 7 6
♦10 8 7 6 5 2

WEST
♠K 4
♥Q 5 4
♣K Q J 8 5 4 2

EAST
♠J 9 6 2
♥A J 3 2
♦K Q 4

SOUTH
♠A Q 7 5
♥K 10 9
♦A J 4
♣A 9 6

South opened with a bid of one no-trump, a bid of two clubs came from west. North and east passed. Double by south. The way I figure it, this double by south is for takeout.

But north and south pair here are using the convention that opener of one no-trump doubles for penalty; never for takeout. So, when west passed the double, so did north. And west had a cinch.

The chances of gain from such a deviation are too slim for it to survive. Maybe you like it that way, brother. If so, don't let me pick out the hearts. After all, it is your funeral.

ADMIRAL DIES

Hawkhurst, Kent, England, May 31 (Reuters)—Admiral of the Fleet Sir Reginald Tyrwhitt, 82, Royal Naval Commander in the First World War, died today.

He took part in every North Sea naval battle from 1914 to 1918 except the Battle of Jutland and won fame at the battle of Helgoland Bight.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 31 —(AP)— Dale Robertson is one gentleman who refuses to let Hollywood "Yankee-ize" him.

The handsome young actor is actually a southwesterner, hailing from Oklahoma City, Okla. But his accent is definitely south of the Mason-Dixon line. And it's going to stay that way, by hat.

"Hollywood made a great place for advice," he said. "Everybody has his own line. Instead of trying to further your career, and the advice usually comes from people who never achieved anything themselves.

"They've all been telling me I should take lessons to get rid of my accent. They claim it will diminish me in the parts I get. I say nuts to that. Sure, I could take a month or so of lessons and lose every trace of accent I ever had. "But then what would I be? Just another actor. And tall, handsome haired actors are $1 a gross in this town."

Need Trade Mark

Robertson said he has figured out his stand by observing the successful actors in the movies.

"All of them have accents of some kind," he said. "It's a trade mark for them; it makes them distinctive. Cary Grant has an accent. So does Randolph Scott. And where would Ronald Colman be without his accent?"

Playing bullers, he guessed.

Robertson said he learned his lesson as a small boy. The great Will Rogers was a friend of the family and urged the Robertsons to bring young Dale to Hollywood for movies. Mrs. Robertson didn't want to disrupt the entire family and decided against it. But she said she would send Dale to dramatic school.

"Don't do that," Rogers advised. "If everybody went to drama school and learned to speak good, think of all the night club impersonators that would be out of work!"

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, June 1

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Should be responsive, prosperous day for worthy plans and activities, especially where there is no selfishness involved. However, Venus' influences urge patience, kindliness.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Your planet Venus' position now stresses a broader outlook and plan of action. Forget others' thoughtlessness and forge ahead with fine plans. Day very favorable in long run.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Mercury not overstimulating, which is good at times for the ever-active, mentally speedy Geminian. Should give you pause for quiet reflection. Difficult tasks, really-hard work will count.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Fine Moon, Sun and other planetary aspects first favor honorable, well done daily work; industry, important finances and like personal interests. Have high hopes, and faith.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Don't permit doubt, worry or lack of faith in good-ness and your own ability to have any sway this benefic day. So much can be done toward true profit now!

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Like Gemini today, profit more quiet, unhurried moretime - for - forethought action. Mechanical, industrial trades equally favored with other interests and business management.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Venus' aspect while not auspicious nevertheless can be of benefit if you follow right trend. Forget less important things in service to God and fellowmen. A favorable day thus.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Mechanics, laborers, miners, all useful, purposeful workers highly honored. Very favorable planetary day. Artistic professions ask more care but can advance, too.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Ideal setup for gains in your occupation, making fresh strides in an avocation or hobby. Excellent day for strategic gains; for conferences, plans.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Fine vibrations predominate but Saturn's aspect urges deliberation, wise planning if contemplating changes in business, methods, personnel. Gains possible with sensible effort.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Grand influences for success in any worth while endeavor whether it be difficult tasks, artistic profession, scientific research, children's activities —any honorable, useful matters.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces) — Day as generous, advantageous for you as for all earnest, purposeful folks. Your Neptune stresses extra care to protect confidences. Try for new gains in your occupation.

YOU BORN TODAY: Quick, active, mentally alert. Fond of fun (mischief, too). Generous, ready to lend a helping hand where it is needed. Guard against swinging from one extreme to another, making new friends or discarding the old too quickly. Stability, patience needed, and do get a better knowledge of your undertakings, not just a superficial one.

Birthdate: Brigham Young, Mormon apostle; Frank Morgan, actor.

WHY WE SAY

. . . To admire yourself
The person who spends a great deal of time looking into a mirror could actually be accused of admiring himself, (or herself) . . . at least that's true according to the original meaning of the word. Mirror comes from the Latin "mirare," to admire something.

End of A Chapter

By Edwin Rutt

She thought of her own adventure experiences. She doubted whether Brent Halleck, with his strange temperament, would fit into an agency. Still, advertising was a logical place for an artist who couldn't freelance successfully.

Then, suddenly, she recalled Molly Tremayne's story. Brent's father, too, had been forced to leave Grosvenor Point. And now three. Of course, it did not sound final in Brent's case. He was simply taking a job. But she had a shrewd idea that there was nothing voluntary about this step. Brent had imagined her as being devoted to even jealous of, this particular spot. Moreover, according to Molly, he had paid through the nose for it; ostensibly to live here. And since he was married at the time, he must have done so with Muriel's approval. Why then, with Muriel coming, more couldn't some happier arrangement have been worked out?

She waited a moment thinking, somewhat fancifully, that a mystical might be repeating itself. And that, possibly, Grosvenor Point held some sort of mystical allergy for the Hallecks.

"I'm off tomorrow," Brent was saying. "Sunday, I'll be back, weekend taking things over with people from the firm and looking for a place to live. And on Monday"—he chuckled, ruefully—"it's the salt mines."

Alice got to her feet. She was aware of having spent considerable time on the beach, far more than she had intended.

"Well," she said, "I hope it all works out, Brent. She—the way you want it to."

Impulsively she held out her hand.

Brent arose more slowly. He looked at her, a peculiar glow in his eyes, and did not take the hand at once. But presently his fingers closed over it. The next instant he was drawing her gently to him.

Alice felt her feet move forward as though without her consent. She shot him a half-baffled half-frightened glance.

"Brent! Please!"

But, head crushed against his shoulder her voice was muffled and indistinct.

Brent did not try to kiss her. He held her a moment, tightly. Then, all at once, she felt free, and Brent had stepped back. "I—I'm sorry Alice. That wasn't in the original script."

"It's all right." She put a hand to a head not quite steady. "But I've got to go. Right away."

"I know, I—oh, confound it! I've got to say it. Why did I have to meet you, Alice—years too late!"

"Brent," Alice scooped up her towel and cigaret, "I don't understand."

But Alice knew in a wild dismaying flash, that she understood. Brent Halleck whom she failed to understand.

"No?" Brent's eyes were lowered. "Perhaps that's just as well. Forget it, Alice. But don't forget about Rick. Please!"

Alice Pine, still incredulous and rather breathless, turned to leave—just as Muriel Halleck stepped lightly from the lawn onto the beach.

At that moment Alice was grateful for only one thing, the darkness hiding cheeks which had turned suddenly to fire. She halted abruptly, the towel slipping through her fingers.

"M-Muriel!"

Muriel made a gurgling sound. "Alice, please! Don't look so shyamally guilty. I can't take it."

"B-but—" Alice had to stiffen her body. "Muriel, how long have you been here?"

"Not very long." Muriel's light-colored eyes were shining curiously. "But what does it matter? You wouldn't be the first attractive girl Brent's kissed on a beach."

"But he—he didn't."

"Oh! Well, I couldn't really see in the dark, not being that kind of cat. But he must be slipping."

Alice got herself together. "Look here, Muriel. I feel perfectly awful about this. And I don't know what to say. I don't know what possessed me, either."

"Forget it," Muriel's laugh was a little splash of silver. "In a most gentlemanly manner, I thought."

"Oh Muriel! Alice's feeling of guilt was fading away before the intense annoyance at the woman's sniffy. "You couldn't be so darned spy about it!"

"How should I be?" The gleaming eyes widened. "Yesterday. Tragic! All right. I'll slip into my dress myself."

"But it isn't funny, if you knew how dreadful—"

"Oh, for heaven's sake!" Muriel slapped Alice lightly on her bare forearm. "Don't be so serious, my dear. It is funny and so are you. The guy—my husband — merely puts his arms around you, so now you're beating yourself up. Well, stop it."

"A-all right. If you're not too annoyed."

"My goodness!" Muriel Halleck seemed to lose interest. "Why should I be annoyed. I'm over the jealousy stage. What's that you've got there? Cigarets! Give me one and forget this nonsense."

Alice Pine extended the package, struck a match. Muriel's head bent over her cupped hands.

"Now let's go up to the house," she said. "But for the record, my meeting broke up early. La Tremayne, who's usually indestructible had a headache. And when I found nobody home here, I took a walk. So my spying wasn't premeditated."

"I never thought it was," said Alice. "And I still feel like a heel."

"Alice, I told you to stop it. Come on now! Think of something else to say."

Alice made an effort. "He was telling me about this job in Providence."

"Oh, that!" Muriel snapped her fingers. "I haven't the slightest sympathy for him on that score, Brent is doing it strictly on his own hook. He knows darn well he doesn't have to."

"But he wasn't complaining," Alice said quickly.

"He wouldn't," said Muriel.

Alice didn't reply. She had involved herself in the Halleck affairs quite enough for one evening. Now all she wanted was to get to her own room, and to thinking things out. For she recognized that she had to think, and clearly.

And the knowledge, perhaps, made Muriel's tolerant attitude more easy to bear.

If Muriel, stumbling upon what must have seemed a strange situation, could say the least, had flown into a rage, become accusing, or worse of course, might not be so strong. But Muriel had laughed it off.

Walking across the lawn, Alice felt like some kind of petty thief.

She did get escape for another hour, Muriel insisted upon getting beer from the refrigerator. They carried it into the study where she regaled Alice with the foibles of the Tolliver Garden Club. It was as if the episode of the beach had never been.

Upstairs at last Alice threw off a bathing suit completely dry now and got into her sightgown. She knew, however, that she would not sleep.

Wide-eyed in the darkness, she gradually made herself face the truth. The truth was startling.

She had dangerously, inexplicably close to being in love with Brent Halleck. With a man for whom at first she had felt dislike and, later, the pexel thing to repulsion.

Nor had the dislike and repulsion been illusory tricks of her own mind to camouflage the real workings of the mind's core!

She didn't know. But she saw now that her interest in Brent had been inordinate from the beginning. She had been utterly unable—Alice twisted on the bed pressing bare toes against the footboard—to regard Brent Halleck passively.

That was how it had been. And there was some psychological theory that dislike—hatred even—and love were actually akin, needing only some slight adjustment of the delicate scale to throw the balance one way or the other. But could she, Alice Pine, hitherto normal and sensible, be falling in love with a man capable of definite cruelty?....

And yet the idea of cruelty didn't square with Brent's low-voiced, sincere-sounding request for her to stay to Rick.

But nothing squared. And Brent was a creature of moods.

Tonight he had revealed a softer core. But we could summon others. She thought again of his face, black with rage, suddenly lit by the surly Sloan during the tree splashes.

At that point sleep actively mocked her. She got up, lit a cigaret, and a solution seemed to come.

She would pack tonight. Then in the morning she would have an honest showdown. And not with Brent. With Muriel.

"Muriel, I can't stay here," she encouraged her own idea. "Feeling as I—I think I do."

After a more lucid interval followed. And she saw that she could not walk out of Grosvenor Point without looking like a preposterous fool. Brent had gone long enough for them to infer that, under other circumstances, he might possibly have been fond of her. On the strength of which, plus her own nebulous indebtedness to Hastings, she was considering a showdown with Muriel.

Well! Tonight, Muriel had laughed at her. But if she went through with this program tomorrow, Muriel would not.

Alice stumped out the cigaret with fingers that trembled slightly. Then, with a sudden, alarming lyr close, to making a complete idiot of herself.

Nevertheless, it was just as well that Brent Halleck was leaving.

Nervous, "Tired All Over" Backache; Dizzy Spells

Also Suffered from Stomach Disorders, Says This Woman "Syntona Has Done More Good Than Anything I Ever Used Before."

"For several years I was run-down and felt nervous and tired all over and I want to tell other sufferers how much Syntona has helped me," said Mrs. Mary Crombie, Hillhouse Farm, Ingersoll, Ontario, in a recent interview.

"From the beginning of each day I felt like being tired out. I didn't feel like doing my work. My back ached, I was troubled by dizzy feelings and constipation. My stomach bothered me terribly at times. I could hardly eat a meal without indigestion and bloating. I felt nervous and irritable at times. I couldn't sleep well, and was quite unable to sleep.

"I don't know how many different things I tried but nothing seemed to help me until I began taking Syntona Herbal Compound. This was more good than anything I ever used. Now my nerves are relaxed, food digests well without souring, and I am free of backache and dizziness. I do not have to take harsh laxatives as I did before. I sleep well and have no trouble feeling refreshed but am not always tired all the time.

"I would advise anyone who suffers as I did to give Syntona a chance to help them."

Mrs. Crombie's experience is typical of thousands of men and women who have found relief from similar health troubles by taking Syntona Herbal Compound. Why not take her advice and give it a trial today?
